Living Costs UP! Electricity DOWN!

• Food, fuel and clothing are higher. But electricity is still cheap! Since August, 1940, the cost of living has gone up 22%. In the same three years, the average price of household electricity has dropped 9%.

• Today, electricity for the average household costs only about half as much as it did fifteen years ago. If your bill is a little higher than it was then, that's because you use a lot more electric appliances. And you're getting just about twice as much for your money.

• Why is electricity so cheap? Because the electric companies under experienced business management have done a better and better job of bringing the benefits of electricity to more and more families at lower and lower prices.

Have a Coca-Cola = Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

...or how to welcome a WAVE on furlough

When your pal comes home on furlough, what do you say for welcome? Why not let Coca-Cola speak for you? There's no chummier way to say the gang's all here than to drink a friendly "Coke" together. At home, in camp and overseas, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes—brings refreshment to Americans, helps them make new friends.

ZIMMERMAN SAYS FDA WILL HELP WITH SCHOOL LUNCHES

Federal Aid Available, but Local Groups Must Administer and Sponsor the Projects.

Local sponsorship is necessary for the success of the Community School lunch program, which makes Federal funds available to help provide food for school lunches, W. R. J. Zimmerman, state supervisor of the Food Distribution Administration, points out.

It is up to communities to work out their own school lunch programs, but the FDA will contribute about 40 per cent toward the cost of food needed to serve a nutritionally adequate lunch.

As a part of the national nutrition program and as a part of the war-time responsibility to see that food requirements of all groups in the nation are met, the program is being furthered by the FDA also as a long-term benefit to agriculture in the development of better domestic markets, Mr. Zimmerman explains.

Endorsing the program as a measure that recognizes the need for a better-fed nation, Miss Eloise S. Cole, Extension specialist in foods and nutrition at West Virginia University, urges that schools or sponsors apply to the FDA to participate in the program. She expresses the hope that the experience in this project will demonstrate that a definite school-lunch program can be carried on permanently in this state.

Plans Must Be Submitted

Groups that wish to participate must present to the state office of the Food Distribution Administration at Charleston their plans of operation for a lunch project, indicating the type of meal to be served, the number of children who will take part, the number of children to be served free, and other information.

Any non-profit, public, private, or religious school or child care center will be considered eligible to participate, provided that federal assistance is necessary in order to operate adequate programs for serving nutritious lunches to all children. The rate of indemnity the FDA will pay the sponsoring agency will vary from two to nine cents a meal, depending upon the type of meal served.

Sponsors may be school authorities, Parent-Teacher Association, Farm Women's clubs, religious organizations, civic and service groups, or any other non-profit organization.

Applications for aid in maintaining school lunch should be sent to Mr. Zimmerman at 302 Knight Building, Charleston, W. Va., immediately.

Farm Fish Ponds Stocked

CHARLESTON, Sept. 16. — Fish crops may soon become an important item on West Virginia farms, according to Harold M. Rhodes, acting state conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In one district alone, he said in a report to the State Conservation Commission, six farm ponds recently have been stocked with more than 10,000 fish supplied by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and distributed without cost through the Soil Conservation Service. The Conservation Commission and the Soil Conservation Service jointly are sponsoring a demonstration farm fish pond at the state game farm in Upshur County. The pond will be fertilized this fall and stocked next spring.

Revise Regulation Covering Sale of Commercial Vehicles

The attention of all sellers of used commercial motor vehicles was directed to the Revised Maximum Price Regulation No. 341, by L. S. Dennis, local field representative of the OPA.

The principal changes of the revised regulation over its predecessor are as follows:

1. Effective September 15, 1943, any seller and purchaser of a used commercial motor vehicle must secure a Certificate of Transfer from their local War Price and Rationing Board. This certificate is to be completed in detail by both parties and returned to the War Price and Rationing Board by the purchaser.

2. Wider margins are set forth for dealers selling vehicles with a warranty as well as a more favorable price on vehicles, in good condition, sold on an "as is" basis.

This regulation applies to all sales by dealers and other persons of used commercial motor vehicles.

NURSE FROM STONY BOTTOM STUDIES MILITARY SUBJECTS

HEADQUARTERS, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS, Sept. 16.—A comprehensive study of Army customs and practices, training in self-defense, and a general understanding of the operations of a military hospital is all part of a day's work for Second Lieutenant Lucille S. Meeks, of Stony Bottom, W. Va., a member of the Army Nurse Corps with a United States Army station hospital somewhere in England.

Besides her regular duty as a nurse caring for patients in the ward, Miss Meeks spends several hours a week studying military courtesy and discipline, learning the Articles of War and Army regulations, military correspondence methods, close order drill, pack-rolling, the proper way to dig a fox-hole and pitch a tent in the field.

Other off-duty time is spent in learning ward management, functions of military supply, classification of military hospitals, and military sanitation.

Miss Meeks, like the other nurses in the European Theater of Operations, is enthusiastic about her work and happy to do her part toward winning the war. Along with the other nurses she is gaining experience and training in her profession, and at the same time is working with men the nurses call "the best patients in the world—American soldiers."

Miss Meeks has been in the Army Nurse Corps 5 months and was at the McMillan Hospital, Charleston, W. Va., before entering the Army Nurse Corps. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Meeks, of Box 13, Stony Bottom, W. Va. Her brother, Pvt. Eugene B. Meeks, is with the U. S. Army and another brother, Pvt. Jesse H. Meeks, is with the United States Marine Corps.

REPORTED HURT IN TRAINING

Unconfirmed reports reaching the Journal office Wednesday stated that Steryl Brown of Arbovale, who is in training with the U. S. Marine Corps at Quantico, Va., had been hurt in a camp accident. The report stated that Brown had hurled a hand-thrown explosive which struck a tree and bounced back in his direction. To avoid being struck in the face by the missile, the Marine threw one hand up in front of his face for protection. The explosive is said to have struck the hand and in the resulting explosion split some of Mr. Brown's fingers.

Milk Cow Mothers Fawns

CHARLESTON, Sept. 16. — Two motherless fawns in Grant county have adopted one of the milk cows of Farmer Ed Hinkle as their filling station. While quite young they lost their mother through some unknown accident, according to Game Protector Harrison Shobe in reporting the incident to the Conservation Commission. The Hinkle milk cows were in the habit of grazing over the deer range, and it wasn't long before hunger drove the fawns to nursing one of these. The fawns are too wild to follow the cow home, but they eagerly await her return to the pasture.

Cooperative Adopts Farm Home Service

Announcement is being made by W. G. Wysor, Richmond, Va., general manager of Southern States Cooperative, that the organizations Farm Home Service to be launched the latter part of September will be headed by Mrs. Sarah P. Ellis who for the last nine years has been State Home

Mrs. Sarah P. Ellis

Demonstration Agent Leader of the Iowa Agricultural Extension Service.

The program of the new service will be designed to help farm women make more efficient use of their home grown foods and to cope with general home-making problems which are intensified by wartime shortages. Also, Mrs. Ellis will assist with membership relations work with farm women.

"Although Mrs. Ellis' activities will be devoted principally to farm home matters," Mr. Wysor emphasized, "her program will in no way duplicate that of the women's branch of the Agricultural Extension Services in Southern States' territory, including Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, and Delaware."

Mrs. Ellis' new affiliation brings her back to Virginia where in December, 1933, she became State Supervisor of the Farm Housing Survey and later one of the organizers of the Subsistence Garden program conducted by the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration and subsequently its Food Preservation Specialist. She has also served as county home demonstration agent and as district home demonstration agent in North Carolina.

Mrs. Ellis received her home economics training at Lewis Institute in Chicago and at the University of Wisconsin.

THAT one helpful lesson learned in this year's garden attempt is that one should always stake tomato vines . . . I staked mine, and tied up the vines about once . . . Then when the weeds outgrew the plants and shrouded the fruit, I could still find a tomato by the simple process of looking for a stake and then following it as a guide down through the maze of undergrowth to the vine . . .

Italy's Unconditional Surrender Marks Real 'Beginning of the End' for Axis; GOP Outlines Foreign Relations Plank; Red Army Retakes Ukraine Farm Lands

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

ITALY SURRENDERS:
One Down, Two to Go

Five days after British and Canadian troops stormed across the Messina straits to land on the Italian mainland, Italy surrendered unconditionally to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

When Marshal Pietro Badoglio's government gave up, it marked the first split in the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis. First indications of the Italian collapse came with the ouster of Benito Mussolini.

Left to hold Hitler's vaunted European fortress were German troops, themselves engaged in a major retreat in Russia, and the Nazis' smaller Balkan allies. While capitulation of Italy exposed central Europe to heavy bomber attack, the Alpine district presented a formidable obstacle to an Allied ground advance into southern Germany.

Hundreds of thousands of her troops killed or captured in North Africa; her elaborate railroad system torn to shreds; her fair cities smouldering in ruin, and lacking the natural resources to carry on war, Italy sought the easiest way out of the conflict.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Isolate Japs

Australian troops were hacking their way through jungle brush to the northwest of Lae, New Guinea, when a cloud of American planes appeared overhead. The next moment the sky was filled with tiny white puffs, marking out Allied paratroopers, floating to earth to assist in the encirclement of 20,000 Jap soldiers.

Gen. George Blamey

Previously, Australian units under Gen. George Blamey surprised the Japs by landing in force to the east of Lae. Moving quickly, they advanced on the big enemy base even while the Aussies and U. S. paratroopers were sealing off Lae to the northwest.

General MacArthur's trigger action not only cut off the Lae garrison from reinforcement from the north, but it also was designed to choke off stubborn Jap troops resisting an Allied advance before Salamaua, farther to the southeast.

HEALTH:
Holding Up Well

Civilians are maintaining a better level of health than federal authorities expected, despite food rationing, longer work hours, and fewer doctors and nurses available, the Office of War Information reports. While mortality and sickness rates are slightly higher, the statement comments that the rise is not more than could be anticipated, considering wartime strain.

The only serious epidemic condition is the increase in infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) and spinal meningitis. More than 4,500 cases of infantile paralysis have been reported throughout the nation this year, the largest number since 1924. Spinal meningitis cases total 13,366, the greatest number since 1914, when records began.

2,000,000 OVERSEAS:
Marshall Reports

Of 7,000,000 men in the army July 1, 2,000,000 were overseas, Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. chief of staff, revealed in his biennial report to the nation.

Gen. George Marshall

Of the 7,000,000 men, General Marshall said, 331,000 are officers, with 1,865 generals. More than 3,000,000 men are serving in the air force.

Experience shows that six tons of shipping are necessary to transport a soldier and his accessories overseas, and his supply requirements run a month, General Marshall said.

At the time the Japs attacked the Philippines, General Marshall said, our long ships and ship cargo capacity were seven to the infinite.

WACS

Most of the officers of the Women's Army Auxiliary corps (WAAC) have taken the oath in the new Women's Army corps (WAC) the last Independence announced. Of 4,239 WAAC officers, 4,000 have transferred to the new organization without change of rank. Of the 154 women who have not been given the oath, 40 may not join, for their tasks are unique. The others have disqualified for duties in their physical condition or their marital or war work.

MANPOWER:
Control Coast Labor

With 160,000 more persons required for shipyards and 100,000 for aircraft factories on the West coast, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes announced that the WMC received control of the supervision of labor in that area.

James Byrnes

A copy of a program already developed in the Buffalo, N. Y., area, the WNC's West coast plan involves: 1. Determination of necessary production schedules in various factories; 2. Shift of labor to essential employment from less essential work or services; 3. Allotment of manpower to the more important industries in the area; 4. Distribution of farm help wherever most needed throughout the West coast.

Time to Switch

Along with adoption of the West coast plan, the WMC's selective service bureau sought to co-ordinate its draft program with industrial needs.

First, the bureau ordered that all non-deferrable workers seeking to switch to essential production be given 30 days, or till October 15, in which to find such employment through registration with the U. S. Employment service. The WMC previously ruled that essential occupation, and not dependency, be the basis for draft deferment.

Second, the bureau instructed local boards that before they induct any workers skilled in 149 critical occupations, they must submit the names of such men to the U. S. Employment service. The service will then determine whether these men are more urgently needed by another employer.

GOP:
Keep Sovereignty

Co-operation in the preservation of peace without the loss of U. S. sovereignty constitutes the basis of the Republican party's post-war advisory committee's recommendation for future American foreign policy.

Harrison Spangler

Meeting on historic Mackinac Island, Mich., under National Chairman Harrison Spangler, the GOP committee struck the theme for its 1944 plank on foreign affairs.

While declaring that "we must do our full share in a program for permanent peace among nations," the GOP committee members said, "we must preserve and protect all our own national interests." If any proposed international co-operation should conflict with our best interests, the committee said, "then the United States should adhere to the policy which will preserve its constitutionalism as expressed in the Declaration of Independence . . ."

For conquered countries, the committee recommended disarmament and destruction of war industries.

RUSSIA:
Regaining Wealth

Under the weight of massed Red attacks, German troops slowly fell back to the broad banks of the Dnieper river in southern Russia.

With many of the rich coal and iron deposits of the Donets basin in Russian hands again, advancing Red armies also reclaimed much of the fertile farm land of the Ukraine, famed for its black earth and wheat and cotton fields. Slicing into the heart of this province, the Reds severed the Nazis' main rail connections to the north.

With the natural resources, Russian troops also recovered many former industrial cities, like Kharkov, but having been wrecked by warfare and their manufacturing facilities demolished by the Germans, reconstruction will be necessary to restore them to production. In the north-central sector, Red troops pounded at the gateway into White Russia, adjacent to the former state of Poland.

OCTANE GAS: High octane gasoline that will give motorists 50 to 75 miles to the gallon is predicted as a post-war development of the oil industry by William Carney, a research chemist for a large refining company. The new automobiles using from 50 to 75 octane gasoline will have smaller motors and lighter bodies, made of alloys or plastics, it is believed.

U. S. TREASURY:
Seeks Billions

High finance has come to the forefront with the treasury's efforts to raise 100 billion dollars for war expenditures during the present fiscal year ending June 30.

Approximately 50 million bonds valued at 15 billion dollars are expected to be sold during the treasury's present bond selling campaign. All of the money will be sought from individuals and businesses, with banks offered a limited number of securities after the close of the public drive. However, the treasury has been obtaining 100 million dollars weekly through short term bill sales to banks.

Rep. Robert Doughton

With congress reconvened, Representative Robert Doughton's house ways and means committee was looking forward to consideration of new tax legislation to raise an additional 12 billion dollars requested by President Roosevelt. Present levies will yield 38 billions dollars.

RAIL WRECKS:
High Toll

Crowded with passengers returning to New York, the Pennsylvania railroad's mighty Congressional Limited streaked through the North Philadelphia station. On it whizzed to Frankfort Junction, Pa. Then, a burned journal on the seventh car of the 16-car train gave, throwing the coach high into the air.

Hurtling against a steel girder of a signal tower, the upper section of the coach was sheared right off. Careening wildly, the car behind smashed into the wrecked coach, and the rest of the train left the rails and plowed along the right of way. Fire broke out in some of the cars. More than 50 dead and 125 injured were removed from the wreckage.

Several hours later, the New York Central's Century Limited was roaring along near Canastota, N. Y., when its locomotive exploded, derailing nine of the 15 passenger cars. The first four cars lunged down an embankment; the others were strewn all over the tracks. Heavy, steel rails were plowed up and twisted into fantastic shapes. Three crewmen were killed; approximately seven passengers injured.

U. S.-BRITAIN:
Tongue Common Bond

Speaking at Harvard university, Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared the United States and Great Britain must march together "in those realms of thought which are consecrated to the rights and dignity of man."

"It would be a most foolish and improvident act on the part of our two governments . . . to break up this smooth running and immensely powerful machinery the moment the war is over," Churchill added.

Commenting on studies being made by a special commission to construct a basic English language for use by all people, Churchill said such a common tongue offers far better opportunity for understanding between people than "taking away provinces and land or grinding them down in exploitation."

Stating that a common speech had drawn the United States and Great Britain close together in war, Churchill said that it may well prove the foundation for a common citizenship.

ECONOMIC DIRECTOR:
Appointed for Italy

Former assistant to Vice President Henry Wallace when he was secretary of agriculture, and more recently head of the Farm Security administration, 41-year-old Calvin B. Baldwin was named area director of economic operations in occupied Italy.

As area director, Baldwin will have the task of co-ordinating the various programs of supply and production instituted by the Allies' civil commissions in governing the captured territories. With Italy essentially an agricultural country, particularly in wheat and fruits, Baldwin's experience in farm administration undoubtedly determined his appointment.

Calvin Baldwin

Joining attacks on Baldwin's political philosophy, Senator Harry F. Byrd charged him with admitting to a joint committee on nonessential expenditure that FSA representatives had formulated a long-range plan of using the government's power of eminent domain for breaking up large land properties into smaller holdings.

JEFFERS

William M. Jeffers, director of the wartime rubber program, has resigned his office, stating that he believes that his main task is accomplished, and that he wishes to return to the railroad of which he is president.

About 30,000 tons of synthetic rubber will be turned out this month, in contrast to the 87,000 tons which is the goal of the program, Jeffers stated, explaining that difficulties have been encountered in expanding factory capacity.

Canadian, U. S. Universities Offer Plan for Prosperity

Two Schools Offer Prescription for Post-War Depression in Pamphlet Entitled 'The Midcontinent and the Peace.'

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

Out of the part of the world farthest from the fighting, literally and figuratively, has come an interesting international prescription for the cure of the world's post-war headache—the spell of depression that we have to be ready for.

The formula is summarized in a 43-page pamphlet that I wish everyone could read. The title is "The Midcontinent and the Peace." The cover is an earthy brown embellished with alternating rows of golden grain sheaves, fat porkers and trucks.

It is a report made jointly by the Universities of Minnesota and Manitoba. It has nothing to do with departments of state, it has no official status beyond the fact that the American and Canadian governors asked their respective state universities to do the job. It is a splendid down-to-brass-tacks example of the recognition of the common interests of two important areas lying on opposite sides of an international boundary line.

The gist of the report is this:

I. Western Europe must arrange greatly to increase its imports of wheat, lard and pork after the war.

II. Canada and the United States must reorganize their automobile-producing industries so that a maximum employment in Canadian factories can be maintained; cost of autos be reduced to Canadian buyers and American car output increased.

III. Agriculture in the prairie provinces of Canada and the central northwest United States must continue along the lines of agricultural specialization developed out of necessity during the war.

The Connection

Now, at first glance, the connection between these steps may not be evident, but the report makes the whole effort clear and also shows how the program can be carried out. There is nothing new or revolutionary in the methods discussed, nor in the reasoning concerning their results, but a striking assemblage of data gathered and arranged in such a manner that it offers what appears to be a logical program of action.

In the first place, the report shows how domestic economic policies (the ones I briefly summarized in the three points above) are, in fact, international policies. It demonstrates with figures and explanation that "sound and strong internal economies in Canada and the United States" must have "resoundingly important effects on the external world."

Examples offered to prove this include the figures which show how the rise and fall of demand in Canada and the United States affected other parts of the world up to and after the depression hit us in 1929.

In less than three decades, imports in the United States of ten different commodities increased from 300 to 1,700 million dollars worth. Take silk: the yearly average importation of silk bought by the United States from 1901-05 amounted to 45 million dollars. In 1929, it had jumped to 432 million dollars. But when the depression struck, it fell to 114 million dollars in 1932.

The total imports of the ten commodities dropped from 1,718 million to 534 million dollars—and you can imagine what happened in the producing countries when these markets disappeared.

One interesting point brought out is that in this period of expanding trade (both import and export) in which Canada and the United States shared, the MUTUAL interests of the two countries greatly INCREASED and their competitive interests declined.

Industry Predominant

The report shows how agriculture has ceased to be our greatest source of wealth, how industry has become pre-eminent and to maintain our agriculture, a healthy condition of industry must be maintained. The old statement is quoted: "Tell me the amount of factory payrolls and I will tell you the price of meat and butter."

The plans for our own agriculture are fairly simple—maintenance of the same type of specialization now going on. The plan for Europe is more complicated but since the question of whether the people of western Europe eat at all for the next few years, depends largely on what Russia, the United States and the other grain producing countries do, these countries may be able to get western European countries to do what we want.

According to the Midcontinent planners, an arrangement should be made whereby western Europe for a period—perhaps 15 years—would absorb our surplus wheat, pork, lard and other farm products. Production of these products would be stopped in western Europe and resources saved would be put to efficient use. The producing countries would assist in reorganizing European agriculture to this changeover. The producing countries would also agree to reduce certain tariffs so that the Europeans can pay for the agricultural products they absorb with goods they can make. (Of course, there is the tough spot.)

As for changeovers in agriculture, it is pointed out that they are not new. Minnesota was once the greatest wheat producing state in the country. That is no longer true. "Mixed farming" has greatly increased. Diversified farming rose in Denmark and improved the standard of her people—these changes come about automatically because the new type introduced pays better. Similar changes, it is implied, could be brought about by ukase, too.

Unfortunately, space does not permit a detailed review of this report but quite as important as its actual content are the forces which initiated it—in the first place, it brings to our consciousness the mutual interests of this country and our northern neighbor which are plain to any American familiar with Canada and her people but which many in both countries ignore. Again, it shows how groups in two separate countries can get together and work out steps mutually beneficial and likewise advantageous to the whole world. The most important thing of all, however, is the emphasis on the fact that domestic problems are frequently international problems.

Diary of a Broadcaster

Let me tell you of another crazy rumor story that I heard today. It is so old that it has whiskers but people up and down this land are listening and believing it.

A reliable, otherwise hardheaded man told me that an acquaintance of his wife had a friend or relative who had a letter from her boy, a prisoner in Japan. The boy said that he was being well treated and then made a reference to his stamp collection.

He had none, so the remark got the people to thinking—they repeated it "then the FBI or somebody" took the letter, steamed off the stamp, and under it was written—

Well, before the man finished telling it, I said: "I know what was under it—They've cut my tongue out."

How did I guess? Well, I heard that story a dozen times in the last World war.

But to make sure, I made a few inquiries, simply to check the procedure. In the first place, prisoners of war don't use stamps. They can't write direct to their next of kin. The messages all are relayed through the International Red Cross anyhow.

Before we got into the last war, I was sitting on top of a Fifth avenue bus in New York, reading an article by David Lawrence, which reported how the department of justice had run down a story to the effect that sweaters knitted for the Red Cross were sold to soldiers. The bus stopped—a Liberty Bond orator was making a speech—I listened. He was telling the same story that the department of justice had run down and found it had absolutely NO basis whatever.

Remember this before you repeat these charming fantasies. Enlistment in the WACS, as fine a corps of American women as were ever gathered together, has been slowed down by a cheap and dirty story made out of whole cloth and passed from one drooling lascivious mouth to another.

When liquefied, dry ice produces such a violently expanding gas that it is now used as a propelling force in a "dry-ice gun," says Collier's. A cylinder under the barrel is filled with crushed ice which soon melts and gives off gas.

A measured amount of this gas enters the firing chamber when the trigger is pulled and propels .22-caliber bullets with a terrific force, one load of the ice being sufficient for 1,800 shots.

FARMING IS 'KNOW-HOW,' NOT MERE OWNERSHIP

THE VALUE OF ACRES as farm land is determined by the price at which the products of those acres can be sold, not for a year but over a considerable period of years. In 1917-18, with food products selling at extreme high prices, farm land prices—not values—doubled and trebled. Farmers mortgaged their home acres to buy more acres with the expectation of continued profits resulting from a continuance of high prices. Insurance companies and banks loaned money on the basis of these high land prices. They bid ravenously for the privilege of making such loans.

By 1921, with the war over and the edge taken off the food demand in Europe, the high prices for food products disappeared, but the unpaid mortgage was still hanging over the head of the farmer. At normal prices for his crops he could neither reduce the principal nor pay the interest. The land he had bought was not worth in peacetime what he had paid for it in wartime.

The farmer had gambled and lost. He had expected high food prices to continue, but could not control the law of supply and demand. The banks and insurance companies took over thousands of farms on which they could not realize the value of the money loaned.

Again there is a world-wide demand on America for food. Again there is an abnormal price for food products, though not nearly so high as the price of 1917-18. Again the price of farm land is shooting upward, but this time it is not the experienced farmer who is buying. Now it is the man from the city who is attempting to hedge on the threatened inflation. When it is all over, when the last shot has been fired, when the starving people of a war-torn world have been fed, when food prices are again back to normal, then it is probable the experienced farmer can add to his home acres at a bargain price. The city farmer, sadder and wiser, will be moving back to the city. He will have discovered that successful farming must have back of it a "know how."

FEDERAL PAYROLLS STILL GOING UP

THE NUMBER of bureaus of the federal government grow week by week by executive decree. Despite the efforts of the Byrd committee to reduce the civilian expenditures of the government, the number of civilian employees increase each month. As long as last December the total amounted to 2,665,000 and it is now well beyond the three million mark. To that great army of employees, the government paid as salaries in December a total of $436,950,000. Of that total of civilian employees, 200,000 are in Washington and, in addition, another 15,000 are employed by the District of Columbia. To that 200,000 the government paid in December the net sum of $32,200,000, to which the District of Columbia added $2,405,000.

The federal government has distributed throughout the states a total of 2,315,000 civilian employees, exclusive of those in Washington. Their job is largely that of regulating the activities of the American people.

In the number of civilian employees, the federal government is nearing, if it has not surpassed, the number of such employees of all of our local and state governments. Last December there were employed by all of our township, municipal, county and state governments a total of 3,227,000 people. That included county, municipal and state police forces and all school employees. To those employees was paid a total of $264,241,000 in December, as compared with the federal government's civilian payroll of $436,950,000. What the end is to be is definitely up to the American people.

Put Nutrition in That Lunch Box
(See Recipes Below)

Let's Pack a Lunch

Do you realize as your children once again begin the trek back to school with their lunch boxes that those mid-day meals should carry a third of the day's calories in them?

Lunches that are a bite-and-run excuse for a meal will not give children or workers nourishment from which they are to draw the pep and energy, vim and vigor they need to do their best day's work. Their loads are heavier to carry these days than ever before, and it behooves every homemaker to be on her toes to put in the box the very best lunch she can pack.

Packing the lunch need not take undue time or effort. Assemble the equipment needed for packing a lunch at one convenient spot, and then you can get right to work with it as soon as you've put breakfast on the table. Keep staples on hand to simplify the lunch-making problem. This should include such things as crackers and cookies, cheese, milk, eggs, peanut butter, beans, salmon, sardines, dried fruits, nuts, jelly, marmalade, pickles and olives.

Whenever possible prepare a dish for the family that can be utilized in the lunch in some way. If you make a meat or fish loaf, this can be used as a sandwich filling.

Sandwiches are the mainstay of the lunch box. However, as they are used so often, vary the bread and fillings as much as possible to avoid that mealtime monotony. Cut them in sections — they're more attractive and easier to eat thatway. Wrap in waxed paper to keep from drying out. Have the fillings moist to keep them from being unappetizing and spread the bread with butter, margarine or mayonnaise to keep it moist, fresh and tasty.

Sandwich Fillings.

Chopped hard-cooked egg, pickle or celery, mayonnaise on oatmeal bread.

Cream cheese, chopped olives on white or whole wheat bread.

Cream cheese or cottage cheese with jelly and marmalade with Boston Brown bread.

Peanut butter or ground peanuts with chopped figs, dates or prunes, mayonnaise or cream to moisten on white bread.

Ground dried beef with pickle and mayonnaise to moisten on rye bread.

Meat or sardines in thick white sauce on white bread or bun.

Ground ham and carrots with sour cream dressing on buttered rye bread.

Cooked liver or liver sausage, mashed or ground fine with fried onion, minced, chili sauce on whole wheat, rye or pumpernickel bread.

Ground veal, carrot and celery moistened with mayonnaise.

Chopped carrots, raisins, and nuts, moistened with mayonnaise, on white or oatmeal bread.

Oatmeal Bread.
(Makes 2 large loaves)

2 cups oatmeal, uncooked
½ cup molasses
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon shortening
1 cup boiling water
1 cup milk
1 cake yeast dissolved in ½ cup lukewarm water
5 cups flour

Measure oatmeal, molasses, salt and shortening into bowl. Add boiling water and let stand 1 hour. Beat in milk, dissolved yeast and flour. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Knead well. Turn into greased bread pans, let rise again until double in bulk. Bake 15 minutes at 425 degrees, then 45 minutes at 375 degrees.

Boston Brown Bread
(Makes 2 small loaves)

1 cup graham flour
1 cup rye flour
1 cup cornmeal
1½ teaspoons soda
1½ teaspoons salt
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 cup water
¾ cup molasses
1 cup floured raisins

Sift together the dry ingredients. Add bran remaining in sifter to dry ingredients. Combine sour milk, water and molasses. Make a well in the dry ingredients, pour in liquid and mix as quickly as possible. Add raisins with last few sweeps of mixing spoon. Fill greased molds ⅔ full, cover closely and steam for 2 hours.

Milk Drinks.

Vary the lunch box beverage as often as possible, serving milk, hot chocolate or cocoa. For a change of menu, try an old favorite which contains iron—molasses milk drink, made by mixing 1 quart of milk with 2 or 3 tablespoons molasses and a dash of nutmeg.

Spiced milk: To 6 cups heated milk, add ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, dash of nutmeg or mace and stir vigorously. Add sugar, if desired, and serve hot or cold as preferred.

Fruits make wonderful desserts and add a generous portion of the day's vitamin and mineral health. If an energy-producing dessert is desired, try a pudding:

Orange Marmalade Bread Pudding.
(Serves 6)

1½ cups dry bread crumbs
1½ cups scalded milk
1½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon melted butter
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup orange marmalade
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Soak bread crumbs in hot milk. When cool, add remaining ingredients in order given. Place in a buttered baking dish and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 45 to 50 minutes, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Serve with cream, sauce or cream.

Are you having a time scratching menus? Write to Miss Lynn Chambers for your food help, at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Ill. Don't forget to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Lynn Says:

Going Places? Lunches that go places to school, to the defense plant or office should be just as attractive as you can make 'em. A box is better than a bag, as it will hold the food without having it get mussed.

Keep lunch boxes clean and air out. If the box has an enamel finish it can be washed out with soap and water. Any box can be aired out between lunches, kept free from crumbs.

Use waxed paper to keep sandwiches fresh and moist, vegetables crisp and fresh. A vacuum bottle will keep beverages hot or cold, soups steaming hot. Fruits pack nicely with soup for that energy-giving a real hearty touch to the lunch.

Use sweetness often in the lunch box just for variety's sake. A piece of favorite pie, cake or a few cookies, an orange, sectioned and packed and tasting fresh after carrying to give the appearance of having packed the lunch a fresh and [illegible] to make to give the [illegible] an appetite a lift.

BOMBING OF ROME

Pope Pius XII was completely cooperative with the Allies the first time Rome was bombed, but not the second time. Inside fact is that he called in Harold Tittman, American charge d'affaires to the Vatican, and protested in the strongest language. He gave Tittman a scorching scolding.

Reason for the Pope's ire was that on August 11, Tittman had informed him that Rome could be recognized as an open city by the unilateral declaration of Italy.

As a result, the Pope understood that Rome was an open city and apparently so informed Marshal Badoglio. The Pope was acting as intermediary for the Italian Government. Both he and Badoglio, therefore, apparently rested on Tittman's assurances and considered Rome an open city.

That was why the Pope was so indignant when, despite his earlier conversation with Tittman, Rome was bombed again.

Whether the State Department failed to communicate Tittman's message to General Eisenhower in order to head off the second bombing was something on which State Department officials declined to comment.

However, one explanation probably was that a city cannot be declared "open" by a unilateral declaration. Neutral observers must enter the city and definitely ascertain that troops, munitions works, airfields, and government offices have been removed.

This had not been done following Tittman's first conversation with the Pope, and that was why General Eisenhower bombed Rome again.

PRIORITY OF DANGER

Behind the closed doors of the OCD in Washington, plans for the civilian defense of the country are being revised. The new plans take into account the decreasing likelihood of attack, and the growing public indifference to black-outs and bomb shelters.

War chiefs insist the danger of attack has not passed, but they admit there is no point in whipping up the public to a frenzy of fear, especially in the safer areas.

They have now divided the country roughly into three zones, with the following "priority of danger"—1. Pacific Coast, 2. Atlantic Coast, 3. Interior areas.

The coastal areas are 200 miles deep, so that everything 200 miles inland is "interior" and relatively safe. The Pacific coast is regarded as more dangerous than the Atlantic, because the Japs are both uncontrolled and unpredictable.

When the revision is finally ironed out, public announcements will be made, and there will be a general relaxation of defense activities. But OCD will insist that the minimum measures of protection shall be ready for the siren.

Decision to relax the program was difficult for OCD, since it meant a scaling down of personnel, and a loss of jobs throughout the organization.

AIR FORCE DUPLICATION

Advocates of a single air force point to the manpower saving that might be accomplished, right under the noses of the Chiefs of Staff, if army air forces and naval aviation were combined.

On the edge of Washington, separated only by the Potomac river, are the army's Bowling Field and the navy's air base at Anacostia. Both fields are equipped with many of the same facilities, and those facilities are manned by forces which duplicate each other.

Each field has its own radio tower and radio staff; each has its separate communication staff, its own meteorological bureau and staff, its own medical staff, its own supply depot—and a dozen other services required at a big air field.

A single air force, combining both army and navy, would do away with this duplication both of equipment and personnel.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Temporary Expediency

Rumblings of discontent from the Deep South and border states, traditionally Democratic, have caused the President to temporarily shelve some of his most loyal New Deal aides.

When arch New Dealer Henry Wallace locked horns with Texas' conservative Jesse Jones, it was Henry who was taken to the woodshed. When ambitious Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, of Groton and Harvard, tried to muscle in on the job of Jeffersonian Democrat Cordell Hull of Tennessee, the Alma Mater and "old school tie" business was forgotten by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Welles was asked to resign.

Let no one be deceived that the President has discarded the New Deal or his New Dealers. Such actions on his part were politically expedient at a time when the solid South, fed up with the Washington high-hikers on the Democratic donkey, threatens Mr. Roosevelt's renomination and re-election. Unfortunately Mr. Wallace and Mr. Welles and others of their stripe will return (or, in fact, have already done so) to plague the American people if the present Administration is continued in office after next year's election.

Again it becomes clear that Fourth Term strategy is occupying much of the time of official Washington. And behind the scenes Harry Hopkins and others of the "palace guard" continue to play politics with the war.

The WRA has released 23 members of the Butoku-Kai, a subversive section of the Japanese Black Dragon Society, without adequate check on their loyalty (if any) to the United States, charges Democratic Congressman Costello of California.

He also accused the WRA of failure to "exercise proper safeguards both for the national security and for thousands of loyal Japanese as well."

Maybe they're still hoping to "appease" Japan!

A Washington newspaper man choking up on the "loaf life" of the thousands of civilian federal workers in Washington reports that in one office of a department 235 employees under 6 officers are doing a certain job; and in another office, 45 civilian employees are doing exactly the same job!

Strange Paradoxes

When a ship wanders into shoal water and goes aground, the skipper is held responsible. No one thinks of reprimanding the subordinates and giving the captain a medal.

When a business is floundering, the Board of Directors and stockholders look for a new President.

And when we look at the nightmares Naziism has brought to Europe, we do not blame Goebbels and Goering and Himmler and hold Hitler blameless.

Yet those are the types of paradoxes that the "palace guard" of the New Deal is trying today to palm off on the American people.

Surely, they admit, the battle of Waashington goes merrily on its way, possibly prolonging the war for weeks, months or even years. Bureaucrats fight bureaucrats for power. Radical New Dealers use the necessary regimentations of the war to attain the designs upon enterprise and republican government which began with the NRA. OPA breaks down. Manpower is in a tangle. The food program breaks down. Over the world experienced foreign observers report that OWI, BEW, Lend-Lease, the State Department and other agencies battle each other for precedence.

Through the whole runs the eternal thread that the New Dealers never lose sight of—Franklin D. Roosevelt must be re-elected President.

But, they say, it is Hopkins, and Elmer Davis, and McNutt, and Wallace, and Byrnes, who are responsible. Don't blame the President. He really doesn't want to run for the Presidency again.

Nothing that anyone today can write about Washington can be more descriptive than the words of Franklin D. Roosevelt spoken in Wheeling, West Virginia, in 1932.

"If this nation wants to know what is wrong with its National Government," Mr. Roosevelt said, "I will give them the answer in one word: that word is 'mismanagement.'"

Conscientious objectors in army camps are given privileges that no young American training to fight for his country is permitted. The wives and "girl friends" of the objectors are allowed to live in the camps. So charges Sterling Cole, Republican congressman from New York, after a personal investigation.

And the General Said . . .

STEP ONE: General Douglas MacArthur pleads for reinforcements to smash the Japs in the Southwest Pacific.

STEP TWO: Roosevelt and Churchill (guided by Harry Hopkins) at the Quebec conference promise reinforcements.

Religious Programs

"One impact of the war has been the deeper appreciation of religious values, and the need millions of persons find for spiritual comfort and help," declares Miss Katherine Fox, director of public service programs for Station WLW.

"Recognizing this wartime need, WLW is now devoting approximately seven and one-half hours weekly to religious programs, in addition to presenting several other programs which, while not considered of an entirely religious nature, nevertheless have a deep religious significance.

Katherine Fox

"The WLW Network also broadcasts the religious programs that have come over the Station's facilities or originated by the greatly increased volume of national war, in which the nation expresses its appreciation for the services only they have rendered from listening to these broadcasts."

WLW religious programs include:

"Dodson's Family Prayer Period," from the Cadle Tabernacle, Indianapolis, Daily except Sundays at 7 a. m., EWT.

"Cadle Tabernacle," with services by the Rev. S. E. Ladon, and music by Miss E. Howard Cadle, Samuel Ford and the Cadle Choir, the largest permanently engaged radio choir. Sundays at 11 a. m., EWT.

"Cadle Church of the Air," with guest pastors from churches of various denominations throughout the WLW area, the Crosley Employes Choir, directed by William Stoess, and Dorothy McVitty, soloist. Sundays at 9:15 a. m., EWT.

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Sept. 5.—Cited for his fine record at the Service School for machinists at the U. S. Naval Training Station here, Page Ward Johnson, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alva A. Johnson, Marlinton, W. Va., was graduated today with the advanced rating of fireman, second class.

The Bluejacket was selected for the specialty school training on the basis of his "boot training" aptitude test scores which indicated his ability in mechanics. His completed course of study included work with drainage systems, distilling plants and internal combustion engines. Practical experience was also gained in the operation of evaporators and pumps.

Advancement to higher ratings is possible for the Bluejacket after further experience at his new post at sea or at some naval shore station.

THE midsummer drouth which burned up the pastures and fired the corn in a large part of Southern States territory took a toll of about 350,000,000. To make up for this serious loss of grass and grain, farmers will need to fertilize more heavily than ever this fall to produce more feed.

Fortunately nitrogen, which was so scarce last fall—is now on the plentiful side. Farmers can now use nitrogen fertilizer on small grains without restriction.

Fertilizing heavily this fall means more grain to harvest next summer and a bigger hay crop to follow. Southern States 4-12-4 is a good fertilizer for small grains and for the grass and clover seeded with the grain. Like all Southern States fertilizers, it is open formula.

SOUTHERN STATES COOPERATIVE

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has been inducted into the army and completed the first few weeks of his training at Fort Bragg. Before getting into the army, Hargrove advises selectees to "paint the town red." Once in, "the first three weeks are the hardest" so keep "an open mind." Hargrove has had plenty of trouble learning the fundamentals of army life and as a result has spent a good share of his time on KP duty. Classified as a cook he thinks it's good experience. His sergeant doesn't agree. Hargrove has learned a large portion of army slang and is about to enlighten the civilian on this score.

CHAPTER VI

When Junior comes home from camp on furlough or for the week-end, he probably will throw out his chest, pull his shoulders almost out of joint, and speak a sort of jargon entirely unintelligible to you. There is no cause for alarm; Junior is merely exaggerating to show off his familiarity with military life.

You will not be consoled by this knowledge when he begins speaking this unknown tongue. In order to understand some of his conversation, you might tear out this page and tuck it away in the drawer with your recipes and patterns.

Goldbricking is an Army term signifying in a word, loafing. In its strictest sense, it means avoiding your fair share of the work, thus making the load harder for the other boys. When Junior uses the term, however, it merely means hiding from the work in the first place or stretching an easy job out to make it last as long as possible.

Batting the breeze is the military equivalent of "bullshooting."

Police, as nearly as it can be explained, means "to clean up" or "to keep clean." Examples are kitchen police, or kaypee, canteen police, and police the area.

Fatigue duty is work that is not actual military training, but a part of the turnabout method of getting the dirty work done. Fatigue clothes are the blue denims worn for extra duty. Regular uniforms are called OD's, an abbreviation for "olive drab."

GI is short for "Government Issue." GI soap is the yellow laundry soap, a GI brush is a hard-bristle scrubbing brush, and a GI haircut is the regulation style which sacrifices two-thirds of Junior's wavy locks to cleanliness and sanitation.

The PX is the post exchange, or canteen, a co-operative enterprise which sells practically everything the soldier needs. Three times a month, canteen books of credit tickets may be obtained in denominations from one to five dollars. Ten per cent of the proceeds from these are returned to the battery fund, which is used to buy nonessentials for the battery.

The old man is the battery commander, who may also be referred to among yourselves as the BC or the skipper. The top kick is a first sergeant, the chief of the battery's noncommissioned officers.

Jawbone is an apt word meaning "credit." A Jawbone corporal is an acting corporal, who has neither the rating nor the pay of a corporal.

Over the hill is an artistic way of referring to unauthorized absence. This is another expression for AWOL.

Food is chow or mess. Stew is slum or slumgullion. Salt pork, which you rarely see in the Army, is called lamb chop. "They lam it against the wall to get the salt out of it and then they chop it up into the beans."

"Over the hill is an artistic way of referring to unauthorized absence —AWOL."

To fall out, soldiers vacate the barracks quickly, before the sergeant gets really mad. To fall in, they take their places in ranks.

A pvt. 2nd cl. is the lowest form of animal life in an Army camp. Under the common law, he is rated as one rank below a buck private. The pvt. 2nd cl., for his misdeed or that shortcoming, spends most of his time in menial labor about the battery area.

When Junior refers to a yardbird, you will notice, he is invariably speaking of someone else.

It was one afternoon off and we were lying around in our barracks, too lazy to dress for a movie or a trip to the Service Club. All of us were, that is, except Private Zuber. With an enthusiasm and energy foreign to a cook's afternoon off, Zuber was applying a loading grease to his shoes. Slow footed, he was connected an iron and began sharpening the creases in his trousers.

"Going somewhere, I take it," asked Private Clarkin, the Jersey milkman.

Private Zuber grinned happily, and nodded. He donned his fresh clothing, gave his necktie several unnecessary tugs, and combed his hair for the twelfth time.

Private McGlauflin, late of the Minneapolis bar, laid down his copy of the Bartender's Guide and sat up on his bunk. "Didn't you know?" he asked. "Zuber's girl's come down from Rochester. They're going riding."

"That's a fine thing," crowed Clarkin. "I haven't been for a spin since I've been here. Get your shoes on, Hargrove. And straighten your name plate, McGlauflin. We must make a good impression on our guest . . ."

"You sure are a pleasant surprise, ma'm," Clarkin prattled on to the pretty girl in the front seat. "Fancy Ben Zuber even knowing anybody like you. You should see the homely looking things he brings to the dances here."

She smiled a polite thank-you at Clarkin and glanced sharply at Zuber. "I never could even get him to the dances at home," she said. "He wouldn't even look at the girls at all. Would you, dear?"

"No, ma'am," groaned the martyred Zuber, who spent almost all his evening hours writing letters to Rochester.

"Just to look at Ben," said McGlauflin, "you'd never think such a quiet-seeming boy could raise so much devil. It constantly amazes me."

Private Zuber's girl friend's smile was not so spontaneous this time, and there was a baleful gleam in her glance at poor Benjamin. "What have you been doing, dear?" she asked with terrible gentleness.

Private McGlauflin went on glibly. "Tell her about the time you got tight in Fayetteville and tried to take the policeman's hat away from him, Ben!"

The one-girl audience was shocked. Her expression, as she looked at Zuber, was one of anxiety and doubt.

Clarkin began again. "And the terrible fight he had that time—ooof!" McGlauflin gave him a hearty dig in the ribs. To make sure that it had registered and created sufficient horrible curiosity in the feminine mind, he repeated it.

Private Zuber, guiltless but helpless, drooped his shoulders further as the terrible ride continued. "Here's the Service Club, dear," he finally said. "Shall we go in and have something to drink?" He gave the three of us a pathetically beseeching glance.

"They don't sell lemon extract in there, Zuber," I suggested. Clarkin, McClauflin and I exchanged looks that purposed to show a hidden knowledge of another terrible paragraph in the collapse of the soul of Benjamin Zuber.

We sat at a table in the Service Club drinking the sodas our victim bought for us. Clarkin looked long at his glass of water.

"The sight of water," he remarked, "reminds me of what the sergeant was telling Ben last week about daily bathing."

McGlauflin took pity on the innocent Zuber, who was dying for a cause he knew not. "We'll have to be going. We have things to do and I imagine you two young people want to enjoy each other's company."

"Yes," said Zuber's fiancee slowly. "Ben and I have SO much to talk about." Private Zuber shuddered and his shoulders slumped tragically.

"We certainly have enjoyed the afternoon," crowed Clarkin. "Lovely time."

One of the first people I looked up when I went to Charlotte on leave was Ward Beecher Threatt, who writes a column of sorts for the Saturday edition of the Charlotte News.

"Well, Hargrove," began the post-card philosopher, "how's the Army agreeing with you? I've been aching to find out what you've been doing." This was a subtle slam at my column.

"Well, all things considered—" I began.

"Nothing like the Army," said Ward Beecher. "I wouldn't take a million dollars for the time I spent in it. Nobody'd offer me a million anyway. Have you got a rating yet?"

"Well—" I began again.

"Lord, did I have my ups and downs! Got all the way up to sergeant three times and was busted three times—for the good of the service." He paused to light another cigarette and I thought I saw an opening.

"Let me tell you about the trip over," I said. "We left the—"

"We started a crap game on the train," said Threatt, "and I had to wire home for money before I got to Rock Hill. Have you had a payday yet?"

"We'll have one—" I started.

"On that ocean voyage," he broke in. "I went for fourteen days without a cigarette. I followed one man all around the boat waiting for him to throw away a butt. Instead of throwing it on the deck, where I could have scraped it, he flung it over the rail. I followed another and just when I thought he'd be ready to throw it away, I asked him for the butt. The son-of-a-gun told me he had three different kinds of colds—and he threw his cigarette over the side. He didn't have another, he said."

"We landed at Brest," he said, "and we had to walk up one of the longest derned hills I've ever seen before we could drop our suitcases. The Frenchmen swarmed around us, selling everything from steamer trunks to fine-toothed combs. Twenty of us boys pooled our pocket money to buy a pack of cigarettes for fifty cents. What are you going to spend your first pay on?"

"Oh, I suppose I'll—"

"First payday I had I went out and bought myself a pack of cigarettes and lay awake almost all night smoking them. Best cigarettes I ever tasted. By the way, how's the food at Fort Bragg?"

"I find it very—"

"Over in France we used to take our drinking water and swap it to the French for wine. It was a toss-up which tasted worse—our water or their wine. Ah, them was the days! Like your uniform?"

"I think it's very—"

"Nothing like the ones we wore. There we were, in the hottest part of the summer, with these woolen

"Over in France we used to take our drinking water and swap it to the French for wine."

OD's, Russian high collars, wrap-around leggins, and all the works. How do you like my costume?"

"Well, confidentially—"

"This field cap ain't the one they issued to me. I lost that one and had to help myself to this one. I wouldn't tell you where I got it. I used to get into more potato-peeling work for not getting this collar fixed right, too. Looks right distinguished, doesn't it?"

I looked at the modernistic clock on Ward Beecher's parlor table. I took my eyes off it quickly, lest he tell me again about how he won it at the firemen's convention.

"Well, Ward," I said, jumping desperately into a gap in the conversation. "I've enjoyed talking to you about my life in the Army, but I have to get along uptown again. I've got—"

"Sure thing, fellow," said the man of letters; "it certainly is interesting to hear from a soldier in this army. I could listen to you for hours."

When a sergeant tells you that it's the little things in life that are important, he's not just saying it. A sergeant who impresses that one corny slice of homely philosophy upon a rookie's mind is giving him one of the most important lessons of his Army life.

The soldier has a thousand and one small things to remember in his everyday life. Most of these he forgets at least once before a non-com etches them vividly on his mind with kitchen duty.

At retreat, the afternoon inspection of the soldiers, I always check everything before I fall out for the onceover. Are my shoes shined? Is my rifle cleaned and oiled? Is my name plate pinned straight over my left shirt pocket? Can I get by with this morning's shave? Do I need a haircut? Are all my pockets buttoned? When I make sure that everything is as it should be, I sigh with satisfaction and fall out.

The battery assembles in a neat, precise picture of mass formation. The battery commander orders the top kick to "Prepare the battery for inspection!" The top kick opens the ranks and the lines straighten out to perfection. From where I stand, everything looks perfect.

The battery commander begins his inspection. Until he gets almost to me, I feel almost smug to think that for once I've stood retreat and not fallen short somewhere. To bask in my own perfection, I sneak a forbidden peek at my gun and uniform.

Then, to my horror, I see two shiny strands of stainless steel just below my belt—the chain on that dadblasted dollar watch! Your whole day can be spoiled by doodads such as that marring the neatness and simplicity of your uniform. Back to the kitchens, Dulcy!

There's one good thing, however, about forgetting to take off your turnkesher watch chain for retreat, or to put on your leggins for reveille, or to straighten the shoes under your bunk! After the first time, you remember them!

THE SIN OF MOSES AND AARON

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 20:1-13, 27, 28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye angry, and sin not.—Ephesians 4:26.

Sin is a serious matter, and even though men in our day may not call it by its real name, it is as much here as it was in the days of Moses—and it is just as awfully sinful as ever.

Sin is universal; it appears not only among the people, but also among their leaders. God's dealing with it is on the basis of "greater privilege, greater responsibility." No leader, especially in God's cause, can expect special consideration of his weakness. He must meet God and answer for his sin.

I. The Unbelief of the People (vv. 1-5).

It is well to bear in mind that the people of Israel who were now at Kadesh-Barnea, on the borderland of Canaan, had been here once before—40 years before. Here they had rebelled against God in unbelief because of the report of the spies concerning the land. Because of their unwillingness to take God at His word, they had been sent to wander 40 years in the wilderness until the complainers had died. Read that graphic and instructive story in Numbers 13 and 14.

Now they were back at Kadesh—and a new generation shows that the spirit of unbelief and distrust has a hold on humanity, and makes son like father.

They had run short of water. The spring which had served their fathers on the previous visit to Kadesh had run dry.

One would have supposed that all the mighty dealings of God in their deliverances over and over again, would have indicated the need of faith; but they had only a wailing criticism of God and His leaders.

II. The Answer—God's Power (vv. 6-8).

Moses and Aaron, now old men but still God's chosen leaders, took their sorrow to Him (v. 6). It was the right place to go, for power belongeth unto the Lord (Ps. 62:11).

Instead of punishing the people for their unbelief, God calls upon His servant Moses to show them that He (God) is able. At a word from Moses, the rock would bring forth water before their eyes.

Is not that the perfect answer to all man's questioning and lack of faith—the revelation of the omnipotence of God?

But God's purpose is defeated (at least in a measure) by the

III. Unbelief of the Leaders (vv. 9-11).

Instead of taking their place as the servants and subordinates of God, Moses and Aaron claimed that they would provide water (v. 10). Instead of showing God's power by speaking to the rock, and His mercy in providing for the people, they uttered a rebuke; and then, by smiting the rock, took to themselves the honor that really belonged to God.

When called upon to act for God, they acted for themselves, and in their own name. They used for their own glory the power delegated to them by God. Let us beware that we do not fall into the same error.

Let us also note that if the punishment seems severe, we should recall that they had broken a type of Christ. Christ was the Rock. He was to be smitten at Calvary, that the water of life might flow forth. But He died once for sin (I Cor. 10:4) and is not to be smitten again. We need now only speak to Him in faith and receive life.

In Exodus 17:5, 6, Moses smote the rock, presenting the first half of the type foreshadowing the work of Christ; now he was to speak to it, fulfilling the type, and in unbelief he destroyed God's picture or type of redemption. It was a grievous sin.

IV. The Answer—Judgment (vv. 12, 13, 27, 28).

Moses and Aaron were not to be permitted to enter the promised land, because of their failure. No doubt it was true that their departure to be with the Lord was in a sense "far better" for them; and yet it cannot be denied that there was disappointment in not seeing the conclusion of their long and arduous labors.

The lesson is clear. We may serve God long and faithfully, but that is not any excuse for "letting down" in our closing years. We dare not presume, as though our intimate touch with God and place of leadership gave us an "inside track," a right to take it easy, spiritually or morally.

Sin is always sin; and it is especially grievous in one who has the privilege of high position and of power with God.

God buried His workmen; but His work went on. For Aaron there was his son Eleazar (v. 28). For Moses there was a Joshua, "full of the spirit of wisdom" (Deut. 34:9). It is always so. None of us is indispensable.

If you were to say the first bugle call of the day in the Army is "Reveille"—you'd be wrong. It's "First Call." But you probably know what cigarette gets first call with Army men—it's Camel. And Camel is the favorite with men in all branches of the service—Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, too. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

There are about 400 kinds of trees and vines in the world that contain rubber latex, but Hevea brasiliensis, native of Brazil, is recognized as the best for commercial purposes.

Don't keep your car idle too long with the tires carrying the load. Drive it a short distance periodically. This flexes the tires and will prevent deterioration.

The Army is conserving rubber. It is estimated that by 1944 crude rubber requirements per vehicle will be cut 63 per cent as compared to the amount of rubber needed by the vehicle at the outbreak of the war.

SUN AND HEAT STROKES

Two emergencies that come with hot weather are sunstroke and heatstroke. Whether the individual is working or at rest the sun may cause dizziness, headache, dryness of the skin, and difficulty in breathing. Suddenly the patient falls, convulsions occur, and sometimes is apparently completely paralyzed. There is flushing of the face, delirium, nausea, vomiting, a coated tongue, and high temperature—skin hot and red. This condition is called sunstroke or thermic fever. The patient is placed in a shady spot and ice or cold water is applied continuously to the surface of the whole body. Ice pack if available is placed behind ears and about the head.

Dr. Barton

However, what is called heat exhaustion is now more often seen than sunstroke. Heat exhaustion usually occurs where the individual is working hard amid great heat in a place where the ventilation is poor. There is a feeling of great weakness and the first thing noticed is that there is no perspiration on the skin which is very hot and dry, temperature below normal and pulse feeble.

In heatstroke the patient should be disrobed to the underwear and placed on his back in some cool shady place. Ice bags are applied to the head and both armpits. The use of hand fans (or towels) to stir up air currents is advisable. When the patient recovers consciousness he should be given increasing quantities of cold water by mouth and a quarter teaspoon of table salt with each glass of water.

In what is called heat exhaustion, which is a mild form of heatstroke, the body temperature instead of being high, as in heatstroke, may be below normal. Skin is pale and clammy and moist, breathing rapid and shallow. Treatment consists in placing patient in a cool place and giving him cool drinks of fruit juices and a quarter teaspoonful (15 grains) of table salt every three hours.

Getting the patient to a cool spot and giving cool drinks and table salt (to keep water in the body tissues) is the main thought in the treatment of heat stroke and heat exhaustion. It is the great loss of water and salt from the body tissues that brings on the symptoms.

Allergies Grouped Into Three Classes

Hay fever is a form of allergy—being sensitive to certain substances.

A simple definition of allergy is given by Dr. H. K. Detweiler, Toronto, in the Bulletin of the Academy of Medicine, Toronto. "Allergy is a condition of some individuals in which certain tissues react in an altered manner in the presence of specific substances (usually protein in nature) which, to the ordinary individual, are without effect."

Dr. Detweiler states that there are three main or major types of allergy or over-sensitiveness. These are (1) atopic allergy, (2) bacterial allergy, (3) contact allergy. Examples of atopic allergy are hay fever, pollen asthma, or asthma due to sensitiveness to protein of foods, furs, feathers, dander of animals, or various substances such as house dust, orris root, linseed.

Examples of bacterial allergy are tuberculin-sensitive individuals and patients suffering from asthma caused by sinusitis, bronchitis, and other infections.

Examples of contact allergy are skin inflammations due to contact with plants, chemicals and metals.

What about heredity as a cause of allergy? The atopic type if not really hereditary shows a definite tendency to follow the laws of heredity; bacterial allergy has not been definitely established as being of a hereditary nature; contact allergy is not hereditary.

What about treatment? Is the injection of pollen vaccine effective in preventing hay fever? Does avoiding using or small doses of the foods causing allergy prevent asthma or other allergic symptoms? Can asthmatic attacks be prevented by "desensitizing" these individuals with extracts of house dust, animal and other substances?

The great majority of these patients can obtain relief if they are patient enough to submit to the various tests necessary.

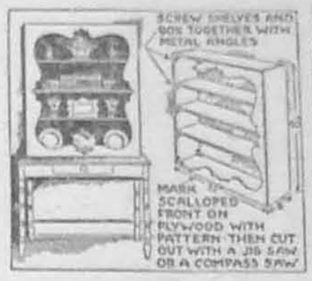
ON THE HOME FRONT with RUTH WYETH SPEARS



NO MATTER if you move from hither to yon or change from a spacious house to a single room there are certain treasures that will mean home to you. A few books, a piece of china and some perfectly useless but cheering bits of bric-a-brac—by all means take them with you and make a dramatic setting for them.

A shadow box cupboard will do the trick. The one shown here is light and substantial; will lend glamour even to dime store odds and ends, and may be placed on top of a table, a chest of drawers or a desk. No special skill and almost no tools are needed to make it.

If you do not have a saw to cut the scalloped frame, mark it on plywood and take it to the nearest woodworking shop to have it cut. You may have the straight boards cut at the lumber yard where you buy them. All you will have to do is screw them together; tack on the front frame and paint or stain to suit your room color scheme.

Outlines Work Of State's Planners

A comprehensive survey of landing fields, air navigational aids and other aeronautical facilities constitute only one phase of the many-fold activities of the West Virginia State Planning Board, Dean C. R. Orton, chairman of the Board, revealed yesterday in outlining the work of the Board of "directors of state activity."

In reply to a question as to the nature of the Board's program, Dr. Orton pointed out the following as a few examples of its broad field of activities:

Early in the present emergency, at a time when the mines were not operating at full capacity, the Board stimulated the federal government to induce domestic and industrial consumers to "stock pile" coal in anticipation of future needs.

The Board has also launched an investigation of the practicability of developing local ores for the production of sponge iron including the establishment of a pilot plant in West Virginia.

An inventory and analysis of surface and ground water supplies has been initiated. This study is designed to ascertain not only what needs to be done to keep in operation present water-using industries, but also how to maintain operation of these industries and interest new ones in locating in the state after the war. Agricultural, recreational, and wildlife aspects are also being considered.

In addition the Board has been instrumental in bringing about a clarification of the Motor Carrier Act governing the transportation of agricultural products and supplies to and from farms. It is reported that this has been a great help to our farmers.

The Board is also cooperating in the formation of sound legislation for the efficient and proper handling of chronically tax-delinquent lands, particularly as concerns the best use and disposal of such lands.

Other proposals for the physical, economic, and social development of the State which, upon careful study, were found to be sound have been approved and encouraged.

The Board is handling a constantly growing number of requests for information received from private citizens throughout West Virginia and from schools, public officials, departments, and agencies at all administrative levels in this and other states. An exchange of reports and bulletins is carried on with planning bodies in many sections of the country.

FBI Chief Endorses Religious Education Week Observance

Other National Leaders Declare Importance Of Christian Teaching

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Citing the rising tide of juvenile crime as a problem for church workers to help solve, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, endorses the nation-wide community observance of Religious Education Week, September 26 to October 3, in a statement made public today by Philip C. Landers, director of public relations of the International Council of Religious Education, sponsor of the observance.

"Every church organization should take an active interest in the problems of the young people," Mr. Hoover declared, "and see that their idle hours after school, week-ends and holidays are filled with wholesome recreation, teaching and understanding guidance. Proper application of the aims of Religious Education Week will be reflected in the results of the nation-wide fight against child delinquency."

Cooperation among churches of all denominations in thousands of communities in the United States and Canada will focus attention during Religious Education Week upon the theme, "Community Evangelism through activities such as 'home visitation' campaigns, church Christian fellowship meetings, receptions for public school teachers and Christian community service projects, Mr. Landers said.

The International Council is working cooperatively with the 42 Protestant denominations, 31 state councils and hundreds of city and county councils of churches and religious education which will take part in the 13th annual observance, in addition to ing community-wide programs during the week.

Governor Forrest C. Donnell of Missouri—former president of the Missouri Sunday School Association, now the Missouri Council of Churches—also has endorsed the observance of Religious Education Week in a statement sent to the International Council of Religious Education.

"Christian teaching emphasizes the value of every soul," Governor Donnell said. "Without such influences as are created by religion and Christian teaching, our nation would be in danger of grave decline in moral standards. With those influences we may advance, slowly though it be, toward attainment of individual and national ideals."

Adding Chic to Small Square Face

Photos, Glamour Magazine

It's surprising how glamour can be added to one's face by simple styling certain features (shown) to special shapes of heads, specialists say makes.

If you have a square face, don't dress your hair so shows to shoulder length, but at top and back at sides, where natural round glasses with a new bridge create a completely look at the brows.

A Substitute for Hell

Somewhere in New Guinea these wounded soldiers await evacuation. Flat on their backs, in the steaming heat of the jungle, where mosquitoes plague the air and ants and mosquitoes torment weary bodies, they dream of home . . . of clean white sheets and the touch of cool, comforting hands. You can help provide modern hospitals and the medicines they need for their recuperation by putting every dollar you can into War Bonds during the Third War Loan.

Feeder Calf Sales Highlight the 1943 Fall Farm Program

Largest Number in 13-Year Period; Two State Shows and Sales On Schedule This Year.

Breaking all previous records, West Virginia's thirteenth annual series of eight feeder calf sales to be held from September 30 to October 21 will include more than 2,000 high quality calves. The number may go as high as 2,500, officials in charge of the sales state.

As in the past, the series of sales begin with a state show and sale at Jackson's Mill on September 30. This event will bring together 225 head or more of the very best feeder calves in the state—the cream of the crop, which will be exhibited during the forenoon on the day of the sale. All sales will begin promptly at 1:00 p. m., EWT.

All of the calves to be sold in the sales were sired by purebred bulls. They have been dehorned and vaccinated against blackleg, and are free from tuberculosis and Bangs disease: All have been weaned and taught to eat grain, and all male calves have been castrated. About 60 per cent of the calves will be steers and 40 per cent heifers. The steers will average about 425 pounds each and the heifers about 400 pounds.

The calves will be graded and sold in uniform lots of the same breed, size, sex, and quality, with from 5 to 15 head of calves per lot.

Aberdeen-Angus Show and Sale

A new feature of the events this year is that in addition to the state show and sale at Jackson's Mill, which will be made up mostly of Herefords, there will be a state Aberdeen-Angus Show and Sale at Petersburg, Grant county, on October 8. Heretofore, the Petersburg event has been a sale only. This year with 300 or more top quality calves from the leading Angus-producing counties of the state, particularly Roane, Harrison, Monroe, Greenbrier, Mineral and Grant, the show on the forenoon of the day of the sale will be a real attraction, officials in charge of the events state.

All the sales will have more calves this year than ever before, and the total is considerable larger than at any time since the sales started 13 years ago. There will be decided increases in the number of calves over former years in the sales at Marlinton, Lewisburg, and a second sale to be held at Jackson's Mill on October 19, which with 600 or more calves will be the largest in the series.

Places and dates of the sales, other than the three mentioned, are: Marlinton, October 4; Lewisburg, October 6; Lambeston (near Elkshorn), October 11; Elkins, October 15; and a second sale at Lambeston on October 21.

Between 150 and 160 feeder calves will be in the group at the Marlinton sale, it is announced by County Agricultural Agent Bob Morgan.

All of the sales are sponsored by the West Virginia Livestock Association with the cooperation of the State Department of Agriculture and the Agricultural Extension Service of West Virginia University. Counsel Earl Wright will be the auctioneer.

County Health Office Affected by Nurse Shortage

The Health Department here became the latest victim of the national shortage of nurses with the resignation of Miss Rebecca Hill as County Health Nurse, it was reported this week.

Until a nurse is appointed, the County Health office in Marlinton will be open daily with Miss Virginia Young as secretary. Calls for nursing services will be answered by nurses from the District office at Lewisburg.

School children will be examined according to schedule as in previous years. Dr. Herbert Duncan will be in the office in Marlinton on every Thursday from 10:30 to 2:30 p. m. for immunization and other clinical services.

The Marlinton Well Baby Clinic will be conducted as usual on the second Thursday of each month from 2:00 to 4:00 p. m. The Baby Clinics at Cass and Slatyfork must be suspended until a nurse is secured.

The State and District offices are making every effort to secure a nurse for this county, Dr. Duncan said.

Millions of Volunteers Settle Down to Hard Grind for 3rd War Loan

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15—With the first burst of enthusiasm spent, the "third" army of more than 4,500,000 volunteers settled down today for a steady siege and a day-by-day advance to reach its quota of fifteen billion dollars in the Third War Loan Drive.

Reports from all sections of the nation in the first week of the drive indicated that the battle to "Back the Attack with War Bonds" is progressing "according to plan," but that every possible effort must be exhausted if the goal of at least an extra $100 War Bond for every income earner is to be reached.

First meager reports indicate that in some cities and in some sectors on this important battle front the immediate objective has been obtained and the quota met. In other sections a long hard pull will be necessary in the house-to-house and bench-to-bench canvass which has been undertaken in order to reach every man, woman and child in the United States.

This Third War Loan Drive is a challenge to the American people without parallel in history, for they are being asked to "lend" the largest sum of money ever raised in the life of any nation. It is a challenge to their will to sacrifice to "back the attack" of their husbands, sons, brothers and fathers who are sacrificing everything, even life, so that the people back home may continue to enjoy the freedom and liberty of the American way of life.

Reports from many of the urban sections of the nation indicate that workers are answering the challenge to send their dollars to war to "back the attack." "Pay cost" money, "patriotism" money, "new resistance" money, "new home" money is going into War Bonds for the duration, plus the assembly lines for tanks and planes, to speed today's job and guarantee a tomorrow America of tomorrow when every War Bond dollar will pay $4 for $3.

"Labor-management committees are working hand in hand; returned war heroes, film stars, bankers, housewives, professional men, workers, clerks and salesmen—men and women in every walk of life are demonstrating that War Bonds bring unity to American life and that the nation is bonded in a common purpose in this great financing task," Ted R. Gamble, national director of the War Finance Division of the Treasury, said here today.

"The people of the nation are demonstrating that Americans on the home front can and will match the performance of the invading armies in 'backing the attack' when they are called upon to do a job," Mr. Gamble said.

"Never before in history have a people in civilian life been asked to do a job comparable to the task which must be done in this Third War Loan," Mr. Gamble observed, "but we have a sustaining faith in the ability of the American people to make every sacrifice to meet every test with which they are faced, in the voluntary, democratic way so that our boys in the trenches and on the battle lines may have the tools with which to fight our victorious crusade."

Draft-Hit Local Businesses Are Remaining Open

Answering draft calls in Marlinton recently have been two of this town's young business men. Clark Brumagin who, with Mrs. Brumagin, operated the Marlinton Furniture Mart, is now serving in the U. S. Navy, and Glenn Shrader, owner of The Shrader Store, will leave Saturday for service with the U. S. Army.

To avoid the possibility of misunderstanding, the Journal is calling attention to the fact that these business places will remain open for business. Under the management of the owners' wives, both The Furniture Mart and The Shrader Store will continue to serve their customers.

JACK RICHARDSON TO TEACH AT G. M. S.

One of Pocahontas county's veteran teachers and leader in many civic enterprises here received a deserved promotion in his profession last week. Jack Richardson, who began his 12th year at Marlinton high school with the beginning of the present term, accepted a position as teacher at the Greenbrier Military School at Lewisburg, which was proffered by Col. Moore, owner of the famous school.

Mr. Richardson, a graduate of the local high school, attended Duke University at Durham, N. C., Marshall College at Huntington, and the Colorado State College of Education. At the military school he will teach physics and chemistry, subjects in which he majored and which he taught in the local high school.

Mr. Richardson has been active in church and civic movements, particularly in the Boy Scout organization, where he has served as a Scoutmaster for 16 years. He is at present serving for the third time as president of the Pocahontas Board of Trade, although his terms of leadership in the organization have not been consecutive. The family of Mr. Richardson will continue to live at their home on Seneca Trail, and Mr. Richardson also will continue to represent a number of clients in real estate transactions, and may be contacted at his home during week-ends.

W. M. Buckley of Buckeye has been chosen to fill the vacancy at the local high school caused by Mr. Richardson's resignation.

Child Dies Suddenly

Nellie Josephine Carpenter was born October 6, 1929. She departed this life September 15, 1943. She leaves to mourn their loss her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carpenter, three brothers, Johnnie, Franklin and William; one sister, Phyllis Jewel, and a host of friends and relatives.

Burial was made in the Cloonan Cemetery, following services in the Upper Church on Swago at 2:30 p. m., Friday, September 17, in charge of the Rev. James C. Wool, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Marlinton.

The child died suddenly after returning home from school.

IT Impresses ME

A CONTINGENT of Army Engineers caused some excitement last Sunday noon for our small town when they brought five of their favorite "girls" through Marlinton and took them out to dinner here . . . These "girls," incidentally, in case you're kinda slow, were five trailers and trucks of a Map Reproduction group, and were lovingly named "Mary," "Helena," "Flash" (that must have been a redhead), "Lillie," and "Delores" . . . and were they class — "Mary," for instance, containing an off-set printing press, a plate developing machine and a dark-room (oh baby!) was worth $90,000 . . . The other beauties also carried printing presses, cameras and varied equipment . . .

BUT the "girls" in the group were no more exciting than the boys, who were so real that when they walked into the restaurant, a local unmarried girl was heard to exclaim loudly, "My heavens, — men!" . . . I have heard a lot of singing about "A Heck of An Engineer" but it's my private guess that this author never met up with swell fellows like Lieutenant Radlinski and Lieutenant Tice, who were members of the corps which passed through here . . . And while these were the only ones of the group whose names we learned, the other officers and men evidenced in their demeanor that they're a pretty swell crowd . . .

THRILL of the visit, however, was experienced when Lieut. Radlinski took my little woman and Otis Webb and me for a ride in a "Jeep" . . . Anxious to show the thing off, when we were well aboard, the Lieutenant backed the automotive monstrosity away from the curb and then took out down Third avenue like blazes . . . Turning the corner and down by Clarence Smith's undertaking establishment (just to be handy, you know), our handsome driver never bothered to keep on paved roads, but getting a far-away look in his eye, he headed straight down to the Greenbrier (and it's kinda rough in that direction) . . . then skipped the ditches up toward the Malcomb taxi building, and back up Main street . . . To know how we enjoyed it, you need only listen to Don Mason's question to this editor when I alighted . . . He said, "What's your hair standing on end for?" . . . Of course, we murmured something about being wind-blown, which sounds alright to say . . .

THERE'S nothing to a dern "Jeep" except a motor and something to hold onto . . . And one doesn't realize how small they really seem until he climbs up into "Mary's" lap (tractor, don't forget) and looks out over her hood to the street below . . . Looks like a peanut down there . . .

AND DO THEY LIKE IT? . . . You bet they like it . . . And said with all manner of pride that on the way from Carolina up here (on the way to Elkins) that they just sat up there and sang "Didn't She Ramble?" . . .

THAT the thought about going out to dinner reminds me to ask my friend Odie Johnson if he sees any sense to these new rules governing restaurant etiquette . . . Such as: You can't serve a customer two cups of coffee at one sitting (but if he gets up, puts on his hat and goes out the door and comes back in, you may serve him another cup!) . . . or . . . No pie "al a mode" (but he can order a piece of pie and a dish of ice cream and when these are brought on two separate plates, he can dump his ice cream on his pie if he wants to!) . . . To me, and of course I don't have to do all that dish washing, this kind of stuff seems pretty silly . . . But it's like the current song hit, "If That's the Way You Want It, Baby, That's the Way It's Gonna Be" . . . A little exercise between courses may not be so bad at that . . . And anyway, I remember one day when a lot of customers who had left the restaurant found excuse to come back in after they had passed a USO troupe, including a blonde, which was going into the meal-house . . . People will do most anything, if properly attracted — or intensely forbidden! . . .

Impossible, Mac! . . .

To expect those Greenbank students to concentrate on book stuff when the board keeps sending you teachers like Nellie Maude Smith . . .

Yup, Yup! . . .

There is more evidence of the fall in our fiction than there is fiction in the fall.—H. C. Trumbull.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazi Forces Offer Stiff Resistance As Allies Continue Advances in Italy; Russ March Across Northern Ukraine; WFA Announces Control of Milk Sales

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

News of Italy's unconditional surrender was greeted with open jubilation in the garment manufacturing district of New York, with celebrants ankle deep in improvised confetti, etc., as shown above.

ITALY:
Battlefield, After All

Italy's unconditional surrender to the Allies did not spare that country from becoming a bloody battlefield in the war.

Trapped all along the Italian boot when the Badoglio government gave up the fight, German forces put up stiff resistance as Allied armies swarmed ashore to occupy the mainland. Bitter fighting occurred near Naples and in Rome, where Germans were reported to have seized control to establish their own puppet regime, in the name of Benito Mussolini.

Meanwhile, Italian service men, told to resist German attempts to prevent them from giving up, appeared divided in their loyalty to the Badoglio government. While Italian soldiers were reported aiding the Allies in the south, the Germans claimed many others were standing by the Axis in the north, where the Nazis planned a last ditch fight along the mountain range of the Po valley.

Escorted by the British navy, three Italian battleships and an assortment of cruisers and destroyers reportedly were steaming for Allied ports in North Africa, there to join in the fight against Germany.

Economic Problem

Though Italy's capitulation was of unquestioned military value to the Allies, its occupation posed difficult economic problems. To Calvin Baldwin of the office of foreign economic co-ordination will go the task of straightening the situation.

Calvin Baldwin

First, Italy is deficient in coal, iron and petroleum, though it has quantities of mercury, bauxite and sulphur. Secondly, the country's food production is unbalanced, insufficiencies in grains, meats, fish, oils and eggs offsetting surpluses in fresh, citrus and dried fruits, nuts, vegetables, cheese and rice.

Thus, if use is to be made of industrial facilities, raw materials would have to be brought in; if advantage is to be taken of her peculiar agricultural production, some provision of imports of other foods will have to be made.

RUSSIA:
Regain Resources

Proceeding to shorten their lines in Russia, made more necessary by the collapse of Italy, the Nazis fell back on the Dnieper river, surrendering the vital Donets industrial basin as they retreated.

Farther to the north, the Germans' withdrawal put Russia in possession of much of the fertile farmland of the Ukraine, famed for its wheat and cotton.

Although the Reds regained access to coal and iron and foodstuffs, the Germans' destruction of the Donets's factories and their requisition of the Ukrainian harvests deprived the Russians of immediate use of these resources.

In Moscow, a 324-gun salute marked the Russian successes.

CIVILIAN SUPPLIES:
Assure Stocks

Civilians were assured of supplies of such items as lamps and lanterns burning liquid fuel, bed springs, radiators, furnaces and boilers under a directive issued to manufacturers by the War Production board.

Under the order, manufacturers will set aside a certain percentage of their stock for civilian use. Any attempts of the army, navy, maritime commission or other government agencies to dip into these reserve stocks will be referred to the WPB, which will then determine whether the orders are to be honored.

WPB's regulation under which it will review requests of government agencies to get goods from civilian stocks, was a modification of a previous order, under which the agencies could only obtain such supplies with a Triple-A priority rating, reserved for strategic needs of the highest urgency.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Doom Jap Bases

Allied troops surrounding the Japanese New Guinea bases of Lae and Salamaua faced desperate last ditch opposition as 20,000 enemy troops, cut off from all supply from the north, were confronted with surrender or death.

American bombers pounded both bases, and at Lae, paratroopers who landed in the Markham valley to the west, beat forward through jungle brush to the outskirts of the town, while Australian ground forces, put ashore along the gulf to the east, closed in from that direction.

At Lae, the Japs' main defenses were built in two former plantations on either side of the town. Terraces and groves were fashioned into formidable bunkers, and it was against these that the Allies forces surged.

Farther to the south, the doughty Japanese garrison of Salamaua was pounded from the sea, as well as the air. Cruising close to shore, Allied naval vessels trained their big guns on the waterfront, smashing installations. Resisting to the last, a handful of enemy fighters rose up to challenge the bombardment, but two were shot down and a third damaged.

MILK QUOTAS:
At Current Levels

In order to maintain production of butter, cheese and evaporated and dried milk products, the War Food administration announced sales of fluid milk will be controlled through the establishment of dealers' quotas.

Quotas will be based on dealers' current deliveries, permitting civilians to purchase more milk than they consumed in 1942, but less than they might if supplies were available. Sales to hospitals, pregnant and nursing mothers and children will take precedence over other deliveries, it was said, and sales to bonus also will receive special consideration.

In heavily populated urban areas where the milk situation is particularly acute, the program will first be established. Administration expenses will be paid by an assessment on milk handlers.

CHINA:
U. S. Air Force Grows

The Japanese have sent a new Zero into Chinese skies, one with a higher ceiling and better diving characteristics, but gradual reinforcement of the 14th U. S. Air Force is making it more and more of a threat to the enemy's defensive and economic outpost on the Chinese mainland.

Gen. Claire Chennault

Shipment of Lightning P-38s to the 14th AAF gives Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault a speedy fighter to use in combination with bombers at his command.

Although the 14th AAF has been used in support of Chinese land armies and for pounding Jap communications, storehouses and industrial installations set up in occupied sections of the country, it looms of greater strategical importance as a threat to the Japanese homeland if northern bases are gotten.

AGRICULTURE:
Less Cotton

Continued hot, dry weather causing considerable deterioration in the western portion of the cotton belt, was a contributing factor in the department of agriculture's forecast as of September 1 of a 1943 cotton crop of 11,670,000 bales, 7 per cent below the August 1 estimate.

Lint yield per harvested acre was indicated at 25.7 pounds above the 10-year average, but below the record 1942 figure.

Regions hit hardest according to the department of agriculture, include Texas, where production estimates as of September 1 were 375,000 bales below a month ago; Arkansas, down 200,000 bales; Oklahoma, down 125,000 bales; Mississippi, down 120,000, and Tennessee, down 45,000 bales.

Wheat in Loan

Because farmers are able to obtain more for their wheat on the market than the $1.28 a bushel advanced on loans by the Commodity Credit corporation, pledges on the 1943 crop approximate half of the total prevailing at this time last year. Then, 94,418,000 bushels were being held by the U. S.

On the 44,355,725 bushels in loan, $56,964,137 was paid out, the CCC stated. Warehouses held 39,370,000 bushels, and 4,985,459 bushels were stored on farms. Officials estimated that the entire 1943 loan stock would not exceed 200,000,000 bushels.

As of September 8, the government held about 127,000,000 bushels of wheat, and was disposing of 1½ million bushels daily for feed in deficit areas.

RUBBER:
Synthetic Hopes High

If all of the necessary materials going into the manufacture of synthetic rubber can be supplied in 1944, production should approximate 850,000 tons, Bradley Dewey, newly named rubber director, declared.

Even as Dewey spoke, the War Production board ordered 12 major textile mills to devote their facilities exclusively to the fabrication of cotton and rayon tire cords. Previously, the mills had been making cotton duck for the army.

Production of synthetic rubber in September will exceed 30,000 tons, Dewey said, and tires made from the material are equal to all but the top-grade from natural rubber. Next year, a minimum of 30 million tires will have to be made and distributed for essential civilian driving, Dewey added.

CONGRESS BACK:
Studies Draft, Taxes

The question of deferring fathers and of raising an additional 12 billion dollars in taxes confronted congress when it resumed sessions.

Consideration of a proposal by Sen. Burton Wheeler to postpone induction of dads until January 1 loomed in the senate, while Rep. Andrew J. May declared he would offer a bill to not only prohibit drafting of fathers — but also setting a limit on the size of the army.

Rep. Andrew May

President Roosevelt's request for 12 billion dollars of new taxes to raise total receipts to 50 billions a year is expected to arouse bitter debate in congress over methods for obtaining the money. A sales tax, preferably on manufacturers, a spending tax over certain exemptions, and increased income and corporation taxes have been suggested as revenue sources.

HOGS:

To bring the livestock population in line with feed supplies, the government announced that effective October 1, 1943, it will support prices for good to choice hogs between 180 and 240 pounds at $12.50 a hundred pounds, $1.25 less than at present. Under the new program, heavy hogs will not be supported.

Pigs farrowed next spring will be sold under the new regulation. According to the government, prospective [illegible] will justify a [illegible] million pigs.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

MANPOWER: Physically fit single persons are now liable for military service or work in essential industries, as well as any married person who may be necessary to render those capable of such support. The ruling was announced by the Social Security administration, Paul McNutt, administrator, as measure to relieve needs of the war.

WAR PRISONERS: About 1,200 American servicemen are held in Italian prison camps. These men will probably be released soon, as a result of the Italian unconditional surrender.

SHIPPING: American shipyards have completed and launched more than 20 million tons of merchant vessels since Pearl Harbor. December 7, 1941, anniversary.

UNEXPENDED WAR FUNDS MUST BE WATCHED

THAT CONGRESS has fully provided funds for war purposes is demonstrated by the fact that of the money appropriated for expenditure up to July 1 of this year, 203 billion dollars had not been used but was still subject to the call of the administrative departments. It means the departments had in their hands a sum equivalent to an average of $1,561 for each man, woman and child in the nation. That is nearly twice the amount that has actually been expended for war purposes during the years of 1941, '42 and '43. From July 1, 1940, to July 1, 1941, expenditures for war purposes amounted to $6,301,043,165. For the next year, ending July 1, 1942, the expenditures amounted to $26,011,065,089, and for the last year, ending July 1, 1943, the total was $70,219,400,244.

In addition to the 203 billions of unexpended balances, congress has provided well over 100 billion for war purposes for the current fiscal year, ending July 1, 1944.

Senator Byrd is asking the "why" of these tremendous unexpended balances. He sees in them a danger to American institutions in placing so much, evidently unneeded money, in the hands of government departments. Congress could, and possibly may, recall such balances as have not been expended, or for which contracts have not been let. Congress has voted money like the proverbial drunken sailor. If it is not needed it would be well to relieve the taxpayers of as much of the war burden as is possible of saving. That $1,561 is quite a sum for each one of us to meet. That, plus the individual portion of the appropriations for this year, means an average of better than $2,500 for each man, woman and child, or a mortgage for each family of five of $12,500.

WISHFUL THINKING WILL NOT WIN ELECTIONS

WISHFUL THINKING does not win elections. Before the votes are counted the "outs" can wish themselves in and the "ins" can wish themselves in again. Even at this early date wishful thinking is being indulged in by candidates for nominations for every office up to that of President.

Listening in at occasional small gatherings of party workers or friends of some candidate reminded me of one man who did more than wishful thinking. Some two weeks before the election in which Governor Landon was defeated for the presidency, in company with a Chicago acquaintance, I paid a call on Jim Farley at Democratic headquarters in New York. My Chicago acquaintance was for Landon, was wearing a big Landon sunflower and in a wishful thinking way was confident of the governor's success. After I had introduced him to the Democratic chairman he expressed that confidence in general terms.

Jim Farley pulled a number of sheets of paper out of his desk, a sheet for each state, and taking them one at a time, he told my acquaintance just what would happen in each state. Landon would carry two states. That Farley knew was demonstrated two weeks later when the votes were counted. He knew. I do not know the details of how he knew but Jim Farley was not a political organizer who depended on wishful thinking to produce the results he desired.

POST WAR RELIEF AND UNCLE SAM

IT IS BEING PROPOSED in Washington that philanthropic Uncle Sam, representing 6 per cent of the world population, should carry the greater portion of the post war relief and reconstruction expense. To do so the 20 cents, or more, out of each dollar in his pay envelope, the worker is now paying as income taxes, will be heavily increased and the American standard of living must be reduced to that of European and Asiatic nations. It all sounds very nice as expressed in idealistic words but will the American workman stand for such a program as expressed in his dollars? That new car, to be purchased when the war ends, would be definitely out and it would be potato or cabbage soup, instead of a beefsteak, for his dinner. America should, and will, do its share but let us be practical about the doing.

SHOULD Vice President Wallace put all the corporations out of business, as he threatens to do, who will pay the taxes needed to operate an expensive government?

WE CAN, IN TIME, pay off the war debt, large as it will be, by getting back to that adequate simplicity of government we enjoyed in the early years of this century. The cost in those years was well under a billion dollars a year and we had all the government we needed or wanted. We did not have, or know, the meaning of "bureaucrats."

Tripartite Picture Clearer Since Meeting in Quebec

U. S., England, Russia Agreed on Fundamental Policies; Observers Optimistic Concerning War and Post-War Cooperation.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

The ink is now dry on the secret footnotes which appear in the memoranda officially recorded after the long and quiet conversations which took place in the presidential study in the White House when the Allied strategists worked out the end of another chapter in the history of World War II.

My own modest notations, scribbled on the backs of envelopes, and on scratch pads, and written in taxicabs, leaning against a White House elm after a press and radio conference, taken down while the President or other officials were speaking, make a clearer pattern.

Words and phrases take on new meanings, rough sketches are filled out in revealing detail.

The speculation, the criticism, the attacks and the apologies which swirled about the Allied policy toward Russia, for instance, it is plain now was built mostly on half knowledge.

While press and public were crying for a tripartite meeting of the representatives of Russia, Britain and the United States, the arrangements for a whole series of meetings were already being made. It was not until almost the end of the Roosevelt-Churchill visit that we learned, first, that the tripartite meetings "on the foreign minister level" had been definitely agreed upon and, second, (which no one then guessed) that a commission was to be formed of representatives of all three powers to discuss the situation arising out of the Allied victories in the Mediterranean in which Russia is so deeply concerned but which, militarily speaking, she has been forced to view from a distance. When we received that news, we were unable to indicate its source.

The Darlan Question

Another source of bitter controversy which has been allowed to fester was cleared up at the same time. Certain groups in England and America from the very beginning violently objected to the choice of Darlan as the man with whom the Allies dealt in North Africa. There have been two revelations on that score which, had they come earlier, might have cleared the air.

One concerns the Russian attitude —and the Russians certainly ought to lean as far to the left as anyone. It now seems that the Soviet leaders, frankly opposed to Darlan and all he stood for, actually accepted the British and American policy on the basis of an old Russian saying that in matters of military strategy —or comparable situations—it is sometimes necessary to deal with the devil and his grandmother.

A word from the chief of staff revealed in his annual report to the secretary of war is interesting in this connection. He says of the diplomatic preparation before the invasion of Africa: "Should an approach be made to a single Frenchman who proved unsympathetic to our purpose, we risked the slaughter of our soldiers on the beaches of North Africa as well as decisive losses to our shipping . . . unexpectedly, Admiral Jean Darlan, Petain's designated successor, and commander-in-chief of all French forces, was found to be in Algiers visiting his sick son when our forces landed. He was taken into protective custody and when it was found that French leaders stood loyal to the Vichy government, a series of conferences immediately followed with the purpose of calling a halt to the French resistance against General Patton's task force in the vicinity of Casablanca."

The Background

Then, on the morning of November 11, the Germans invaded France and Darlan obligingly rejected the pseudo-independent Vichy government and assumed authority in North Africa in the name of Marshal Petain and ordered the French to cease all hostilities.

Just what pressure or argument was used in getting Darlan to yield to Allied wishes has never been revealed or what his motives may have been—they may indeed have been prompted by the devil or his grandmother—but those who knew the inside military expediency, did not quarrel with his action. Death took Darlan from the picture. It did not end the arguments, but since we know now that the head of the Communist state of Russia was also to swallow Darlan, the squeamishness of some of the critics seems a little far fetched.

In the days that followed the recall of the Soviet ambassadors to London and Washington, the outcry over the absence of Stalin at Quebec increased. Roosevelt, Churchill and Secretary Hull were blamed—there was the blow-up over the charges by a columnist who said Hull was anti-Russian.

I talked with Secretary Hull about that time. Whatever his feelings may be regarding communism, he indicated from his remarks to me that Russia was looking sympathetically on the attempts at a joint conference, and a few days later a high British source stated flatly there was no great divergence of views between the Soviets and the Allies.

Agreement

Both were thoroughly agreed on the necessity of the destruction of Nazi tyranny and Prussian militarism, and it was revealed that Marshal Stalin was rising in prestige with the army and that the Soviet army was rising in prestige with the Russian people until it was on a ready on a level with the communist party itself. This seemed to indicate, as Captain Rickenbacker said when he returned from Russia, that the ideologies of the policies and the capitalist nations were growing nearer.

Today, as Washington looks back on this last visit of Prime Minister Churchill, there is a feeling that not only are Britain and the United States closer in both their war and their post-war aims, but that the possibility of bringing the Soviets into the circle is greater. One reason for this is that certain problems on which there has been disagreement have been met and threshed out successfully between Roosevelt and Churchill and the way is open to a much more extended discussion with Stalin's representatives.

Meanwhile, the position of Secretary Hull, within the administration has been greatly strengthened as one after another, he has taken over the functions of all agencies which have any dealings whatsoever with foreign countries. He has placed the question frankly before the President who had to choose between his secretary of state and those who opposed him inside and outside of the state department.

Hull's Position

Secretary Hull's position is this: the policies which I have sponsored and insisted upon have justified themselves. Either my department must have full authority in the field of foreign relations or I will hand in my portfolio.

The President faces, first, a congress which has had time to think over its position, has heard the complaints and received the advice of its constituents. It returns determined to imprint its will on national policy, foreign and domestic. Its texture is and has been for some time strongly away from the so-called new-deal policies, straight toward the conservative side. Secretary Hull probably stands highest, has more friends, and can exert more influence with congress than any member of the cabinet. The President needs a congress which will stand behind him if he is to carry out the plans for further conduct of the war and the winning of the peace according to methods he believes it is necessary to employ.

And, of course, there is the fourth term ahead, for continuance in office is essential, the President's friends believe, if he is to mold the post-war world.

Secretary Hull is his anchor to windward. This is due to his political influence and also because he and what he symbolizes both at home and abroad, have become inextricably bound up in world negotiations.

And for the President, there is but one objective now—that is, to be the peacemaker as he was the war leader. All else—choice of counsellors, domestic policies, must dovetail into that purpose.

ABIDING VALUES FROM ISRAEL'S HISTORY

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 11:13-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people.—Proverbs 14:34.

What makes a nation great? God's dealings with Israel answer that question. The history which we have briefly touched upon in our study of the first four books of the Bible is reviewed in Deuteronomy.

Moses, realizing that the end was at hand for him and that a new generation was about to go into the promised land, reviewed the history of the people, restated their laws, and renewed the appeal of God for their loyal obedience. This record is found in the Book of Deuteronomy, from which our lesson is taken.

We find here that the nation which is truly great—

I. Worships the True God (vv. 13-15).

There is a fundamental factor which must underlie all real nationalgreatness—love of God. This has as inseparable corollary—serving him "with all your heart, and all your soul."

Says the wise man of Proverbs (14:34), "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." We have well-nigh forgotten that fact. We need to be reminded of it again in God's word to Israel.

What is the result? The blessing of God upon the land, the giving of abundant harvest, in fact, the openhanded generosity of God.

II. Heeds God's Warning (vv. 16, 17).

This is the negative side. God dealt with Israel through promises if they were faithful, and the threat of judgment if they forgot Him.

One is as important as the other in the leading of a nation—and in the rearing of children. We, like our heavenly Father, should faithfully keep every promise; but we should just as surely fulfill every warning of coming judgment.

America has seen the handwriting of God in warning concerning its waywardness and sin. Will it heed and avoid further judgment?

III. Honors God's Word (vv. 18, 19).

Loving God and His Word is not a matter for theological speculation or for sanctimonious discussion in some fact cloister. Thank God the Christian faith is at its best in the ordinary affairs of life. It finds its proper place in the tender relationship of parent and child. Its teachings are pure, delightful, simple and entirely appropriate to any occasion, whether one sits or rises, walks or lies down. God's words are the words to be laid up in the heart and in the soul, to be taught to our children, to be the constant and normal subject of conversation.

IV. Testifies for God (vv. 20, 21).

Here again we have the home before us. And it is, of course, the home which makes the nation. If the home speaks for God, the nation will do so inevitably and effectively.

We may not, as did the pious Jew, fasten a little container bearing God's Word on our doorpost, but we may make the home itself and the life of its inhabitants an effective testimony for God before our neighbors.

It is obvious that the home either speaks for or against God. A profession of faith in Him, an outward conformity to adherence to religious principles which does not vitally affect our dealings with one another or with the community in which we live—these clearly testify not for but against Him. On the other hand, who can estimate the value of a quiet and orderly Christian home? Freedom to be on a dusty city street, or on a quiet country road, is a right that cannot be taken from us.

V. Trusts in God for Victory (vv. 22-25).

God promised that if Israel diligently kept the commandments, then God would act in the ways that would be a nation that would destroy and dispossess those enemies, and prosper in every good thing.

God desires the nation which has the home in mind before the other interests of the earth clutter the programs.

The promise of the Lord for Israel was the greatest one that had ever been known. Israel had but to obey and then look in the land. The lands of the land which it occupied in good time, we started a step in the direction that would be the reason in Palestine.

God's ways are large plans. He promises to us, but wants to be sure that we are ready for the responsibility. We need to learn a new life in the world.

The land that he was to award Israel was to be won by the promise of God. God would go with them, but they had to fight the battles. Will we feel for the same things?

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

If authorities prove to be correct, post-war tires may give 75,000 or more miles of service. Super-tough rayon, nylon or improved cotton carcass will help to make this mileage possible.

Army raincoats formerly containing 40 per cent crude rubber now are made almost entirely of synthetic resin and all-treated material. Crude rubber content of boots and overshoes has been cut about 40 per cent.

A complete armored division on the road has 13,443 tires in use, not counting spares and reserve supplies.

But It Seems the Simple One Was Not Old Andy

In a little wayside town there lived old Andy, who was what is called in some parts a "natural." He was simple-minded and the villagers used to show him off to visitors by offering him two coins, a big five cent piece and a small silver dime. Andy would invariably take the nickel.

One day a visitor from other parts said to him: "Say, Andy, don't you know the difference between a nickel and a dime?"

"Sure," said Andy, "I know the difference between a nickel and a dime, but if I took the dime once, they would never offer me either one again."

Singing Sands

The "singing sands" of the Arabian desert have mystified travelers for thousands of years. These sands produce the most unusual sound effects, ranging from the rumble of drums to the high-pitched twanging of harp strings. Sounds are produced over the musical dunes by the movement of sand grains in the wind.

Only sand grains of a certain size, shape, and uniformity will produce these interesting sounds. This accounts for the vast acreages of silent sand in many lands.

Aviator's Toothache

A dental cavity that never bothers an airman on the ground will usually give him a toothache at altitudes from 10,000 to 30,000 feet, owing to the expansion of body gas at low atmospheric pressure, says Collier's. In several cases, the carious condition producing the pain was in such an early stage that it was not detectable in an X-ray photograph.

In the Navy a floor is a "deck," doors are "bulkheads," downstairs is "below," and a cigarette is a "Camel." At least, Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men, as it is among men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And a carton of Camels is a favorite gift. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

"NEVER THOUGHT I'D BE REGULAR AGAIN!"

Cereal Brings Relief After Years of Dosing

Even if you have suffered for years don't lose hope. Read this happy experience!

"I'd had common constipation so bad, I knew something just had to be done. Finally, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, and I was never so happy in my life as when I found I was joining the 'regulars' again. Because that was one club I never dreamed I'd be able to join." Mrs. Daisy Dean, Columbia, Tennessee.

How can ALL-BRAN'S amazing results be explained—when so many other methods fail? Scientists say it's because ALL-BRAN is a rich source of cellulosic elements—lack of which is a common cause of constipation. These special cellulosic elements help the intestinal flora fluff up and lighten the contents of the colon for easy, natural evacuation! KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a "purgative" that robs the intestines of water! Not "roughage" that acts by sweeping you out! It's a gentle-acting, natural "regulating" food!

Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly! Drink plenty of water! See if you, too, aren't amazed at the results! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek!

Ranger's Information

By W L. MAULE
District Ranger

Fall is here with its maturing of field crops. Farmers are hard-put to get sufficient labor to put away their crops. Fall weather and frosts bring the fall of leaves in the forest. Fire danger is thereby increased. With so many men gone to the armed forces or to industry, those of us who remain must be more careful of fire in the woods. If added care on our part is required to keep fire out of the forests, let us use that care.

If a fire occurs, its control draws men from harvesting crops or working in the woods. These fires must be controlled at all costs since lumber is vitally needed by the armed forces in huge quantities. If mature timber is merely killed it can be harvested without too serious loss, but what about the reproduction, or timber too small for the saw? We must think and act now because the future must be cared for as well as present needs.

Pulpwood is badly needed as well as all kinds of timber. Put your timber to the best possible use. If good for pulp timber put it into pulpwood. If it can go into longer lengths it may be used for ship timbers, boards or planks, or the 1,000-and-1 other urgent needs of a nation at war. Despite all this, think of the future and improve your timber stand and do not seriously deplete it by illogical cutting. Remember that a too small log will not pay its way even despite high prices. In a few years, with good care and management, the tree that is now too small to cut will provide more lumber and demand a higher price. Your good judgment in cutting timber now to improve your stand of timber rather than make a source of little or no income and a drain on the pocketbook in paying taxes, by poor judgment in cutting. If you have timber for sale find out its ultimate and best use and then see that it is so used.

It is true that we must keep up our own establishments, but new buildings if not urgently needed must wait until after we win this war. We will be more loyal now in seeing to it that fire is kept out of the woods, that timber is cut and used to further the war effort, than to have timber burned or go into things not directly aimed at winning the war.

LAST winter was hard on field seed production—a lot of it was winter killed during the severe weather. Along with the weather, labor shortages and increasing Lend-Lease shipments have cut down on supplies available to patrons. Some seed stocks are going to be very short—particularly legumes. Southern States seed men report that Red, Mammoth and Alsike Clover will be on the short side . . . alfalfa will be scarce . . . and the supply of Crimson Clover will be about 20% smaller than last year. Vetch and Rye Grass supplies are also limited . . . and small grain seeds are definitely short.

All this emphasizes the importance of ordering seed early. Talk over your plans now with your local Southern States Cooperative Service Agency and book ahead for your own protection.

Once you've had a good dose of the Red Measles, you don't have to worry about them from then on. That's what happens to Clover and Anthracnose disease. Clover that's grown in the Midwestern and Eastern states where Anthracnose is prevalent develops a resistance to this disease. That's why all Southern States Clover Seed is selected from the Anthracnose belt. This Anthracnose-resistant Clover Seed is clean, hardy and highly resistant to injury from this disease which is common to Southern States territory.

Remember, feed starts with seed. Through Southern States Cooperative which had its beginning in 1923 as the Virginia Seed Service, farmers have been providing themselves with high quality adapted seed for the past twenty years.

U-S-A-FACT that farmers who purchase Southern States Kem-Fos treated seed will get up to six extra fast-germinating quarts in every bushel at no extra charge.

New Timber Record Set

CHARLESTON, Sept. 23.—Timber sales off of Monongahela National Forest during the past fiscal year totaled 7,786,000 board feet with a stumpage value of $40,954.05. This represented the greatest value of timber sold in the history of the forest, according to the report of Forest Supervisor Arthur A. Wood, made to the State Conservation Commission. The quantity sold was not as great as in the previous year when sales amounted to 12,811,000 board feet, said Wood, but a higher price was realized. The timber went to the federal prison camp at Millpoint for the manufacture of ship furniture, mats, etc. for the Maritime Commission.

The supervisor reported a better than 100 per cent reduction in both number of fires and burned area over the previous year's report for the fall and spring fire seasons.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former newspaper feature editor has been inducted into the army and has spent some time in training at Fort Bragg. In his advice to prospective selectees, Private Hargrove had advocated a pre-induction period of "painting the town red." Once in the army he thinks "an open mind" is the best policy for the "first three weeks are the hardest." Some of the more fundamental phases of army life have gone over Private Hargrove's head and his conduct has landed him often on KP duty. He has been classified as a cook. Between his KP duty and his regular cook assignment he has spent considerable time in the kitchen.

CHAPTER VII

One of the nicest things about working in the kitchen in Battery C of the 13th Battalion has been the knowledge that its number-one chow hound, Buster Charnley, would drop around after supper and the conversational fat. It's like a letter from home to listen to Buster's slow and mournful drawl, and his refreshingly dry humor is a pick-me-up at the end of a long, hot afternoon.

Buster came prancing up the chow line, the other evening with a grin that started at the back of his head and enveloped his face from the nose down.

"What's eating you, Walter," I asked him, "—besides that egg-sucking grin?"

"Leaving here, boy!" he sang. "You won't see me around for three months. And when you see me, son, you'll see stripes on my sleeves and a look of prosperity on my clean-cut Tarheel face!"

The man behind him wanted to get to the mashed potatoes, so Buster had to move on down the line, I got the whole story from one of the kaypees while I waited for him to make his evening call.

Of the 200-odd men in Battery C, two men had been selected for three months' training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. At the end of their three months, they will come back as gunnery instructors, with a non-commissioned officer's rating and a specialist's extra pay on top of that. Mrs. Walter Charnley's little boy Buster was one of the two men selected.

One of the sergeants near here came back from a recent leave with one of the most glorious shiners that ever darkened the human eye.

"Run into a door?" I asked him.

"Gave a guy the wrong answer," he replied simply, "or rather, the answer he didn't want."

I looked at his face; his teeth were all there and his jaw was still in one piece. I looked at his hands; the knuckles showed the marks of service.

"I was at a party," he went on, "when this fellow who lives next door to my folks wants to know 'how's the morale in the Army?'

"Leaving here, boy," he sang; "You won't see me around for three months. Then I'll be wearing stripes on my sleeves."

'Excellent,' I tell him; 'excellent!' He looks me up and down sort of pitying-like and wants to know don't I read the magazine stories about how poor it is. Well, I tell him, 'I spend all my time with the boys and I believe what I see more than what I read.'

"He goes on from there making cracks at the Army and the country and the suckers we are for giving our time for what's not worth fighting for in the first place. I listen politely for a while, because even though I'm not in uniform I don't want to look rowdy. I stand as much as I can and then I ask him to his feet. It isn't long before his three brothers join the fight. It was one of the brothers put his finger ring in my eye."

"Brother," I told him, "that ain't a black eye. That's a badge."

"I lost the fight," he said.

"You won the argument, though," I told him.

"I'd like to use the sergeant's name, but he made me promise not to."

"I told the Old Man," he said, "that I got the shiner playing baseball."

"How can I fit you into a coat," moaned Supply Sergeant Israel, "with you fidgeting around like a pea horse at the post? Stand still, darn you, stand still!"

"Reckons by Gorey, Thomas," I overheard, "you're getting to be the busiest old maid in the outfit. You are mentioning."

"In the first place, my mom," he said, "don't call me Thomas or try to get nasty familiar with your betters and betters. In the second place, don't argue with me. In the third place, don't fidget in the first place. And in the fourth place, don't agitate me unnecessarily. I'm at the end of my patience with you and I ain't feeling in no holiday spirit anyway."

I buttoned the handsome winter blouse and he stepped back to inspect it with the eye of an artist. "Every time my wife gets mad at me, she has her picture taken to send to me. The picture I got today showed she's going to eat my heart out unmercifully when I can't put off my furlough any longer and I have to go home. And with domestic difficulties on my hands, I have to fit your winter uniforms."

He yanked at my coattail, straightened the collar and scratched his head. "Hargrove—37 long," he yelled to the boy at the desk.

"Man that is born of woman," I comforted him, "is of many days and full of trouble."

"Git off the platform and into this overcoat," he sighed. He held the coat while I got into it and he slapped my hand for fidgeting again. "Sometimes I wonder why I go to so much trouble keeping you boys dressed right. Here I spend the whole afternoon wiping sweat out of my eyebrows, just to see that your clothes fit you and you won't look like a bunch of bums—which you are.

"Do you know what some ungrateful kitchen termite said the other day? He started putting it around that the Army could double itself in half an hour by filling up the extra space in its trousers. Do your trousers fit you bum?" He straightened the pleats in the back of the overcoat and gave the tail an unnecessarily vicious yank.

"Did I say they didn't?" I groaned, raising my arms despairingly. "Just because somebody else says you stretch the coat in the back so the man will think it fits right in the front, you have to go picking on me!"

"Me pick on you?" he screamed. "It's a wonder my nerves ain't completely shot! Do I come around and put signs on the door saying, 'Walk Up One Flight and Save Five Dollars'? Do I throw gunny sacks on your bed and ask you to take up the cuffs two inches?

"With my thankless job, it's a wonder I haven't collapsed before this. I wish I was a permanent kitchen police instead of a supply sergeant. Hargrove — 37 long! NEXT!"

"This battery is my baby," Corporal Henry Ussery said, loosening his belt for a real bull session. I've watched it grow from thutty-one men to what it is now. It was hard work building up this battery to what it is now, but it's worth it when you look around and see what you've done."

The assembly sighed en masse and decided to loosen its belts. Ussery was wound up again.

"When I got here, there wasn't anybody here but the instructors. We spent four weeks eating dust and running rabbits. There I was—I'd spent thutteen months learning the old drill and tactics to where I reckon I had it down better than any man in the whole Army. Then they started this 'minute Army,' with a bunch of green ignorant Yankees—and I had to teach them what they had to know!"

The bull session nodded wisely and Corporal Ussery went on. "Now, this young Corporal Joe Gantt, for instance. Now, this Corporal Gantt, when he first came in, was one of the greenest rookies in the bunch. But he snapped out of it and made corporal in four months.

"Was that soldiering," a voice broke in, "or handshaking—as the Latins used to say, mittus floppus?"

"Much as I can't stand Gantt, I'll have to admit it was soldiering. That's the way it is. You sweat your head off hammering the drills and the calisthenics and the military courtesy and guard duty and the physical hygiene and the manual of arms into them. They're all clumsy and awkward as a bear in an egg crate at first, but then you can see them, after a while, snapping into it and getting better and better. By the time we've had them thutteen weeks, and they're ready to be assigned to their posts, they're as keen and alert as a bunch of West Point cadets. They're extra good cooks and better soldiers."

"Isn't a good soldier a specialist at griping and growling?" somebody asked him.

"Griping is an art, just like goldbricking is an art. Before you leave here, you learn that you don't enjoy griping a bit when you spread your energy all over everywhere, griping about everything. You learn to choose one thing and specialize in griping about that.

"If you want to be a specialist at griping, you have to get on your toes. You get to where your clothes are comfortable. Where you used to think the food was terrible, now you pretend that you don't get enough of it. You like the beds and by nine o'clock you're sleepy. So you have to find something special to gripe about. If you haven't got any originality at all, pick you out one special noncom and gripe about him.

"Now, you take Private Hargrove, for instance. First came here, he griped about me telling him he was carrying his rifle wrong. Now he gripes when I tell him he's carrying it right. He might have something there. He still carries it like it was a 75-millimeter gun. He's getting so shiftless, even at griping, that he can't find anything to beef about except not getting any mail. I'm going to write all his creditors, so he won't even be able to gripe about the mail."

Somewhere on the wild coast of South Carolina, the battalion in which I cook is being treated to a weekend to combine business with pleasure. We can romp in the Atlantic while we get a "taste of the field." With the wind blowing the sand into kitchens and pup tents alike, it will be nice to get back to

At night we sleep, or simulate sleep, in pup tents made by our own hands with loving care.

Fort Bragg for a taste of the food we eat. A vexed soldier here doesn't grate his teeth. He crunches them.

We made the trip here in lorries, which are the mechanical age's nearest approach in appearance to covered wagons. You've probably seen them rolling noisily but smoothly through town—large canvas-topped trucks with a folding bench down each side inside. You'd expect to be hauled out of one of them, beaten to death, at the end of a 130-mile trip. They give a tolerably bumpy ride, just tolerably.

When we started pitching camp, about a quarter of a mile back from the beach, we found the place already inhabited — by cannibals. These creatures, which masquerade as harmless flies and even camouflaged by the harmless sounding name of sand flies, must have vampire blood back in the line somewhere.

I don't bear any grudge against the easygoing, good-natured house fly—in fact, I feel rather cruel when I squash one for tickling me—but it arouses my pioneer fighting spirit to see a stunted horsefly light on my bare leg, make himself sassily comfortable and start draining off my life's blood. But what can you do? Slapping one only serves to make him mad at you.

At night we sleep, or at least we simulate sleep, in pup tents made by our own hands with loving care, blood, sweat, tears, two pieces of waterproof cloth, two lengths of rope, and a handful of turned lumber.

I share my little duplex with Private Warren, the new student cook who told me the story about the man at the boarding house. When I stumbled home last night, primed to the gills with a blend of sand and salt water, I discovered that we had an overnight guest! The chief cook on our shift, in the task of packing the field kitchen, had neglected to put his own field pack (tent half, blankets, etc.) on the truck, so he decided to drop over and have us put him up for the night.

A pup tent, as you probably don't need to be told, will accommodate two men, provided neither of them walks in his sleep. If three men are to sleep in one tent, at least two of them must be midgets or babes in arms. Cooks should never sleep two to a tent, because of their tendency toward plumpness.

We arranged ourselves in the tent by wrapping knees around the tent poles, putting all feet outside for the night and raising one side of the tent high enough to make a rustic sleeping porch of the whole affair.

The guest proved to be one of those loathsome creatures who pull all the covers to their side of the bed. We had quite a lot of trouble with him, since he slept in the middle and rolled up in both our blankets. We remedied this by waiting until he started snoring, then recovered our blankets, rolling ourselves in them and throwing a raincoat over him.

The three-man arrangement was very uncomfortable for a while. When I finished opening my eyes by scooping the sand from them, I found that I had rolled through the opened side of the tent and spent the night under a myrtle bush ten yards down the slope.

During my first off hour, I succeeded in getting a tan which must have darkened the very marrow of my bones. My chest, back, and legs looked the color of a faded danger flag and smelled like the roast pork that the cook forgot to watch. After that, the surf and the sun went their ways and I went mine.

Good Breads

"I want to know how to make good bread," is a desire expressed often by readers who write in and tell me their problems. Some feel making bread is a matter of good luck, while others are certain that if they just had a good recipe, they could make good bread.

Bread, good bread, is one of the easiest of all baked goods to make. The yeast bread takes longer for the process to be completed, but there is nothing hard about any of the steps. Bear in mind these essentials when baking bread with yeast:

1. Liquids used may be water, milk, diluted evaporated milk, potato water or a mixture of any of these. When using milk, scald and cool to lukewarm.

2. Yeast may be compressed, granular or dry.

3. Sugar is used to help yeast make leavening gas. Salt controls fermentation, gives flavor.

4. Add all flour necessary at the time of mixing, to keep dough from sticking, and to avoid dark streaks in bread.

5. Dough is kneaded until smooth and satiny. Curve the fingers over dough and push into it with the palms of the hands. The first kneading is longest—8 to 10 minutes required, never less than 5. After the dough is punched down the second time, only 2 minutes' kneading is necessary.

6. After the dough is kneaded, it is placed in a greased bowl.

Turn the dough over in bowl to grease it entirely and prevent a hard crust from forming. Cover dough with a cloth or waxed paper while rising. Temperature at which dough rises should be 82 degrees.

7. When punching dough down, punch hands into the center of the dough.

8. When dough has been punched down the second time and risen until double in bulk, and the dough retains dents when pressed lightly, it is ready for molding. Knead down and divide in portions for loaves. Cover and let rest 10 to 15 minutes. To mold dough, flatten into a ball, fold lengthwise, and stretch three times the length of the pan. Overlap ends at center and fold lengthwise; flatten again, fold in thirds; seal edge; roll lightly and place in greased pan, fold down.

White Bread.
(Makes 4 1-pound loaves)
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons shortening
4 teaspoons salt
4 cups liquid, scalded
1 cake yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
12 to 14 cups flour

Combine sugar, shortening, salt and liquid in a large mixing bowl. Cool to lukewarm, then add yeast, softened in lukewarm water. Add 4 cups of flour and beat thoroughly. Add remaining flour and mix gradually to a dough that won't stick to hands or bowl. Knead lightly on a floured board 8 to 10 minutes. Place in a greased bowl, cover closely, and let rise until double in bulk (2 to 2½ hours). Punch down and knead 2 minutes. Let rise again until double in bulk. Knead down. Divide into 4 portions for loaves. Cover and let rest 10 to 15 minutes. Mold in loaves. Place in greased pans. Cover closely and let set in a warm place until doubled in bulk and a light touch leaves a dent. Bake in a moderately hot (400 to 425-degrees) oven 40 to 45 minutes.

Bread is done when it shrinks from the pan and sounds hollow when tapped with finger. Remove loaves from pans immediately and cool on rack. For a crisp crust, neither grease nor cover loaves when cooling. For a soft crust, brush top of loaves with fat or salad oil after removing from oven.

Refrigerator Rolls.
(Makes 3 dozen medium-sized rolls)
1 cup milk, scalded
1 cup hot mashed potato
½ cup shortening
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 cake yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
2 beaten eggs
5 to 6 cups flour

Combine milk, potato, shortening, sugar and salt in large mixing bowl. Add yeast softened in water and eggs. Add 1½ cups flour and beat well. Cover and let stand in a warm place for 1 hour, or until full of bubbles. Stir in 3½ to 4½ cups of flour to make a fairly stiff dough. Knead until smooth on a lightly floured surface. Return to greased mixing bowl. Grease top of dough. Cover and chill in refrigerator. About 1½ hours before serving time, shape desired number of rolls. Place in greased pans; let rise 1 hour. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) 15 to 20 minutes. Punch down unused dough and return to refrigerator.

You don't have time to make yeast rolls or bread? Then you will enjoy a lovely quick bread with a cherry-bran combination that is tops:

All-Bran Cherry Bread.
(Makes 1 loaf)
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup light brown sugar
½ cup chopped maraschino cherries
¼ cup chopped nutmeats

2½ cups flour
4½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1¼ cups milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 cup all-bran
½ cup chopped maraschino cherries
¼ cup chopped nutmeats

Melt butter in loaf pan and sprinkle sugar, cherries and nutmeats evenly over bottom of pan.

Sift flour with baking powder, sugar and salt. Beat egg, add milk and shortening and stir into flour mixture. Add bran, cherries and nutmeats. Pour over cherry mixture and bake in a moderate oven.

Loaf may be baked omitting cherry-nut mixture on bottom of pan.

Lynn Says:

Homemade Breads: Wash the bread box out thoroughly so the bread will stay fresh and moist longer. Every week, the box should have a soapy sudsing, and thorough drying out in the sunshine. Bread sometimes becomes stringy, if a certain germ is allowed to become imbedded in the box through lack of cleanliness.

Have freshly baked rolls often, by making a batch of refrigerator dough to have on hand. Then make a variety of rolls from it to add interest to the menu—caramel rolls, cinnamon twists, poppyseed rolls, orange-filled rolls, etc.

If homemade bread tends to get that day-old flavor, freshen the loaves by sprinkling a little water in a brown bag, placing loaf of bread in it, and into the oven for several minutes.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countless users' approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

Too Tired to Sleep

A furniture store was displaying a new type of mattress on a bed in the window. To make the thing look more realistic, the store advertised for a "demonstrator."

The first applicant was a lazy-looking fellow. He yawned as the manager recited his duties.

"All you have to do," the manager said, "is to lie on that mattress in the window and pretend to sleep peacefully from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m."

"Those are awful long hours," the fellow looker grumbled. "How about a rest period in between?"

Worth Seeing

A backwoodsman was applying for the job of watchman on a single-line.

Supposing you are at the crossing and two trains are coming along from opposite directions, what would you do?" asked the examiner.

"I'd always wear a red shirt, and I'd take it off and flag the trains."

"Let's say this was at night."

"Then I'd swing my lantern."

"But suppose you had no oil?"

"In that case I'd call my sister to come on down, and see the goldarndest wreck she ever saw in her life!"

Which Is It?

Joe—Say that was the best chicken pie I ever tasted!

Mrs.—That wasn't chicken, that was rabbit.

Joe—Why didn't you tell me before I ate it? You know I don't like rabbit!

Employee—But I have. I'm trembling all over.

FOCAL INFECTIONS

I have spoken before of two ardent fishermen who arose at five o'clock every morning to fish their favorite spots. One of the two met me one day and suggested that I go with him as his friend Bill did not seem to be as interested as formerly.

Dr. Barton

"When I call at Bill's house now he is sound asleep and when I return to show him my catch three hours later, he is still asleep. His family tells me he sleeps most of the time also."

Bill used to be a wideawake fellow. What was causing Bill to be sleepy all the time? The cause was infected teeth, but this was not discovered until it was too late to save his life.

What are the symptoms of infection from teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder, large intestine, or other part of the body? "Tiredness, especially noted in the morning after a night's sleep which seems neither refreshing nor sufficient is a common symptom of focal infection. (Focal infection is where infection occurs at one focus or spot in the body and the poisons or wastes are carried from it by the blood to another spot. Thus the poison from an infected throat can go to a joint and set up an arthritis.)

"Apathy, lack of ambition, inability to concentrate and a dislike for mental work so that the patient must 'drive himself' to get anything done are often complained of. Dizziness, loss of appetite, temporary blurring of vision or blindness may be noted."

The above description of focal infection is given by Dr. M. Solis-Cohen in Medical World. It is worth while for all of us to study these symptoms of focal infection. The first thought might naturally be to take Epsom salts or other purgative to rid the large intestine and the blood of these poisons. This treatment would give relief where the cause is eating too much or exercising too little, as accumulated wastes from food can give symptoms of fatigue. But, where this tired, sleepy, "don't care" feeling is present all or most of the time, you should consult your physician and dentist.

Vision Improved by Vitamins A and B

It is interesting and very gratifying to learn that not only can many cases of color blindness be corrected but other disturbances of vision also, by simply improving the diet, especially by the use of foods containing vitamin A and vitamin B complex.

In the "Medical Clinics of North America," Dr. Arthur M. Yudkin, states:

"Considerable effort has been made to improve the eyesight (especially night blindness) of some aviators, sailors, drivers, and others by giving them large quantities of vitamin A. Some of these persons improved only after a well balanced diet and an extra supply of vitamin A and vitamin B complex were given. Some of these persons also had difficulty in passing the color tests as prescribed by the army and navy. After the daily use of fish oil concentrates (20,000 units of vitamin A), a powerful vitamin B complex (two tablespoons of powerful yeast powder or an equivalent concentrate; and a well-balanced diet, the color vision, and the night blindness of many of these persons improved." Other diseases which affect the lining of the eyelids and the outer surface of the eyeball are also cured or helped by the use of vitamin A and vitamin B complex.

However, Dr. Yudkin does not suggest that treatment for these eye conditions should be by vitamins alone, but that a search should be made for the cause of these eye disturbances in these persons. Thus diseases of the stomach, liver and intestine may be preventing the body making full use of food eaten, including the vitamins. Only careful questioning by the physician may bring out that disturbances of the digestive system are present.

The thought then is that our eye specialists, because the tissues of the eyes are affected as can other tissues by lack of vitamins or other valuable foodstuffs, are able to notify the family physician of their findings. The eye disturbance can then be corrected by a suitable diet and removal of digestive disturbances.

MANY young homemakers are gaily setting forth to buy junk furniture for remodeling. The first thing they learn is to consider each piece not for what it is but for what it may be. The 40-year-old buffet shown here was picked up.

The sketch shows how the main part of the buffet was remodeled to make a chest under a window in a combination sewing and guest room. A wood chisel is useful for removing carving that is glued on and either putty or plastic wood may be used for filling screw holes and other holes. If the piece is varnished, it is best to rub it down with sandpaper to remove the high gloss before painting. What became of the mirror and legs of this buffet is another story to appear soon.

Resent Soldier's Letter

Editor's Note: The following article is being printed on behalf of the colored people of Marlinton at the request of Mabel Hill, who wrote it.

Some time ago a letter was published in the Pocahontas Times, sent to Calvin Price from Corporal Damon O. Landis of Camp Van Dorn, Mississippi. I am writing this article, hoping it will be published in answer to Corpl. Landis' letter. He stated this: "It is very easy to identify a cotton field. Colored people pick all the cotton. They look like a bunch of crows in a young corn field." I wonder if Corporal Landis ever thinks that the colored race of people are trying to help win this terrible thing called war. We have colored boys from this county overseas now fighting day and night, to help protect his home as well as ours.

Picking cotton is not a shame or a disgrace to our race. I can recall the time I was in the Carolinas and most of all North Carolina, the white race were picking cotton too, and hard at it. If our race of people look like crows, as the Corporal says, then there's probably a gang of them overseas on the battle field, flopping their wings in a great big way, and for what and whom? For their country and for all Americans back home.

(Signed):
MABEL HILL,
Marlinton, W. Va.

Allied Armies Start Drive to North Against Fortified Nazi Lines in Italy; Jap Key Base at Rabaul Is Encircled; Farm Groups Dissent on Subsidy Plans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Shown scanning skies for re-appearance of strafing Messerschmitts, this American anti-aircraft crew aided in valiant defense of beachheads established by U. S. troops at Salerno in bloody fighting.

ITALY:
Yanks on Offense

Their bases firmly established on the beaches of Salerno after eight days of bloody battle, Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army went onto the offensive and drove Nazi panzer units back into the hills rising inland.

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark

As the Germans retreated, General Clark's Doughboys made contact with Gen. Bernard Montgomery's British Eighth army, charging northward from the toe of the Italian boot. Together, the two armies prepared to swing against the series of mountainous defenses erected by the Nazis to wear down the Allies before they reach the main enemy lines in the Po valley.

Although the Allies were first pounded by 88-mm. guns when they landed on the sandy beach, and harassed by German armored units before they could organize strongly for attack, their position was gradually strengthened by a constant stream of reinforcements. Clouds of Allied planes roared overhead to break German battle formations, and 16-inch naval guns poured explosives into the hills from which enemy batteries caused such havoc on the beaches earlier.

Losses in Sicily

Despite the Allies' whirlwind 38-day campaign in Sicily, they suffered material losses ranging up to 14 per cent, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau declared in support of the current 15 billion dollar bond drive.

According to Morgenthau, operations in Sicily cost 13 per cent of all 155-mm. howitzers landed; 46 per cent of all 37-mm. guns; 13 per cent of all guns employed; 8 per cent of all medium tanks and 7 per cent of all light tanks; 14 per cent of the carriages for the 37-mm. guns; 26 per cent of the carriages for the 75-mm. guns, and 22 per cent of the carriages for the 155-mm. guns.

"In Sicily we met only a small fraction of the opposition we are getting from the Germans now in Italy," he said.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Big Base Encircled

With Allied troops in command of the Solomons and firmly closing their grip on New Guinea, the great Japanese naval and air base of Rabaul has been encircled and neutralized as an advance goal for action in the Southwest Pacific.

Shortly had General MacArthur's forces closed the noose before a big naval battle was reported in the area between New Guinea and the Solomons, that indicating that the Allies were moving swiftly to capitalize on their position.

With Allied bombers based within shorter runs and fighters escorted to carry heavier loads to the big bases, and with the U. S. fleet ready to spring into action from neighboring waters, the encirclement of Rabaul assumed the legal immobilization known in diplomacy. At one time the Japs threatened to overrun the entire region.

SUBSIDIES:
Farm Groups Dissent

Declaring that maximum production was the best guarantee against inflation, leaders from national farm organizations met with President Roosevelt to protest against general food subsidies to consumers.

To assure highest production, the organization spokesmen suggested the government support "floor" prices for farm commodities at levels assuring fair returns. In the case of meat and butter, it was said, subsidies failed to halt price reactions to supply and demand at the markets.

Bucking the subsidy idea on which organized labor has pressed the government to spend two billion dollars, were Albert S. Goss of the National Grange; Edward A. O'Neal, American Farm Bureau federation; and Ezra T. Benson, National Council of Farm Co-operatives. Representing the National Farmers Union, James G. Patton differed with the majority, favoring subsidies.

See Large Crops

Despite an unfavorable combination of low rainfall and high temperatures in a huge irregular area extending from southern New England to central North Carolina, from northern Georgia to central New Mexico, from central Illinois to southwestern Mississippi, and from central South Dakota to the Rio Grande, crop production was expected to be 4 per cent above any previous year, excepting 1942.

Estimating a yield of 31.7 bushels per acre, the department of agriculture forecast a corn crop of 2,985,287,000 bushels. At 16.7 bushels per acre, 834,967,000 bushels of wheat were expected. And at 30.2 bushels per acre, 1,145,060,000 bushels of oats were anticipated.

Yielding 663 pounds per acre, the peanut crop was set at 2,801,515,000 pounds. On 136.9 bushels per acre, 460,512,000 bushels of potatoes were expected. At 46.9 bushels per acre, 71,217,000 bushels of rice were forecast.

Combined with meat and poultry production, the crops were expected to boost food supplies over present levels.

DADS' DRAFT:
Army Insists

Pointing to the army's admission that 2,700,000 troops will still be in the U. S. at the end of 1944, Senator Burton K. Wheeler pressed for congressional consideration of his bill for the deferment of fathers.

Lieut. Gen. McNarney

Insisting that the army's program requires the induction of 700,000 men or WACs by the end of this year, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney assailed the proposed deferment of dads. The general said that each month 75,000 men are needed to replace casualties or discharges.

Declaring that voluntary methods for bringing men into war industries have not filled needs, Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson favored a labor draft, to give an effort, as he said, to an obligation on everyone of working age to render necessary national service.

JAPS:
Woo Subjects

In an effort to enlist the active support of the 700 million Asiatics already under her heel, Japan has promised them self-government, taken scrupulous care to respect their religions, invited their young students and leaders to Tokyo, where they have been entertained by the emperor, and exchanged technicians with them.

Premier Tojo

According to diplomatic advices, the program has had its effect. With the assistance of the natives, the Japs are getting bauxite for aluminum from Burma; iron from North China and Manchuria; oil from Java and Borneo; copper, tin and manganese from the Philippines and foodstuffs from Thailand. In addition, the wily Japs are installing factories in the conquered countries.

Under Tojo's leadership, it was said, the Japs are ready to sacrifice five million men to beat the Allies. They expect the war to be long, but consider present action in the South Pacific as merely outpost skirmishes.

WHISKY:
No Production

Because of a boost of 20 per cent in the estimated requirements of industrial alcohol for the newly established synthetic rubber industry, distilleries will not be allowed to switch to whisky production for the rest of the year. Previously, distilleries nourished hopes of being given two weeks to build up dwindling stocks of whisky and blends.

The decision to place greater reliance on alcohol for synthetic rubber than on petroleum resulted from conclusions that use of the latter would interfere with the aviation gasoline program. Furthermore, it was said, the government objected to the diversion of grain to whisky at a time when it was trying to maintain the nation's food standards.

This Excuses Everybody

As chairman of the house ways and means committee, Rep. Robert Doughton presided over congress' shaping of the present income tax.

Recently, Doughton summoned the committee to a night session to see whether something couldn't be done to simplify the filing of returns.

Doughton, it seems, had to get a "tax expert" to make out his own form!

Cut Oct. 11

To assure continuation of motor transportation against wartime shortages of fuel, replacement parts, equipment, tires and manpower, Director of Defense Transportation Joseph B. Eastman ordered curtailment of retail and wholesale merchandise deliveries.

Joseph B. Eastman

Effective October 11, milk deliveries to homes will be limited to four times a week; meats, fruits, vegetables, fish and bread to three times, and dry groceries, laundry and dry cleaning to two times. Permission was given for delivery of ice every day.

Wholesale deliveries will be cut to six times weekly for bread, bakery products, cream, milk, dairy products and repair parts; five times for meats, eggs, fruits, vegetables, fish, live plants, laundry, dry cleaning and cut flowers; and once for alcoholic beverages, wines and bottled malt beverages.

RUSSIA:
Oil Hopes Blasted

Once set up as the cornerstone of the Nazis' drive for the Caucasus oil, Novorossisk was abandoned by them as the Germans pulled back to the Dnieper river for a last ditch stand in Russia.

The German withdrawal along the whole front to the Dnieper was regular, with the Nazis within 100 miles of the broad, curving river, from Bryansk in the north to Lozovaya in the south. Only along the coast of the Sea of Azov were the Germans any distance from the Dnieper, and here it was believed they were holding deeper defenses to permit their troops in the Crimea to pull out.

Every indication pointed to the Germans' use of the Dnieper as their last strong natural defense in Russia. If the Reds cracked the Dnieper, the Germans would have no suitable defensive terrain left, but would have to fall back on the Dniester river, in Europe itself.

MEXICO:
Tourist Boom

"American tourists are crowding Mexico and buying up everything from gin and electrical appliances to bobby pins and elastics," it is reported.

The people of Mexico are not feeling the war as acutely as are the people of the United States as rationing has not gone into effect there. There is plenty of everything, it is said, but Americans are buying much of the surplus goods American money is worthless.

Washington Digest

Nation to Be Active Factor In Post-War Peace Plans

Majority of American People Ask Participation In International Organization to Maintain Harmony.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

Slowly the pattern of America's post-war plans are taking shape, but only the pattern.

When congress returned, it was evident that no matter how much disagreement there might be as to the details of the role the United States will play in the post-war world, the people have registered one idea: they want to take part in some kind of an international organization to maintain peace.

The same opinion turned up in the conversation of three members of congress of widely differing political sentiments with whom I talked shortly after they returned. Speaker Sam Rayburn told me that the one phrase which received the most applause in the speeches he made in the Southwest was when he said that the United States must do a man's job for peace.

Two leading Republican senators expressed the same idea, namely, that "the people seem to be of one mind" that America must join in some kind of international effort after the war to maintain peace.

The disagreements in congress are chiefly a difference in degree and represent a discussion, for the most part, over details that nobody expects congress to decide in advance anyhow.

Of course, there are two things which make for lack of harmony; one is the natural desire of each political party to criticize the other in a campaign year; the other is the effort of small groups to get over their own particular ideas.

Secretary of State Hull, in his speech of September 12, made it plain that the administration was in favor of an international organization which would agree to use force to maintain peace—implying that the United States would offer its armed forces in collaboration with other nations to stop aggression. He went further on the subject than any official so far but there has been a feeling on the part of many members of congress that the people would support such a policy.

Pooling of Resources

Meanwhile, the public has gradually come to the realization that Winston Churchill, as the king's first minister with plenary powers, and President Roosevelt, as commander-in-chief and, therefore, with similar authority, have agreed that the United States and Britain will pool their military resources not only until the fighting ends, but until the emergency is ended. They will do this merely by continuing the committee of joint chiefs of staff.

They have made it plain that they consider the emergency, or as an official spokesman for the United States described it, "a period of transition," will not end until the last peace treaties are signed. In other words, the United States and Great Britain intend, as long as the emergency exists, to take part in an organization to establish and maintain the peace by means of what amounts to a military alliance between the two nations.

Prime Minister Churchill was ready to sign a written agreement which would include Britain's pledge to remain our ally and continue the war with us until Japan was beaten—that much he told the newsmen—and he added, the President had said it was not necessary, that his word was good enough. Presumably, the written agreement would have included the continuation of the joint committee of the chiefs of staff, too. But written or unwritten, such a pact now exists.

It is, therefore, clear that the President intends, if he remains in office, to maintain an interim arrangement which will keep this country an active factor in world affairs to the point where its policies will be supported by military action. This will be of indefinite length, as Churchill put it, until it can be shown that a better arrangement, including all nations, can be found to supplant it.

In one sense, therefore, it is less important what decision the congress or the administration makes right now as to its foreign policy since there will be plenty of time for the people to become fully acquainted with the whole situation during the "transition period" when two of the strongest nations remain united. The important thing, of course, is to obtain the co-operation of the third most powerful nation, Russia.

And that is what is on the fire right now. Until we know a little more about Russia's views and intentions, it will be impossible to make a detailed plan for the post-war world.

Battle of Italy Beginning of End

As I write these lines, the startled moon has just slipped behind a jagged curtain of clouds, like a transport sliding under the protecting cloak of a smoke screen.

That comparison leaps to my mind because all day I have been following, as you have and as closely as either of us could, the progress of the greatest military undertaking which an American army has attempted in this war—the battle of Italy. For the battle of Italy is the storming of the very portals of the Reich, the outer rim, it is true, but nonetheless, the first breastworks of Hitler's inner fortress.

Here, for the first time, American soldiers, hardened on the harsh sands of Africa and the cruel hills of Sicily, meet the guardsmen of the Nazi citadel. Not a bi-colored army, diluted by a half-hearted ally, Italy, but dogged German fighters defending the gateway to their own, their native land.

The end of the beginning has ended, the beginning of the end has begun. And we who have watched every sign and every signal as the curtain between what we thought and what we knew was lifted, realize how little we and the world can guess of the inner and complicated workings of this great war machine.

As the armies of the Allies attack the enemy citadel—the leaders of the Allies, Roosevelt and Churchill, plan a new edifice.

The invasion of Sicily and the invasion of Italy were planned at Casablanca where, for 24 hours, the few newsmen who were permitted to know, kept the secret of the meeting itself. Beside the historic waters of the St. Lawrence, in the citadel at Quebec, the marching orders were sealed while we newsmen waited, blinded and deafened to all but the most general ideas.

What are those marching orders? Some other startled moon will tell.

Civilian Defense Proves Its Worth

As Germany begins the defense of her inner fortress and the once-feared Luftwaffe has been converted from an offensive to a defensive machine the problem of keeping up the morale of Civilian Defense in this country is a difficult one. It would be foolhardy to lie down on the job now for history has shown that frequently fierce and bitter conflicts grow out of victories and until the last shot is fired and after that, it isn't safe to desert the ramparts.

Recently the value of civilian defense training was proved in a manner which received very little recognition outside of the immediate vicinity. When the Congressional Limited, the crack train that runs between New York and Washington, was wrecked in Philadelphia, when the Twentieth Century Limited, another crack train between Chicago and New York, was wrecked, and when a hotel burned in Houston, Texas, the civilian defense organization proved its mettle. On all three occasions, invaluable service was rendered by these unselfish men and women who have so long answered mock alarms and gone on duty for practice drills.

It was definitely shown that in the case of the wreck of the Congressional Limited and in the Houston fire lives were actually saved by the defense workers. In Philadelphia a group of air raid wardens meeting near the scene of the wreck were the first to arrive on the scene.

In a short time 7,500 trained workers were at work assisting police and helping the rescue. So effectively did they handle the traffic that in spite of the great crowds, lanes were kept open so that all injured persons not actually pinned in the wreck had been removed to hospitals within 35 or 40 minutes.

Gay Felt Applique and Vivid Contrast Perk Up Velveteens

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS TO smart and pretty fashions that "click" with the teen-age, career and college-girl set, it's the perfectly charming dresses made of either black or colorful cotton velveteen, fashioned ever so cunningly, as pictured, that have gone "tops" in the new fall collections. This present rage for velveteens definitely offers most convincing evidence as to the continued outstanding importance of cottons in the fabric realm.

You can see by the intriguing models illustrated that designers are doing fascinating things with velveteens this season. For instance, they are making it up in adorable pinafore styles, as shown centered in the group. A velveteen pinafore is really something to think about for it's strictly "new" and out of the usual. The modern girl's wardrobe that does not include a pinafore dress of velveteen or corduroy this fall will be the proverbial "exception to the rule." And how the teen-agers and their older sisters do love this new version of a jumper frock!

Perhaps the biggest talking feature in regard to the new and beloved velveteens is the do-and-dare spirit with which designers are perking them up by appliqueing arresting surface decoration, in way of gaily cutout felt flowers and other artful motifs. It spreads glamour all over a dress of the pinafore type, when its suspender-like bib and pockets take on individualistic felt flower decor, as here shown.

The peasant jumper, as shown to the left in the group, is also an outstanding number in the hit parade of velveteens, which this season is making a most spectacular display of color and design. If you are clever at sewing you can whip up your own peasant jumper of cotton velveteen and trim it with floral cutouts, worthy of a real Swiss Miss, whose picturesque and colorful garb is proving such an inspiration to American designers these days.

And now for the big news—all the colorful flower and leaf motifs appliqued on this jumper and matching bonnet (also the pinafore dress) as here shown come cut out and ready to sew on! You can buy them at the dress-trimming department, including flower and leaf designs in separate pieces, together with guide and pattern for appliqueing. And if you are really resourceful, you can arrange according to your own idea working out versatile design. What clever home sewers will be able to do in way of perking up "tired" clothes with these felt fantasies can scarce be told, for the uses to which they can be put are endless. One of the novelties in applique is felt rickrack. Outline the edges and pockets and collar of a flannel jacket you happen to have on hand and it will work wonders in giving it a "new" look. Makes a smart trimming on hat and bag sets too!

As to maneuvering the flower pieces, you can scheme out all types of decorative motifs, such as a single bouquet at the shoulder with a corresponding floral on the skirt, or you can apply the wee flowers in a conventional border design or in necklace design at the throat, or forming epaulets over the shoulders or on immense pockets to adorn the now-so-popular dirndls.

Velveteen used in vivid contrast is another technique employed by designers this season in most original ways. Note the attractive dress to the right. Here a most unique yoke is in one color velveteen with the body of the dress in another, thus highlighting the frock with striking color contrast. This yoke also developes deep pockets at the front in most unusual treatment.

Sweater is of blue and gray striped wool, with gray collar. It is shaped at the armhole with four darts and has an inset gusset at the underarm. Directions for making this sweater are contained in BOOK 1 of the series above. Also the directions for making the suit are in BOOK 3. Both books are 10 cents each. New Trick Ways of Wearing Sweaters

We have with us this fall the sweater girl in all her glory. She glories in the fact that she has "caught on" to all the tricks in teaming a cardigan with a pullover and she simply dotes on achieving eye-crashing color contrasts. She does not hesitate to top a baby blue, shell pink or lime-green pullover with a red cardigan or sweater jacket. She likes the contrasting of a raspberry-red top sweater worn with a parma violet, navy blue or sooty black pullover. From her standpoint, a bright yellow pullover is keen under a scarlet or dark blue or deep purple cardigan. There is a new featured color out this season called "brass" and it contrasts smartly with midnight blue in the sweater realm. Smart to wear with a black skirt is the new beige-colored pullover sweater, this sweater being the latest "rave" with college girls. No doubt the high school crowd will soon be adopting this campushit.

MUSTERING-OUT PAY AND A TAX IDEA

THE PRESIDENT'S PROPOSAL to give all men of the armed forces a sum as muster-out pay to tide them over the period of looking for a job, sounds good but in reality is it more than a kindly gesture?

At an average of $300 for each man the total would be around three billions of dollars. That three billions must be paid by the American taxpayers which will include the men who served in the armed forces. We propose to give to each of them, say $300, and then over the years, take all of it and more away from them in the form of income taxes.

The mustering-out process will be gradual. The men will not all be discharged as soon as the war is over. There will be a world police job to be done and a goodly percentage of American soldiers will want a place in that job. In that gradual process of mustering out peacetime industry will absorb most of those who need or want jobs.

The men of the armed forces are young. The greater portion of them unmarried. Practically all of them have homes where they will be welcomed. They will have ample opportunity and time to look for jobs. As the years pass these young men will assume ever-increasing responsibilities. They will have homes and families of their own. A percentage of them will succeed to a point where they will not need special consideration. A much larger percentage will not secure above, and many of them will be below, the average annual income. To these larger numbers some help year by year would be of far greater value than a $300 cash payment when given a discharge.

A graduated income tax reduction to all veterans of World War II would provide a year by year compensation in proportion to their needs. Taxes for many years to come will be heavy. They will not drop much, if any, below 20 per cent of income in the lower brackets. If the veteran, whose tax would be $80 a year, had to pay but $40 it would be a big help year after year. The graduation to be such so the veteran who had succeeded financially would have, at least, no greater total exemption than the one who had not.

Such an income tax reduction would, over the years, amount to much more than the suggested $300. It would come at a time when it would, for the great majority, be more needed than at the muster-out date. It would mean that those who fought the war for us would not, through the years, be forced to pay as much of the cost as those who did not share with them the dangers and hazards and trials of the battlefronts. It would be more than a gesture.

INDUSTRY'S SHARE OF BUSINESS INCOME

WHAT PORTION of the receipts of industry does labor receive as its dividend from the partnership of labor, capital and management? Including the cost of the labor involved in the production of raw materials and transportation, together with the direct payrolls of the steel plants, labor, in 1942, received as its share just about 70 cents out of each dollar of steel sales. Of the other 30 cents taxes took over six cents of each dollar sale. The hundred thousand and more stockholders, who provide the tools and buildings and working capital, received less than four cents of each sales dollar as a dividend, on which they paid income taxes. After paying the cost of material and transportation, exclusive of the labor involved, and paying management, there was nine cents of each sales dollar left to provide for a rainy day. It would seem that labor gets a fair share.

BUSINESS PSYCHOLOGY

SOME MONTHS AGO I dropped into a food market and was impressed by two things. One was that I was the only prospective customer at what was usually a busy hour in a food market. The other was a number of signs displayed on the walls. One sign read: "Your credit is not good." Another: "Our business is to sell, not to visit." A third: "If you do not like what we have, buy elsewhere." There were others of a similar slap-in-the-face character. I did not buy and it was my first and only visit to that store. Those signs told the reason for a lack of customers. The store has since been closed by the sheriff and the one-time owner condemns the public for failure to patronize a home institution. He was not a student of psychology.

WHEN IT has all been boiled down, all the useless verbiage removed, the thing the American soldier, sailor or marine is fighting for is freedom to improve the opportunity his country and its way of life offer him.

FOR THE NEXT several years the "planning" job of the agricultural department will call for producing more food, rather than less. We once paid a bonus for not raising sugar; possibly we should now pay for raising more.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Plan Day's Meals Using Basic Seven As Your Guide

Utilize a little bit of meat with vegetables and tuck under a flavorful, flaky piecrust and serve the family a meat pie. All vegetables and meat are served in one casserole and save serving dishes.

Is there a blueprint or plan for making menus? That's a question homemakers frequently put to the food experts. Yes, there is. Suppose you are given a list of foods to be included in your daily diets, a sort of general plan that you can adapt to every day's needs. Can you make out your menus? Here is the blueprint:

Group I. Green and yellow vegetables. At least one of each kind should be included daily to meet vitamin and mineral requirements of the diet.

Group II. At least one serving of oranges, grapefruit or tomatoes to get enough Vitamin C in the diet. A good time to get this requirement in is during breakfast—with the fruit.

Group III. Potatoes or other fruit and vegetables to add more minerals and vitamins to the diet.

Group IV. Milk or milk products. This may be in the form of milk (1 pint per day for adults, 1 quart for children), fresh or evaporated, and cheese.

Group V. Meat, poultry, fish, eggs or dried beans, peas, nuts or peanut butter. This group is needed to build and repair body tissue.

Group VI. Bread, flour and cereals are required to meet energy needs and the vitamin B needs of the body. Be sure that any of these that you use are whole-grain, enriched or restored. You would have to eat four times as much ordinary bread, for example, to get as much nutritional value as one loaf of enriched bread contains.

Group VII. Butter or fortified margarine. Use some of either every day to give energy and vitamin A.

That's the plan. Use food out of every group, every day.

The best way to divide the groups into three balanced meals will run something like this:

For breakfast: Citrus fruit, cereal, eggs, milk or beverage, toast.

For lunch or dinner: Meat (poultry or fish, etc.), vegetable in either group I or III, milk or milk products.

For dinner or supper: Meat, poultry or fish, vegetable or fruit from groups I, II, or III. Milk or milk product, and also bread and butter from groups VI and VII.

An easy way to plan the menus is to write down the foods and the corresponding number of the group of food from which it comes. If you do not use one or two of the groups during one meal, pick them up at the next. No chance for slips, here! Keep one eye on the plan and the other on the ration books while doing this and you can meet the requirements of both.

Now, here is some concrete help to stretch those red points:

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menu

*Sausage and Succotash Pie
Pear and Grape Salad
Honey-Orange Bread
Lemon Cups Beverage
*Recipe Given

Sausage and Succotash Pie.
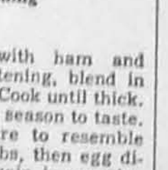
(Serves 4 to 6)

1 pound pork sausage meat
2 cups cooked, dried or fresh lima beans
1½ to 2 cups cooked corn
2 tablespoons red pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons shortening
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk

Lightly fry sausage. Drain well. Combine with vegetables. Make white sauce by blending flour into melted shortening. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Season, then add to meat mixture. Pour into baking dish. Top with pastry. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) 30 to 40 minutes.



Pork and Apple Turnovers.
(Makes 4 to 6)

Combine 1 cup chopped apple with 1 cup chopped cooked pork. Roll pastry thin and cut in 6-inch squares. Heap half of square with pork and apple mixture. Fold over diagonally. Moisten edges and press together. Prick top. Bake in a hot oven 30 to 40 minutes.

These ham and asparagus cutlets give a new twist to congenial and favorite foods:

Stuffed Pancake Rolls, Ham and Asparagus Cutlets or Hamburgers are low in point-value but give plenty of zip and stick-to-the-ribs quality to your meals. Have them often to give variety to menus.

Ham and Asparagus Cutlets.
(Serves 6)

1½ cups cooked, chopped asparagus
1½ cups diced, boiled ham
½ cup fine bread crumbs
2 tablespoons shortening
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk

Mix asparagus with ham and crumbs. Melt shortening, blend in flour. Stir in milk. Cook until thick. Add to first mixture, season to taste. Chill. Shape mixture to resemble chops. Dip in crumbs, then egg diluted with water, again in crumbs. Heat enough fat in skillet to cover bottom of skillet generously. Fry cutlets slowly until golden brown. Serve with Cheese Sauce: Melt 2 tablespoons shortening, blend in 3 tablespoons flour, stir in 1½ cups milk. Add 1¼ cups grated cheese. Cook until cheese melts.

Stuffed Pancake Rolls.
(Serves 4 to 6)

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 beaten egg
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1½ cups chopped cooked lamb
1 cup leftover gravy
¼ cup grated cheese

Sift dry ingredients. Stir in egg, milk and shortening. Melt enough fat in skillet to cover bottom. Make 6 large thin pancakes 5 inches across. Brown on both sides. Mix meat with gravy. Heap meat in center of each pancake. Roll up. Sprinkle with cheese. Heat in oven until cheese melts.

Savory Cabbage.
(Serves 6)

Shred 1 small head of cabbage into 3 tablespoons of fat in a skillet, cover and cook slowly 15 minutes. Add 1 cup cubed salami or cervelat, salt and pepper and heat thoroughly.

Spinach.

Cook late spinach with bacon rind cut in snippets. Buying slab bacon with rind saves points.

Greens.

Chop 2 cups cooked greens with 1 tablespoon onion juice, 2 tablespoons horseradish, ¼ cup sour cream, salt and pepper. Serve on toast with crisp bacon.

Potato Salad.

Add 1 tablespoon ripe dill seeds to potato salad and serve cold with sliced tongue.

Lynn Says:

What they do: The basic seven food requirements are so made up as to take care of the body's demand for certain types of food.

For example, proteins, minerals and water are all essential to building torn parts of the body and keeping them in repair. They are needed for tissues, bones, muscles, blood and other fluids.

Energy for breathing, heart action, circulation of the blood, and other bodily functions is supplied by fuel foods—foods rich in fats and sugar.

To keep up the body's resistance to disease, to keep it in good running order, is the function of regulation and protective foods—these are the vitamins, minerals, water and roughage.

Things to do

A PATCHWORK bathmat, seat cover and tieback bathstool cover made of yellow, pink and green flower patchwork—narrow striped material is used for the ruffle. Stool cover is 15 inches across—rug is 24 inches. Make the flower design of scrap materials. Do the quilting designs on your sewing machine. Set makes a colorful, inexpensive gift.

Legion Commander Owns Interesting Old Newspapers

It seems odd today, in spite of its reality, to pick up a newspaper and read where the renowned Benjamin Franklin, among others, discussed subjects at a meeting. Yet the editor of the Journal did that in a moment of relaxation a recent evening, while reading over a group of ancient publications which are among the relics owned by Frank E. Johnson of Marlinton, commander of the Pocahontas County post of the American Legion.

In volume I—No. 48 of the American Recorder and the Charlestown Advertiser, bearing date of Tuesday, May 23, 1786, (157 years ago), or long enough ago that a character resembling our present "f" was used for an "s" in words demanding that sound — (Example: The masthead carries lines saying "Publifhed every Tuesday and Friday, by Allen and Cushing, at their Office, near the Ferry, in Charleston. Where Subfcriptions. Advertifements, &c, for this Paper, are taken in.—likewife, by B. Larkin, Bookfeller, No. 46, Cornhill, Boston)—there is a notice reading: "Cambridge, May 4, 1786. The Fellows of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, are hereby notified, that a Statute-Meeting is to be holden in the Hall of the Maffachufetts Bank, on Tuefday the 30th Inftant, at ten o'Clock, A. M. Per Order. Caleb Gannett, Sec'ry."

In Volume I—No. 52, dated Tuesday, June 6, 1786 (two editions later) there is contained a report of the meeting, with the following notations ameng the list of speakers and subjects:

"On the theory of the earth. By ditto."

"Meteorological imaginations and conjectures. By ditto."

"The result of twelve experiments, made with seven wires of the same size, but of different metals, to determine what is the difference of the power of conducting heat in the different metals. By ditto."

"A description of an instrument for taking books from high shelves. By ditto."

Mr. Johnson also owns a facsimile copy of the first edition of the New York Sun. The original edition was printed Tuesday, September 3, 1833. The facsimile was printed when The Sun observed its 100th anniversary in 1933.

Among the stories contained in the 1833 Sun is one about an Irish Captain who, when asked "How come you to travel always with pistols?" replied, "Because, I find them very useful in accommodating any little differences I may accidentally have with a friend, or which one friend may chance to have with another."

There is also the story about "A Whistler" relating: "A boy in Vermont, accustomed to working alone, was so prone to whistling, that, as soon as he was by himself, he unconsciously commenced. When asleep the muscles of his mouth, chest, and lungs were so completely concatenated in the association, he whistled with astonishing shrillness. A pale countenance, loss of appetite, and almost total prostration of strength, convinced his mother it would end in death, if not speedily overcome, which was accomplished by placing him in the society of another boy, who had orders to give him a blow as soon as he began to whistle." (Robe McNeil please note!)

The Sun reports the activities at the Police Office:

"John Regan, brought up for begging stones at the house of Eliza Vincent, who refused him admittance. The complainant, a watchman, said he advised the prisoner to desist—the prisoner called the watchman a rascal, and told him to clear out, or at some future time he would get a dozen of a flogging; whereupon the watchman seized hold of him and walked him up to the watch-house—held to bail for appearance.

"John McMan, brought up for whipping Judy McMan, his dasting wife—his excuse was, that his head was rather thick, in consequence of taking a wee drop of whiskey. Not being able to find bail he was accommodated with a room to himself.

"Joseph Parish, brought up for exercising the muscles of his right arm by pounding John Nixon on the head with his fist. Mr. Nixon not appearing against him, he was discharged.

"Ann Scott, found in the street and was brought up at 1 o'clock this morning. She had no money—no home—no friends—sent to the alms house."

The issue also reported the occurrence of an earthquake at Charlottesville, Va., dated August 30, and saying it happened "last Tuesday."

Though not so ancient, perhaps the most intriguing paper in Mr. Johnson's group is an original copy of "The Daily Citizen" of Vicksburg, Miss., dated July 3, 1863. Vicksburg was in a state of siege in the war in progress at that time. Having run out of newsprint paper, the Citizen was being published on pieces of blue and cream wall paper. One of the interesting comments of the editor was that "the great Ulysses—the Yankee Generalisomo, surnamed Grant—has expressed his intention of dining in Vicksburg on Saturday next, and celebrating the 4th of July by a grand dinner and so forth. When asked if he would invite Gen. Jo. Johnston to join he said, 'No! for fear there will be a row at the table.' Ulysses must get into the city before he dines in it. The way to cook a rabbit is 'first to catch the rabbit,' &c."

However, before the editor, J. M. Swords, could complete the edition in which he wrote that paragraph, Grant's troops burst into the town, and took over the paper along with other possessions. Then, apparently, members of Grant's party finished the edition, concluding it with these words:

NOTE
JULY 4th, 1863.

Two days bring about great changes. The banner of the Union floats over Vicksburg. Gen. Grant has "caught the rabbit"; he has dined in Vicksburg, and he did bring his dinner with him. The "Citizen" lives to see it. For the last time it appears on "Wall paper." . . . This is the last wall-paper edition, and is, excepting this note, from the types as we found them.

For the country this means that 80,000,000 dressings must be shipped monthly for the remainder of the year. This familiar phrase is as true today as ever—but just where does one put the dollar to best save it?

Thousands of Americans would like very much to KNOW an answer to this question.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of a North Carolina newspaper, has been inducted into the army and is spending his training period at Fort Bragg. If you're going into the army, Hargrove advises a pre-induction period of "painting the town red." Once you wear the khaki "keep an open mind," he says, "for the first three weeks are the hardest." Having failed to master some of the fundamentals of army life, Hargrove has spent considerable time on KP duty. He has been classified as a cook. Thus he is fully familiar with the Company kitchen. Also a period of field maneuvers have made him familiar with sunburn. He is now undergoing treatment for this.

CHAPTER VIII

For once I have gone on sick call for purposes other than goldbricking. This time it was for sympathy, tenderness, and sunburn lotion. I got the sunburn lotion. Since then I have been confined to quarters—a pathetic, lorn creature wandering about the squadroom in a minimum of clothing and a glow of brilliant red light.

Things are getting fairly comfortable for a while. The poet Droschnieop and the happy warrior Menza applied the ointment with tender care. Private Sher was asked to snaffle a sandwich from the mess hall and returned with a laden tray, replete with iced tea and a double portion of dessert. By sitting on the floor on my heels, I was even able to start reading the novel that has been taking up space in my foot locker for weeks.

But night must fall. In a case like this, where you're packed in grease like a boxed rifle, it's best to place one layer of newspaper between sheet and blanket. After lying there for a while, listening to the newspapers crackle exactly like burnt flesh every time you twist in agony, you feel the urge to sit up and look at some real stars.

They're drafting honest, respectable, hard-working soldiers back into civilian life now, as you probably read in the papers. Has-beens at twenty-eight, these good boys are turned into the pasture under a selective retirement system. It's interesting to watch the way they take it.

Our big loss in Battery A came Tuesday when Joe Gantt went back to Liberty, South Carolina, after five months in the citizen army. Joe is the nice corporal who looked like the soldier pictures in the magazines, used an instinctive psychology in handling his men, and knew every man in the battery as a friend.

He was on furlough last week when he was ordered to return at once to the battery. He came back, started through the discharge routine and went about hugging everybody with what looked like unbounded joy.

Then he started getting quieter and less demonstrative. He had been relieved from active duty for the remainder of his stay here—a matter of four or five days—and when the men fell out for calisthenics at drill, Corporal Gantt didn't have to go out with them. Every time the whistle blew, you could see a lonesome look creeping into his eyes.

The last time I saw him was Monday at noon, when we fell out for chow. Military procedure was over—Gantt is a spontaneous revolution and Joe was drafted to march us to the mess hall. It was his last detail. Halfway to the mess hall, he gave us "To the rear—march! To the right flank—march! To the right flank—march!" and all of the marching commands he had taught us.

He's returning to Liberty now, where he'll fall back easily into the life he left two months ago. But you could have seen from a casual glance that he was going to miss the Army.

If a student could in the Army choose any assignment he knew he was best suited for the most comfortable position during the dizzy efforts. Compared to the boys in the pup tents, the signal corps, the anti-tank units, we in mess with-out-arms.

We mention cooks — the future "Gentlemen" boys of the Army—here to get on the records at the very first, during the war to the very last, during the war to the time every morning. We get an hour of calisthenics, devised by a sadistic who's in good physical shape and expects us to be the same way. Then we dive for our mess kits and back to bed and then schedules as the command pre-doesn't come up to standard in drill. We attend class for two hours and there's no foolishness there.

After lunch, we report to our kitchens, where we work until seven o'clock, taking part in the preparation of food for over two hundred hungry and fastidious soldiers. The next morning finds us in our kitchen at three or four o'clock and we stay there until one. We're supposed to have the afternoon off — unless there's something that has to be done in the line of battery duty.

When we leave those kitchens for the afternoon, we go back to our barracks for rest and sleep, which we need badly after the twenty-four-hour shift at huge coal-burning stoves. Reading is a popular diversion during the time, unless you pick up a magazine which tells you what slackers you are because you aren't like the author was in the Real war.

There's a different type of article that is equally nauseating. It tells of the poor little soldier boys, who give up everything to go into training thousands of miles from mother's lap and who will have to spend their time leaning against urban lampposts—because nothing is being done for their morale.

You're talking about entertainment, Gertrude—not morale. In the matter of entertainment, there's plenty of that to be found, even if it isn't like being back home toasting marshmallows with Her. There's so much being done here for entertainment that you can't get halfway to the Service Club without being drafted for a battery show or a volleyball game.

Morale is the spirit that gets you when you're out on the regimental parade ground with the whole battalion for retreat parade. Every mother's son there wants to look as much the soldier as the Old Man does. Not another sound can be heard before or after the one-gun salute to the colors or when the band crosses the field to a stirring march in the Display of the Colors. And when your battery passes in review before the colonel, you're firmly convinced that there isn't another battery on the field that makes as good a showing as your battery.

It's the enormous feeling you know when you sit in pitch dark before a pup tent in the field and watch the Fort's searchlight cut the sky. It's the feeling you know when you can look across a great space and see long lines of Army trucks moving along every road you can see.

That's morale. Just a matter of pride.

The good earth on which Fort Bragg is situated is laden with tradition, ghosts of the glorious past, the old culture — and little else. Beautiful as it may be for purposes of military training, it has little interest in helping the little green things to grow. Grass and flowers, planted with loving care in the Sandhills dust, fade but too soon if left to shift for themselves. To nourish such vegetation, the cavalry units furnish the more aesthetic batteries with certain surplus commodities.

Private McGlauflin, Roff, and I had spent the better part of the morning with Corporal Cleveland James Farmer, heaving and hauling coal in preparation for the long hard winter, when the top sergeant decided that the borders around the barracks should be given their autumn tone. We piled back into our truck and sped away to the haunts of the bore cavalry.

We knew, after a few miles of riding, that we were nearing the cavalry territory. There was a certain unmistakable quality about the countryside. Something New Had Been Added.

The bore cavalry, it must be said, takes great pains with the care and conservation of its valuable deposits. As far as the eye can see the eye can see ordinary, ordinal grounds covered with straw and earth. Runs for the most deserving criminal offenders—men who have earned their urine "p" for "prisoner"—are permitted to serve in the maintenance division of this essential agricultural enterprise.

We (we—McGlauflin, Roff, and I) stood high on the crest of a hill, leaning the back with the previous cargo, commenting on the outgrowth of the air, and praising with our arms to warm on our brows and toes in the consideration of other matters about us.

Some three were who could not see the importance of the service they were rendering, others spoke disparagingly of the grass and the terly cursed man's best friend, the horse. Two soldiers who shared a single pitchfork at the next truck spent all their time discussing the comparative beauties of the music of Liszt and Tchaikovsky, proving that art endureth forever even in an alien atmosphere.

As for myself, I gloried in the honor of the tradition I was helping to carry out. My mind drew pictures of the philosopher Ward Beecher Threatt, who boasts that he carried a pitchfork through the heat of the fiercest battles throughout the last war.

We made three trips to the cavalry barnyard before we had finished enriching the earth about the orderly room, the mess hall, and the four barracks of Battery A. We bathed vigorously and dressed for early dinner.

The mess sergeant met us at the door. He sniffed the air delicately and quietly closed the door in our faces. Then he made the rounds, closing the windows nearest us. "Git!" he said.

We went back to the barracks, where we found our comrades returned from the classroom. We sat down on our foot lockers and strove to remain as inconspicuous as possible. Private Sher was the first to speak.

"Do you smell something?" Private Sher asked with unaccustomed rudeness. Everyone, it seemed, smelled something. It was not, they decided, Chanel Number Five. It was not My Sin or Evening in Paris. One of the citizen-soldiers, who had once worked in the stockyards, knew what it was.

Maybe I spoke too soon when I denied the sissiness charges by magazine writers. It must be admitted, after yesterday's horrible disclosure, that some termite is boring from within us. Some force is sapping the rugged manliness of Battery A.

Here's what happened at supper yesterday evening. First of all, when we neared the end of the chow line, we found one of the cooks there, scooping ice cream out of a can. We are meat-and-potato men in Battery A and generally we do not take to such frilly fanciness as ice cream, although we occasionally humor the mess sergeant by letting him buy it in ready-cut blocks.

This time, we found, he had gone too far. Our leniency and intolerance in letting him buy ice cream had gone to his head. Now he was making it at home—in the respectable kitchen of Battery A! Homemade pineapple ice cream!

I didn't say anything about it. I thought that perhaps he was merely going through his second childhood, and second childhood is something that every mess sergeant must be permitted to go through once. Realizing this, we boys hadn't said anything when our mess sergeant had air-conditioning fans put in the kitchen windows to make nambypambies of the cooks and kaypees. We hadn't said anything when he started keeping jam on the table at all meals.

We're going to have to say something now. The man is going absolutely mad. Not content with springing homemade ice cream on us, he had to heap more coals on the fire of our impatience at the same meal.

There on each table in our mess hall, brazenly placed in the very center, was a shiny container filled with paper napkins!

Until something is done about the thing, this mess sergeant will go hog-wild. At his present rate, we'll find toothpicks on the table next week, salad forks the week after that, finger bowls before November.

This will go on indefinitely until his brain is completely destroyed by this madness. Then he'll start planning to surprise us with waitresses dressed in field-artillery red.

When this happens, I shall try to volunteer for the parachute troops.

No matter how homey they make the Service Clubs, no matter how splendidly they plan the movie programs, no matter how hard they work on athletic schedules, they'll never be able to compete with a soldier's favorite evening recreation—eating on the back steps, shooting the breeze

MEAT AND PROTEINS

While the rationing of sugar, butter, tea and coffee caused considerable dismay, the rationing of meat has caused more concern than any other single food.

Most food experts will agree that not only is meat an important food from the standpoint of nitrogen or body building, but in the minds and the digestion of the majority of us, nothing quite satisfies the stomach and the appetite as does meat.

What then is likely to happen to the health of the individual and the nation if we cannot obtain all the meat we need? The reason that meat is so important to health and strength is because of its richness in protein and the protein of animal food—meat—is richer and is more completely digested and absorbed into the blood than is protein from vegetables.

However, there are two points that make us more satisfied to eat protein as furnished in fish and eggs (other animal proteins) and the proteins in vegetables, especially peas and beans. In Hygeia, the health magazine, Phoebe Mayo Walters, Corona, Calif., explains that while it is the protein in meat that is necessary to life, it is not the meat itself because other foods rich in protein may be made to do almost as well as meat in furnishing the necessary protein. Fish is one of those foods, as is also cheese in any form.

Other foods high in protein are those of the dry bean family—white, navy and kidney beans, soybeans, peanuts and peanut butter.

The second point is that there is no reason why we should buy the expensive cuts of meat, because there is no difference in the amount or quality in expensive or cheap cuts.

For years, physicians have been advising patients with thin blood to eat more of the gland meats—kidneys, liver, heart—which foods are not usually rationed.

Finally, there are food substitutes designed to resemble various common foods which are really rich in food value and are not rationed.

The thought then is that we should all eat our full ration of meat if we are well and about on our feet, eat more fish, eggs, cheese, and green and yellow vegetables. If, then, we feel that we want or need more meat, remember that it is the protein that the body needs and there are plenty of other foods that are rich in protein.

Infected Appendix A Constant Threat

The story is told of two British mining engineers about to go on a prospecting trip. Both were in excellent health but as they thought of their destination, its distance from civilization, they decided to enter a hospital and have the appendix removed before starting.

Most physicians would agree that these engineers were wise.

Further, physicians are agreed that while the appendix must have had some use in the body in prehistoric times, there is at present no definite use for it. The appendix is just a remnant or trace of a once useful organ that has not completely disappeared from man. It is a blind pouch that may rest or lie in various positions about the last part of the small and the beginning of the large intestine. It has its own blood supply and a closing or obstructive arrangement at its base. Even in health it is filled with infective material and it contains a large amount of lymphoid or spongy tissue (similar to tonsils and adenoids) which is particularly easy to infect.

Because there is "always" the chance of infection present, Drs. Boyce and Nelson believe that any attack of appendicitis should be considered and treated as a serious attack.

"The problem of acute appendicitis would be solved and its challenge met if the public could be taught and if physicians would remember (1) that any abdominal pain may be the first symptom of acute appendicitis; (2) that food, fluids and particularly purgatives should be withheld in every case of abdominal pain until it is definitely decided that acute appendicitis is not present, and (3) that prompt operation should be performed as soon as the physician is reasonably sure that acute appendicitis is present.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 3

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS AND THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:17-20; 19:16-22; John 5:39, 40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill.—Matthew 5:17.

With this lesson we begin a series of studies which should be of unusual value, a consideration of the Ten Commandments in the light of the teachings of Jesus, and other related New Testament passages.

It is appropriate to point out that, far from being outmoded, the Ten Commandments are really the basis of all moral law. They need a diligent restudy and re-emphasis in our day of disregard of moral standards.

As interpreted by the Lord Jesus and applied to our daily living, the truth of these commandments should be brought home to every boy and girl, man and woman in our Bible schools.

We learn here that our Lord did not come to set aside or destroy the law, but to fulfill it in the most complete way. But the gospel takes us a step beyond the law, and it is a great step, for we follow the One who is greater than the law.

I. Built on the Law (Matt. 5:17-20).

The law of God is eternal, never to be abrogated, never set aside. Christ Himself, although we might properly say that He was in reality the Lawgiver and thus had power and authority over the law, indicated His purpose in coming to be that of giving the law its full meaning, not of destroying it. One could wish that those who profess to be His servants might have the same measure of regard for God's law. If they did, they obviously would not be so ready to ignore it, so quick to change it or explain it away, and far more ready to accept with their Master every "jot and tittle," that is, even the minutest detail of His Word.

Recognizing Christ as the fulfillment of the law should prepare one to manifest obedience to every moral precept through His grace.

II. More Than the Law (Matt. 19:16-22).

Obedience to the commandments brings a man up to the very entrance upon life, but to enter in, he must have more than the "things" of the law; he must have the Person who is "the Door" to eternal life.

The young man who came to Christ was rich. His mind was obsessed with things. He had made it his business to observe the law, and had done well (v. 20), but his soul was not satisfied. He thought one more "thing" to do would accomplish his purpose.

The general attitude of the man was commendable. He sensed his lack of the vital something which would remake his life. He came to the right one—the Lord Jesus—with his question.

His failure to go beyond the things of the law to a faith in Christ, however, showed that he loved his possessions more than he desired to follow the Lord.

Those in our day who are trying to please God and gain eternal blessedness by works, by doing things and keeping commandments, need to recognize that in Christianity we have the One who is more than the law. They need to look away from things to be done, to the great thing that was done once and for all on Calvary.

III. Greater Than the Law (John 5:39, 40).

The Scriptures are great because they bear witness to the Christ who can give life. But obviously the One to whom they bear witness is greater than they are.

Paul speaks of the law as a "schoolmaster to bring us to Christ" (Gal. 3:24). The picture is literally of a servant charged with bringing the child to school where he may learn the truth. So the law convicts man of sin, makes him conscious of his own utter inability to meet God's requirements, and makes him ready to turn to Christ in faith and repentance (Rom. 3:20).

These men of our Lord's time were very religious. They spent much of their time searching the Scriptures that they might find eternal life. But most of them failed to understand that the life they sought was in the One who stood before them—Jesus of Nazareth—and not in the letter of the law.

This has a vital bearing on the proper study of the lessons of this quarter. "The time has passed when men might seek life in the Scriptures apart from Jesus. Now that Jesus has come, life can be found only if the Scriptures lead one to Jesus.

"If our study of the Scriptures does not bring us to Christ, then it is vain indeed. For that reason we cannot study the Ten Commandments without turning constantly to Jesus as the One greater than the law" (Lesson Commentary).

Intricate Rattrap

Probably the most intricate rat trap ever invented is now available for use in large buildings, such as warehouses, factories and hotels, says Collier's. About the size of a trunk, with two "stories," many compartments and two ramps, this device automatically lures, traps, electrocutes and disposes of each rat in a few seconds and then resets itself, through a complicated electrical mechanism which includes photoelectric cells.

When you hear a Marine called a "Leatherneck," it has nothing to do with the epidermis of his neck. Years ago the Marine uniform was equipped with a high stiff leather collar. From that time on, "Leatherneck" has been the word for a Marine. The word for his favorite cigarette is "Camel"—the favorite cigarette also of men in the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Fifty-three per cent of the cars on highways contain waste rubber, for officials report that that number continue to be driven over 35 mph. A year ago 91 per cent of the cars traveled faster than the rubber conservation limit.

Kok-Saghyz, rubber-bearing dandelion, was planted and grown in 100 different test localities in the U. S. last year. The B. F. Goodrich Company is going in this experiment.

If your tires show undercover at the center of the tread it is a signal that you are overinflating. This is as much a rubber waster as underinflation.

Dispute Soon Settled, Apparently Satisfactorily

The strong man rode out on horseback to challenge a farmer whose great strength had gained him a reputation. He entered the farmyard, tied up his horse, and approached the farmer.

"Hey," he said, "I've heard a lot about you, and I've come a long way to see which is the better man."

Without answering, the farmer seized the intruder, hurled him bodily into the road.

When the loser had somewhat recovered his breath, the farmer growled, "Anything more?"

"Perhaps you'll be good enough to throw me my horse," was the reply.

Household Hints

Handle fruits and vegetables gently. Do not bruise.

Store berries, grapes and other delicate fruits unwashed in a cold place.

Common table salt is the best cleanser for a milk strainer. Rub both sides of the strainer vigorously with the salt.

Rich, active suds and thorough rinsing are elemental requirements for successful laundering.

A bit of wax rubbed on the bottoms of rockers, will prevent them marking even the glossiest of floors.

After butchering and cooking all the bone meat, there is always much greasy broth left. This can be canned. It is fine for seasoning beans, greens, cabbage or other foods. Save the broth for a day or two, then put in pint jars in a hot-water bath. Boil for 20 or 30 minutes.

A cloth dampened with vinegar or coal oil and rubbed over the windows before washing, will remove the smoky look.

To cut fresh bread, dip knife in boiling water and slices may be cut as thin as desired. A piece of apple in the breadbox will keep bread and cake fresh for days.

Soft water, or rain water, should be used in the cooling system of a tractor if possible, say agricultural engineers. Hard water will cause lime deposits on the walls of the water jackets and in the cylinder head, and also in the radiator. These deposits hinder the transfer of heat and may cause serious overheating of the engine.

RIGHT now in the nation's poultry houses there are 103 million more chickens than there were a year ago. There isn't enough feed in sight to take care of all of them. Here are some good points to remember:

One—You can't afford to feed a single "star boarder" this year. Keep your catching hook handy and cull out every week the birds that aren't producing.

Two—Get rid of the rats. These rats will eat enough feed in one year to care for two laying hens.

Three—Keep the birds comfortable so they can use their feed to best advantage. Each 100 layers should have about 20 to 24 feet of hopper space. A one-inch lip nailed on the hoppers will keep the birds from pilling feed out on the ground.

Next time you order feed, ask your Southern States Cooperative Service Agency for some All Mash Ration. This mash is fortified with vitamins and high protein ingredients—and makes your regular Southern States feeds go farther. All Mash Ration is equivalent in feeding value to a mixture of equal parts of Super Laying Mash and coarse scratch. You don't need to feed any grain when you feed All Mash Ration.

If you need new feeders, talk over your needs with your local Southern States Service Agency. If anyone can get them for you, he will.

Officers in Caribbean Are Taken on "Tour" Of West Virginia

By RAY P. R., Oct. 7.—West Virginia's woolen valleys, war veterans and saboteurs to visitors were recently in the tropical reaches of the Antilles Air Command on a short radio program here.

The broadcast was one in a weekly series of programs called "48-Gun Salutes" because of the military custom of firing one gun for each state in the Union on Independence Day. Each week a different state is spotlighted for the benefit of its natives stationed in the Caribbean area.

The broadcast originated from the Antilles Air Command Headquarters, Coolidge Field, Antigua, British West Indies, and from the studios of Wheeling, Huntington, Bluefield, Clarksburg and Martinsburg, West Virginia's two outstanding commercially known products for factories and shops. Entertainers included Harpers Ferry, Charles Town and Ranson.

Some of the shots at which civilians from the famous longbranch Rifle Association, also were in evidence included the Wheeling Police Pistol at Elkins, and Jefferson Pistol at Shepherdstown, the Tri-County Pistol at Ripley, the Hawthorne Rifle at Martinsburg, the Bee's Rifle at Kingwood, the Mac Rifle at Charleston and the Valley Rifle Club.

Short and snappy music and a wide listening audience in the history of the show was contributed by the Wheeling Symphony Orchestra from the Island of Cuba to equatorial Africa, forming a connecting link between the Mountain State and the Dark Continent.

Every home town paper in the state was represented in the broadcast, as was the size of West Virginia Conservation Commission county officers serving in the area.

Pocahontas county workers for the National War Fund drive which opened Tuesday have begun their solicitation in various sections of the county, in a determined effort to raise this county's $3,500 share of the $25,000,000 drive for national and international charities and other organizations.

REPORT ARMY SHOW WILL BE HELD HERE NEXT TUESDAY

Although details were lacking at the Journal's press time this week, the editor was advised that on next Tuesday a large group of Army personnel was scheduled to come to Marlinton in the interest of a campaign to arouse activity in hunting production, which is greatly needed in the war effort.

According to reports, several hundred Army men had arranged to camp on the county fair grounds, and would stage a show and demonstration Tuesday afternoon on the Marlinton high school athletic field. Also it was said the group would be accompanied by exhibit trucks showing the wide range of uses for hunter fur, trade fairs, and such things, and other accessories.

Rest rooms have been reserved at the Alpine Hotel to accommodate the officers of the contingent, which is said to be making a tour, and will make the stop here enroute from the South. Further advertising material likely will be distributed but county residents are urged to watch for the detailed announcement.

THE NATIONAL WAR FUND is a "home run" drive, touching all bases. Anyone who has been inspired by the heroic resistance of allied or conquered peoples, or has been stirred by their pathetic need, is now being given the opportunity to show appreciation and to alleviate suffering, by generous contributions to this campaign. Give your donation to the worker who calls upon you . . . but if you should not be at home when the worker calls, or are otherwise overlooked, see that the gift gets into their hands.

— REMEMBER —

Your Contribution to the National War Fund is Your Response to the Appeal of Millions!

Natives of Oklahoma, where they were reared on the farm, Mr. and Mrs. Goodbary both were prominent 4-H club members and are graduates of Oklahoma A. & M. College. Mr. Goodbary served as state president of Oklahoma 4-H clubs, as president of the Collegiate 4-H club at Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College for three years, and was a member of the Oklahoma college dairy cattle judging team.

HERE'S THAT MAN AGAIN

"Old Man Fate holds the strings and men like children move."

Personally, and that means we're speakin' for ourselves, we're satisfied after playin' around with the old boy for a half century, he not only has a keen sense of humor he's a downright practical joker. He makes great men out of fools and then turns around and makes fools out of great men. He has his eagle eye and that well known sarcastic grin on us right now as we are plannin' and whettin' up our hopes on post-war buildin'. We're wonderin' if our leaders are takin' into consideration the cost that will be demanded in separatin' the wheat from the chaff without runnin' everyone into the poor house because of inability to foot the bill . . . We're wonderin'.

IT Impresses ME

THAT someone should say, "Shucks, it's only a movie!" to all those local people who are unable to sleep, after viewing the fight in "Reap the Wild Wind" where two men engaged a slithering, wispy, snaky, octopus . . . Ugh! . . .

THIS editor for several years attended national swimming and life saving institutes at Annapolis, Md., which were held about mid-June, and near the end of the ten-day course the squids would put in their appearance, floating in countless hundreds atop Aberdeen creek, and looking for all the world like floating gobs of tapioca . . . But as they grew and formed tentacles their sting would raise a red welt on any luckless swimmer who happened to dive into one, and the swimming area would have to be screened . . . Ni-i-ice! . . .

THE scare will be made up to local theatre-goers on Friday, October 22, when "Gone With the Wind" will return here for a one-day stand . . .

THAT perhaps we'd better contact L. M. LaFollette of Huntersville and Charleston, who has the reputation of being good with figures (numerical) in the Legislature, to assist the local Senator Allen with his drug store accounts . . . Our little reminder from that pill-house this month gives every evidence that Doc is one of those tired business men, for listing "Toothpaste, Cold Capsules, Nose Drops, etc." to the amount of $2.19, the figure has 6 cents tax added to it, and is then totalled up as $9.25! . . . Oh, well, Doc, with the hunting season only a couple days away, it's easy to understand your frame of mind . . . I'll forgive you — if you'll forgive me to the amount of about $7.00 . . .

I'll Probably Get Slugged for This— But seeing "Sis" Michael picking out a Christmas card to mail right away to Husband Jim in Sicily, prompts me to remind you once more about that Christmas package for that fellow overseas . . . Selective Service Board Reports Delinquencies

The Local Board Selective Service this week reported to the U. S. District Attorney for the Southern District of West Virginia at Huntington, that William Eugene Wright, of 803 Park St., S. W., Roanoke, Va., is believed to have violated the Selective Training and Service Act because of failure to appear for screening examination as ordered by the Board August 6, 1943, and to give proper change of address. Efforts to locate Wright through the persons who are supposed to know his address, and through correspondence where he was reported to have been employed have failed to bring the desired information, according to H. H. Schofield, clerk of the Local Board.

Two other registrants who are reported by the Board to have failed to appear for induction as ordered are James Edward Goode, Jr., (Negro), of Farmington, W. Va., and Roy Allen Barkley of Johnny Cake Road, Rt. 5, Woodlawn, Md.

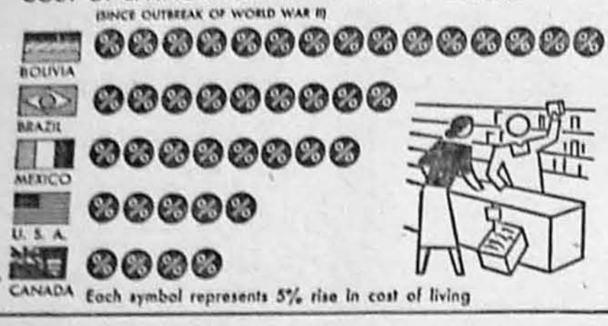
COST OF LIVING INCREASES IN THE AMERICAS
(SINCE OUTBREAK OF WORLD WAR II)



Each symbol represents 5% rise in cost of living

NAPLES:
Gutted City

By the time Allied forces had opened their offensive against Naples, the Nazis had turned the big port city into a mass of flames. They wrecked and scuttled every ship that had escaped Allied bombs and destroyed every wharf.

The Fifth and Eighth armies were bringing their full power to bear against their objective. That the Germans had early given up hope of holding the city was proved by the wholesale destruction of all usable facilities. At least 30 ships lay sunk or aground in the harbor as the result of Nazi scuttling and Allied bombs. Bombers had also wrecked railroad yards so thoroughly that no traffic had come into them for weeks.

Corsica

Even as the offensive against Naples began, French troops and American Rangers were driving ahead in Corsica, island of Napoleonic history. They had closed in on Bastia, northeastern port of the island, and Allied naval and air forces had clamped on a tight blockade against German escape.

MILK PRODUCERS:
Get First Subsidy

History was made in the dairy industry with the disclosure that the government has paid its first subsidy to dairymen. The announcement was made as Fred M. Vinson, economic stabilization director, took over the job of arbitrating a widespread milk price disagreement.

Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee stated that Vinson told him a subsidy had been given milk producers in the drouth-stricken area near Memphis. Other official sources said the subsidy would total 50 cents a hundredweight, approximately equal to one cent a quart.

LIFE INSURANCE:
On War Deaths

Deaths in the United States army, navy and marine corps up to the end of June, 1943, have resulted in life insurance claim payments totaling 23 million dollars, the Institute of Life Insurance has reported.

Of 21,700 policies on which payments were made, $15,100,000 was paid out under 11,100 policies in the first six months of this year, by American life insurance companies.

"The number of deaths is probably half the number of claims paid," the institute said. The average ownership of life insurance is two policies per policy holder.

RUSSIA:
'Disengaged' Nazis

German troops continued to "systematically disengage themselves" as the Red army smashed on toward Smolensk, captured Poltava, the last Red base in the southern Ukraine, and engulfed German defenses along a 300-mile line just short of the middle Dnieper river.

Continuing their drive on Smolensk, the great Red eastern front stronghold that once was Hitler's headquarters, the Russian army closed in from the southeast, overrunning 400 villages and killing more than 4,000 Germans.

A Berlin broadcast acknowledged the peril to Smolensk. Kiev and other points fell to the Russians. But Berlin was inclined to point the utmost gloom. For instance: The Germans at one time told appreciatively how 4,000 women relics of Russia gruppel. It is announced that they now hold over 200,000.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Spring Another Trap

Japanese troops manning the important New Guinea base of Finschafen were hemmed in on three sides by Allied forces following Gen. Douglas MacArthur's master plan of utilizing units to land in strength behind the enemy's key points and work to cut off his supply.

After the pattern of the conquest of Lae farther to the south, big airplane transports landed Allied troops northwest of Finschafen. As these troops pressed in against the Japs from the west, other ground forces moved in on the enemy from the south. Then, the encirclement was made complete when the U. S. navy put troops ashore to the north.

Capture of Finschafen would place the Allies a short distance from the Jap air bases on New Britain island to the east and thus reduce the efficiency of these bases as points for attack on U. S. forces.

WORLD RELIEF:
Plan Proposed

America's participation in an international relief and rehabilitation program to be administered along the lines of the League of Nations was to come up for congressional approval.

Winston Churchill

Congressional approval will be needed for appropriations with which the government will take part in the plan. As shaped along the pattern of a proposal of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, 44 united nations will form an advisory council, with a special central committee composed of the U. S., Great Britain, Russia and China.

Under the plan, the organization established will be authorized to acquire, hold, and convey property; make contracts; undertake obligations; manage undertakings, and perform any legal act appropriate to its object and purposes. Unless the senate ratified further forms of participation by a two-thirds vote, U. S. obligations would be confined to appropriations of funds.

ARMED FORCES:
Ask for Fathers

October 1 was at hand and before congress was the Wheeler resolution which would delay the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers scheduled to begin on that date.

Before the house and senate military committees came the nation's manpower experts. Also before these legislators came the highest officials of the army and navy. And then they heard the voice of Bernard M. Baruch, special presidential adviser. Testimony from all these sources arrived at the same essential fact: Give the armed forces what they want in the way of manpower.

Generally speaking the nation seemed to agree with this viewpoint but those who were opposing the drafting of these pre-Pearl Harbor fathers based their case on the assertion that the whole manpower program was being mishandled and that was why the drafting of fathers "appeared necessary." Agriculture, the armed forces themselves, government agencies and industry were all accused of hoarding manpower while fathers were being asked to get into uniform.

HESS:
Official Version

For two years British government sources kept their silence on the object of Nazi Rudolph Hess' flight to Scotland. Then Anthony Eden stood before parliament and told the official story:

Hess had made his historic and fantastic flight "on a mission of humanity." He came to Great Britain with specific peace terms because at that time Hitler feared a long war and didn't want to fight England. Among the peace terms that proved a stumbling block were these stipulations:

(1) Hitler would not deal with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

(2) Germany wanted a "free hand" in Europe with the British empire to remain unmolested.

HANOVER:
Hangover

In one of the most destructive bombing raids yet delivered on the Reich, the Royal Air force demolished a large area of Hanover and struck a crippling blow at an industrial machine already staggering from repeated onslaughts.

The Hanover raid was one of the most destructive to be delivered on Germany. Block busters and incendiaries were poured into rubber factories, railroad yards and supply depots at the rate of approximately 133,000 pounds a minute. London sources said the raid was one of the greatest air blows of the war.

Equally heartening was the indication that the RAF may have found the answer to anti-aircraft defenses and night fighters. Its losses were only 26 aircraft, a remarkable record for such a large-scale attack.

ALLIED CHIEF:
Post to Marshall

To Gen. George C. Marshall was to go the supreme command of all Allied forces, it was reported, even as congress loudly protested over the general's rumored removal as chief strategist of the Allied armies.

According to the rumors, General Marshall's differences with British leaders over war plans resulted in pressure for his removal as U. S. chief of staff, in which capacity he mapped all U. S. military activity and thus influenced British action.

Official Washington waited to see whether General Marshall's reported appointment as supreme commander of all Allied forces carried with it the responsibility of continued planning, or whether it only involved execution of somebody else's strategy.

LEGION:
New Program

When the final gavel fell on this year's American Legion convention held in Omaha, Neb., delegates could look back on these major developments in the organization's program:

(1) Election of a new commander, Warren H. Atherton of Stockton, Calif.

(2) Pledging of a "middle road" conservative stand on the two important issues of foreign relations and domestic affairs.

(3) Expansion of the Legion's Americanization program.

(4) A memorial to congress calling on that body to tighten up the law on franking privileges to prevent congressmen from using the mails to promote the propaganda of an "un-American" cause.

GLOOM:
From Jap Radio

In a gloomy forecast of new Allied aerial blows, the Tokyo radio announced that Japan is getting ready to evacuate Tokyo and other important cities "in view of the decisive phase upon which the war will enter during the coming months."

Premier Tojo announced that the Japanese government had decided to prepare "for the moving of government departments, industrial establishments and the civilian population" from Japan's major cities.

The Tojo cabinet also called for total mobilization of the civilian population, abolishment of age limits to make all persons liable for national service and strengthening of government control over industry.

MASS INVASION:
At 'Right Time'

Plans for a gigantic second front in France and the Low Countries "at what we and our American Allies judge to be the right time" were promised by Prime Minister Churchill in his war report to Great Britain's house of commons.

During his optimistic speech of two hours and seven minutes, Churchill defended the Italian campaign, terming it a "third front," and forecast a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference before the end of the year. He sketched Allied progress in air, sea and land warfare.

SAVINGS:
Go Up

During the three months ended in June, every working person in the U. S. added approximately $80 to his cash and deposits.

This figure was indicated by reports of the Securities and Exchange commission, which declared that individual savings for the quarter totaled $4,800,000,000. The figure per working person is obtained by breaking the SEC estimate among the nation's estimated labor force of 60 million people.

Manpower-Draft Situation Is Nation's No. 1 Problem

Political Shadows Darken Vital Issues Confronting Every Family; National Service Act Subject of Debate.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

Today, a whole year stands between election day and the capital but the shadow of coming events cast their shadows before them. Like the dark patches on the ground when scudding clouds cross the sun, the Washington scene is flecked with politics.

And there are issues this time which reach right into every home, touch the family where there are men and women of fighting or working age, reach into the larder and the ice box. It is hard for anyone to see these issues clearly because of the shadow of politics.

There is the draft, the manpower question closely interwoven with it, there is food, its production, its distribution, rationing and prices.

It takes a keen eye to see where merit ends and politics begins.

When Senator Wheeler, fathering the deferment of draft for pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, said the defeat of his measure would be a blow at morale and the nation's children, there was no reason to believe that he was insincere. Certainly there was no insincerity about the army and navy heads who opposed the measure, explaining that there were just so many men of fighting age and physique and that a certain job had to be done.

But to a reporter who has been reporting the doings of mice and men for more than a quarter of a century, I could not help suspecting some of the folk who battled over this legislation. What a juicy morsel it was for the vote-getter! True, the Wheeler bill aimed to exempt those who, with no foreknowledge of war, produced families without a thought that babies, to quote the ancient wheeze, like weatherstrips, could keep them out of the draft. But what about other fathers, quite as Pearl Harborish in their paternity whose offspring sprang after the deadline simply because time or opportunity had lingered?

President's Views

There was no doubt what the President thought when he talked about men with children who were doing no useful thing and who might, if they wished immunity from military service, easily get into a war industry. They, one opponent of the Wheeler bill said, were told that they had no responsibility in the war effort, at home or at the front.

Of course, this argument would not hold if the National Service act, that nightmare of politicians, were passed. The army wants it, Senator Austin and Representative Wadsworth who introduced it, and their followers want it—the White House has never spoken but of late is silent when it is "said to be willing."

Now politics, long before the election winds started blowing, has dulled men's minds on that subject. Manpower Commissioner McNutt has been willing but not emphatic. Perhaps you never read the contents of a recent statement issued through the Office of War Information from the Manpower commission. I have treasured it and want to quote its first sentences:

"Better utilization of our work force is the primary means of getting the manpower needed to supply productive establishments of the nation." (You and I can understand that, despite the fine four and five-syllable derivatives.)

"Labor reserves in shortage areas have been exhausted and the common lack of community services and facilities in such areas usually makes it impossible or undesirable to bring in more workers." (Also quite understandable, on a little thought, but would it make you rush out and hunt for a defense job?)

"Where there has been rapid mobilization of manpower, utilization is not always at its highest level. This is not necessarily a reflection on employers. When a plant has expanded its labor force several times, examples of ineffective use of manpower are certain to follow."

There is a careful exposition of the situation for you! Now what could the man who wrote that be running for? Somewhere where there were a lot of toes to be stepped on, it would seem, for he certainly was pussyfooting among the polysyllables.

Situation Is Serious

And yet the manpower situation is serious. It is so serious that it has long worried War Mobilization Director Byrnes. Indeed, that is why he called on his friend, Bernard Baruch, the unofficial elder statesman of the administration, to advise him. Baruch advised him all right, not wisely perhaps, from a political standpoint, and too well for the sensitive olfactory nerve of Republican Senator Vandenberg (who used to be a newspaper man himself). The wily Michigander scented a rodent. Had he not, you might never have heard Baruch's words of wisdom.

Among other things, Mr. Baruch commented on hoarding labor. I had heard of that subject in indignant letters from the wives of workers who wrote that their husbands were paid to loaf. And Senator Wheeler made similar charges and recalled that Senator Truman and his doughty investigators had found a lot of hoarding of labor with (as Wheeler put it) "employees falling over each other" and being paid for on the cost-plus basis.

Testimony before congress had insisted that there were no cost-plus contracts under which labor hoarding would be profitable.

That was when Vandenberg arose and waved the Baruch report which he had demanded and finally received from Mr. Byrnes.

Mr. Vandenberg read Mr. Baruch's words on the subject of cost-plus:

"The government pays all the costs, whatever they are. Since the government is footing the bill, there is no incentive for the manufacturers to economize in the use of material, facilities or labor. More workers are hired than needed. Workers stand idle—it costs the manufacturer nothing. Much labor is wasted."

Political Breezes

This is only one item in the long and forthright document which has had considerable publicity. Perhaps it might have been neglected if it had not been blown into the public's face by the political breezes stirred up by Mr. Vandenberg. Perhaps Mr. Vandenberg might not have generated those breezes if Mr. Baruch had not been pretty critical of government agencies that competed for power; perhaps Mr. Baruch would not have been so frank if he had not thought that, as he requested, the report was not for publication.

Mr. Byrnes, when he sent the document to "Dear Van" at the latter's insistence, said that it was not intended for other than private use but that it was "a splendid argument in favor of action taken by the War Mobilization committee" (in regard to the labor situation on the West coast) and he requested that it be placed in the Congressional Record, which it was.

And so there it was for all to see with Mr. Baruch, presumably still the best of democratic pals but also the severest of critics, lambasting jealous government agencies and calling manufacturers "manufacturers" and not "productive establishments" and apologizing for nobody, business men or bureaucrats.

Thus the political breezes blow, sometimes in one direction, sometimes in another, though, of course, in election years the "outs" usually blow the loudest. They are the prosecuting attorney, and the "ins" are the defense.

However, there is this satisfaction, blow where it will, it is an ill wind that blows nobody good.

Diary of a Broadcaster

The other day, at the President's usual press and radio conference, I was interrupted, for Fala, the President's scotty, walked out between the forest of legs and made one of the most thorough trouser-cuff inspections I had ever seen.

Unfortunately, I had on one of those liberty suits with no cuffs so he started to pass me by and I had to engage him in conversation to get his attention at all.

What he said was not to be attributed—I can only say that I learned from authoritative Scotch circles that the newspaper and radio fraternity displayed a lot of scents.

Paint and Chintz Transform Chair

THERE is a knack about knowing the right thing from the assortment of junk in an antique or a second hand furniture store. Here is a rocker not to quaint but just awkward to sit around. What you need is a chair that will push against the table that may be used at a desk or have a place of honor at the head of the table. The chair you want is there in that old rocker. You can see it in your mind's eye.

Off come the rockers and on goes a set of casters and a seat cushion to make it the right height. This will make it useful but still add beauty. A remnant of flowered chintz will cover the cushion and the objectionable part of the carved back. Paint to match the soft blue background of the chintz will bring the whole thing together and soften too prominent curves.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Heat and friction are the greatest enemies of rubber. Tire treads wear out five times as fast in a temperature of 100 degrees as when the thermometer registers 40 degrees.

Rubber previously used for garden hose will provide for tires of carriages of 8,500 "75" or 6,800 37-mm. anti-aircraft guns and 600 pontoon for Army bridges.

Samuel Peal was granted the first rubber patent in England in 1791. It covered the waterproofing of leather, cotton, linen, etc.

"CARRYING ON" IN WARTIME

IN SEPTEMBER OF 1918 I was in a small Belgium city which the Germans, after four years of occupancy, had evacuated less than 48 hours before my arrival. In that small city I entered, as indicated by a sign, a dress shop with the hope of finding something for the wife and daughter at home in Chicago. The size and fixtures denoted a shop of some consequence but in it were not so much as half a dozen articles of merchandise, none of them of any real value.

With a smile of courage in her eyes a white-haired woman greeted me in English from behind an empty showcase. To her I explained my reason for entering.

"You see all I have to offer," she said. "Four years ago I had a full stock. It was not confiscated or looted by the Germans but has been sold a bit at a time, with no opportunity of replacement. For two years there has been practically nothing left, but I will not close the store. It must be here when the war ends, though I starve in the effort to keep it open."

That was what war had meant to a woman merchant of Belgium. It is what war means today in Belgium and practically all other European nations. That woman was carrying on.

A store window in a dress shop in my home town caused me to recall that heroic Belgium woman. In that home-town store window was displayed an attractive line of print dresses in the brilliant colorings of summer—it was in August—season. There were slacks and shirts of many colors and shades, bathing suits for the not-far-away beaches, knit gloves and scarfs and other accessories. It was the display window of a well-stocked store in which feminine fancy could be satisfied.

We are at war, as was Belgium. We are supposed to be suffering the privations of war. We complain of the sacrifices we are called upon to make.

The fact is we on the home front know nothing of sacrifice as we might, and would, know if the Huns and the Japs were landed on our shores. Oceans lie between us and our enemies. It is the men of our armed forces that meet them far away from us and protect us from the real ravages of the most terrible war the world has ever known. If that white-haired Belgium woman could carry on under the conditions she, and those she represented, had to face through four long years, we can have no just cause for complaint. We, too, must carry on to maintain that America and the institutions that are ours.

THE BEATING INFLATION IS SO DIFFICULT

WE ARE FEARFUL of inflation. We know what can cause it and how it can be prevented. We know runaway commodity prices can, and will, wreck each one of us and produce conditions from which we can not, and will not, recover for at least a generation.

Each one of us wants the other fellow to do the things that will prevent the inflation disaster. The farmer wants higher prices for what he produces. He does not want to be the inflation prevention goat. He would have the worker, the manufacturer and the merchant do the inflation prevention job. The worker must have wages. The manufacturer and merchants object to putting any of their profits and demand prices for their commodities that will offset, or more than offset, any increased wage costs. We have sacrifices must be made if we are to escape the inflation evil, but we want "George" to do the sacrificing. Each of us wants "George" to pay the price to buy the bonds.

Not congress, the day war was declared, passed the much discussed "hold it would have stopped all danger of inflation. It would have fixed all wages and prices, drafted all labor, management and wealth. In so doing it would not have avoided all the ruses of finance, but the politicians were guilty of those crimes. The result of the war now is inflation.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

QUEZON ON THE JOB

It's bad news for the Japs that President Quezon of the Philippines is back in Washington. They knew—though it was not generally realized in Washington—that Quezon had suffered a relapse of his old illness, tuberculosis, which has plagued him off and on for 20 years.

Quezon was a well man at the time of Pearl Harbor. But confinement in the dampness of Corregidor, during the Jap attack, brought the illness back again. That was one reason MacArthur urged him to return to the U. S. in a submarine. When he came to Washington, Quezon was advised to take things easy. Instead he rushed into the official activities of Philippine Commonwealth affairs, not sparing himself.

His physicians advised him not to remain in Washington during the summer of 1942, nor last winter. But he remained nevertheless. Result was that last spring he suffered a further relapse.

Specialists were summoned, and Quezon was given the stern advice that he would have to get out of the humid climate of Washington immediately, if he wanted to live. Yielding to pressure, he went to Saranac, N. Y., and submitted himself to a rigid discipline during most of the past summer.

Quezon led the life of an invalid, sitting in the sunshine in a wheel chair, listening to the radio, or to his nurses as they read to him. Result of this regime was that the tuberculosis was arrested, and Quezon gained 12 pounds.

When the Japs heard of his relapse, they were ready to say to the people of the Philippines, where Quezon is still highly popular: "Look, this is the skeleton you pin your hopes to."

But today Quezon is back on his feet and back at his desk, still hoping to realize his one great ambition, to see U. S. and Philippine forces march into Manila.

SEVEN MINUTES TO WAR

Every day now, pictures are arriving in a little room in Washington which seven minutes before were in Algiers, 3,400 miles away. One day, just after the landing in Italy, 41 pictures came through the air and landed safely on top of the Pentagon building, in a little room marked "Confidential—Keep Out."

Inside that room is a little machine not as big as a typewriter, with a little cylinder on it. The cylinder spins around, exposing a negative to dots and dashes of light, and after seven minutes, the exposure is complete. From there on, it's merely a matter of developing the negative, and the U. S. public has a picture of the landings in Italy, or the surrender of the Italian fleet.

And ditto for the South Pacific. It is farther away, but the seven minute requirement still holds. From an unmentionable post in Australia, the dots of light flash into the little room, and you have a picture of General MacArthur flying in a bomber over New Guinea.

The pictures may have been taken by any one of the four photo syndicates—Acme, AP, INP, or Life—or they may have been taken by the Army Signal service. In any case, they can be telephotoed only by the official airwaves.

What would be a highly expensive daily transmission cost for the photo agencies is thus fully borne by the war department. Officials justify the cost in terms of keeping the public abreast of the war—in fact, only seven minutes away from the war.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Ex-Congressman Joe Casey of Massachusetts, now doing various inside jobs for the White House, recently made a political survey of New England, reported that Maine was so strong for Roosevelt's war policies that the only Republican who could beat him was Wendell Willkie. . . . Admiral Standley, U. S. ambassador to Russia, has cleared with the state department a significant speech in which, after praising Russian victories plus those of England and the United States, he says: "A victory for one is a victory for all." . . . Highly inflammatory remarks in Negro newspapers, some of them close to sedition, are being studied by the army. . . . Law Douglas, war shipping administrator, was personally thanked by the President for the job he did in helping to smooth British and American general staff feelings at Quebec. There have been some very significant differences between them, and Charles party in Douglas, things were smoothed out considerably at Quebec.

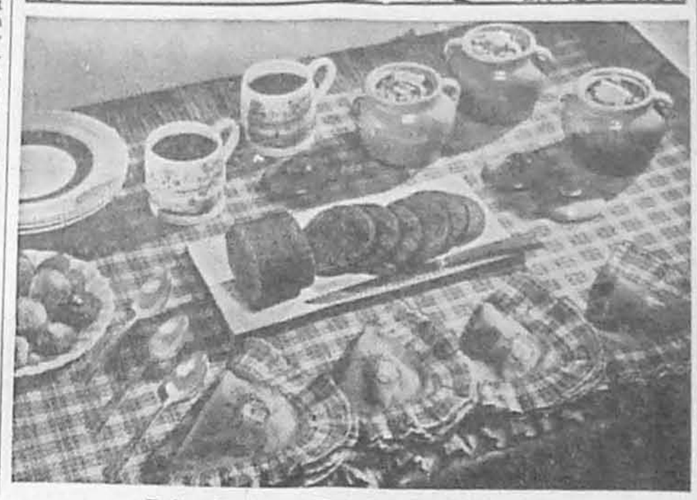
CAPITAL CHAFF

■ Winston Wells Flynn of OCD reveals that on the day before Pearl Harbor she drove up to the White House door, on invitation to Mrs. Roosevelt's tea, and was told by guards, "We don't see your name on the list, but it's all right if you say so." Today, you can't get near the White House.

■ Among the assistant officials of OCD is Harriet Welliver, an Iowa girl from university. At 14, he was a child lighting expert. Now she is in a harder job again.



Bring Out Bean Pots for Guest Dinners!
(See Recipe Below)

Company Nights

You may be on a strict ration budget, but it isn't necessary to ration hospitality if you plan the food and entertainment wisely. Food and pleasant conversation shared with friends make the long, cool nights, and work-filled days easier to share. Plan soon to have someone over for you can do it with today's recipes without stretching the ration or budget book out of joint.

Dishes should be hearty enough to satisfy any man-sized appetites you encounter, but pretty enough to draw compliments, too. Have things easy to fix so that you can have plenty of time to take part in the social activities of the evening.

Enlist the help of the children in setting up the tables, polishing silverware and glasses. They'll like doing it and it will ease the load on you.

Baked beans are grand for fall entertaining and they really make those points go a long way. They certainly answer the need for heartiness to satisfy appetites fanned by the coolness in the air, and when served in attractive casseroles with gay table background, they answer the beauty requirement.

If you make the beans yourself, a little pork goes a long way when it travels with other such savory foods as mustard, molasses, brown sugar, tomato sauce and vinegar.

Home Baked Beans.
(Serves 6 to 8)

2 cups navy beans
¼ pound fat salt pork
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons molasses
1 small onion, quartered
½ cup catsup, if desired

Wash beans. Cover with water and soak them overnight. Cook slowly until the skins burst or until just tender. Drain, reserving liquor. Place half the beans in bean pot or casserole. Bury a slice of pork in beans and another slice in the remaining ingredients. Add remaining beans and seasonings. Place remaining salt pork over the top. Cover with bean liquor. Cover and bake in a slow oven (250 to 300 degrees) 6 to 8 hours. If necessary, add more liquid.

Individual bean pots make serving simpler. The beans may be baked in small pots, or, if desired, baked in a large pot, ladled out into small pots before serving.

Relax your taut nerves and forget war worries by serving a delicious decaffeinated coffee—hot or cold. If making the coffee in a percolator, it needs slightly longer to bring out the full, rich coffee flavor.

Boston brown bread is the traditional accompaniment for baked beans. Slice it very thin, spread with butter or cream cheese, whichever suits your palate best.

Lynn Says:

Point Savers: Discarding leftovers is waste, for they can make many a meal, and a nice one. Use leftover meats or poultry and a combination of vegetables, and tuck that under a flaky pie-crust for a wonderful meat savor. Remember pie crust is packed with energy value because of the shortening.

Try high quality shortening for making pastry. It is fresh and sweet, doesn't have to be kept in the refrigerator and is of a nice texture to blend with flour.

To roll pie dough thin, cover board with a heavy muslin, and rolling pin with a child's white sock.

Hamburger Pie.
(Serves 6)

1 medium-sized onion, chopped
1 pound ground beef
Salt and pepper
2½ cups green beans
1 can condensed tomato soup
5 medium-sized potatoes, cooked
½ cup warm milk
1 beaten egg
Salt and pepper

Brown onion in hot fat; add milk and seasonings. Brown. Add beans and soup. Pour into a greased casserole. Mash potatoes, add milk, egg and seasonings. Spoon in mounds over meat. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes.

A waffle supper is another way of entertaining which can be inexpensive and consume only a few points. There are loads of things to do with waffles—either for main course or desserts. Make plain waffles and serve them with creamed chicken or leftover veal creamed with mushrooms. For desserts, try them with berries or fruit or a combination of ice cream and fruit or berries.

Walnuts in waffles make them taste wonderfully good. Serve a few tender, sizzling link sausages with these for a particularly tempting late evening snack:

Walnut Waffles.
(Makes 4 to 6 waffles)

2 well-beaten egg yolks
1½ cups milk
2 cups pastry flour
¼ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
6 tablespoons oil
2 stiffly beaten egg whites
1 cup broken walnut kernels

Combine beaten egg yolks and milk. Add flour sifted together with salt and baking powder, then add oil. Beat until smooth, fold in egg whites and nuts. Bake in ungreased waffle iron.

As meat shortages become more acute, cereals are once more taking their place in the American diet. Spaghetti, macaroni, noodles, etc., all belong to the cereal family and may be used admirably for meat stretchers and substitutes. Combine them with one of the complete protein foods such as meat or cheese and you have a very satisfying, filling dish. Here's a dish fortified with grated cheese and another protein food, eggs:

Baked Eggs on Spaghetti.
(Serves 8)

1½ cups spaghetti
2 tablespoons butter or substitute
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
1 cup American-style grated cheese
8 eggs
Buttered crumbs

Cook spaghetti in 4 quarts boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Add melted butter. Add flour and salt mixed thoroughly. Pour in milk gradually. Cook, stirring constantly until thick. Add cheese and blend. Mix with spaghetti. Pour into shallow, greased baking dish. Break eggs onto spaghetti, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and salt. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) about 30 minutes or until eggs are cooked.

DIET FOR THE AGING

It is true that as we grow older we need foods easy to digest but many as they grow older still have physical work to do and need nourishing foods some of which require chewing before they will digest readily. Therefore if the individual has but a few or no chewing teeth—grinders—he should be fitted for artificial teeth by his dentist. In his book, "The Patient Past Fifty," Dr. Ernest P. Boas states. "It is most important to see to it that every aging person has dentures (plates) that will enable him to chew varied and adequate foods. An old person commonly restricts his dietary to cereals, soft bread and tea and coffee because he cannot chew most of the food that is set before him."

The most important item or items of food for the nourishment and well being of the elderly individual are the protective foods. The protective foods as described some years ago by Dr. E. B. McCollum, Johns Hopkins, are milk and other dairy products, meats, fruits, and green vegetables, because of their vitamins and minerals. Vitamin A is found particularly in milk, butter, eggs, cheese, liver and green vegetables; vitamin B in whole wheat bread, beef, mutton, and many vegetables; vitamin B-2 in milk, fruits, and leafy vegetables; vitamin C in fruits—oranges, limes, lemons, tomatoes and melons.

Another suggestion is that elderly individuals should try to eat three meals of about the same size instead of making the evening meal the largest and heaviest one. In fact, the large meal of the day should be eaten at noon, with a light supper in the evening. A rest of an hour after eating, instead of walking or working immediately after eating, aids digestion and avoids overtaxing the heart which otherwise would have the duty of increasing its work to take care of digestion and exercise or work at the same time. If tea and coffee agree, one or two cups daily are allowed.

Nicotinic Acid Relieves 'Tic' Pains

In past years treatment for the relief of that terrible pain, tic doloreux (trigeminal neuralgia), was surgery. While surgery must still be considered the most effective treatment, other methods have given relief for months and even years and are preferred by patients and physicians before surgery is used. Recently I spoke of a sinusoidal current as reported by Dr. Benjamin Ulaski of Philadelphia, which gave relief in a number of cases.

What causes tic doloreux? The cause is unknown, but it is known that very little is needed to set off the nerve trigger causing the outburst of severe pain.

Two British research workers, Drs. W. E. Adams and W. Robinson, thinking that the cause of tic doloreux was in some way connected with the blood supply to the trifacial nerve supplying head and face not receiving enough blood or oxygenated blood, tried drugs to close off the blood supply and drugs to increase the blood supply to this nerve and the large ganglion from which the trifacial nerve emerges at a point under the ear. Their findings are reported in the Lancet, an English medical journal.

In three cases they gave drugs that partially closed the blood vessels supplying the trifacial nerve; in one of these cases the drug (adrenalin) caused an attack of tic doloreux before the patient had been put on treatment with dilator drugs (the drugs that open up the blood vessels). In the other two cases benzedrine sulphate (another "vessel" closing drug) increased the number and severity of the attacks of tic doloreux.

The dilator drug, nicotinic acid, was used (to give an increased supply of blood to the trifacial nerve) to seven patients, two male and five female, ranging from 36 to 62 years, in doses which varied from 50 milligrams twice a day to 75 milligrams four times a day.

"In every case there was improvement, amounting in some cases to complete relief." In two patients a return of pain was relieved by breathing in amyl nitrate, a dilator drug.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become overtaxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!
